Re: GN Docket No. 14-28, Protecting and Promoting the Open Internet
GN Docket No. 10-127, Framework for Broadband Internet Service

Dear Ms. Dortch,

Enclosed please find the signatures and comments of thousands of Free Press activists urging the Federal Communications Commission to protect real Net Neutrality.

Since the FCC's proposed rules were announced we have seen a groundswell of public opposition to that proposal. We call on the FCC to abandon any unworkable rules based on compromised legal theories, and instead reclassify ISPs as common carriers.

President and CEO
Free Press

Please do everything you can to promote, preserve and protect Net Neutrality. Our democracy depends on it!

—Nicholas DiMasi, Glen Ellyn, IL

This is some serious bullshit, the internet isn't for the multi-billion dollar corporations to make more money at the expense of people AROUND THE WORLD.

—Graeme, Beverly Hills, CA

I don't support the tiered internet because I do not make very much since I have freelance jobs until I can become a graphic designer. To make my dream job happen, I really depend on the internet to make it happen, but the extra charges will really hurt those chances.

—Michelle, Lancaster, CA

First they want everything to be online now they want to take the net away from ppl who live online for work

—Johnny Malott, Young America, IN

Be Open

—Adam Frase, Minneapolis, MN

This is Ridiculous.

—Jake Riss, Black Hawk, SD

Service providers should not have the ability to regulate our freedom of choice, or limit our available content based on additional fees.

—Ian McCabe, Bellflower, CA

if this ruling goes through there will be anarchy.

—Christopher, ,

Despicable work of corporate lap dogs, and NOT the work of anyone that would actually do their job as a representative and represent the majority of constituents. SHAME! on these corporatist. Try being populist for a change.

—Jacob Forrester, Everett, WA

Rack off.

Please don't let this happen. People are already being swindled by ISPs, and big companies already have enough of an upper hand over small business.

—Shelley Hall, , what the heck the internet is supposed to be free. freedom of information right?

—Bethany, ,

It is imperative that all aspects of the internet remain free in order for our society to prosper. Do not stifle human innovation for the sake of profits for large corporations.

—Adam Lopez, Aurora, CO

The Internet belongs to no-one

—Jacky, ,

Also, reinstate free porn of all types(excluding incest) for everyone!!!

—Dethfold, Oakville, WA

Stop trying to revive all of these SOPA replicas to take over the internet, you corporate politicians.

—Daniel Hiley, South Colby, WA

You are probably not old enough to remember all the arguments against pay TV. The good part, though, is that there would be no commercials! So now I pay almost $140 per month including all the fees, insurance, maintenance, hardware leasing, taxes, etc and get far more commercial time per hour than ever before. Privatize the Internet. Go ahead. Our service is already the slowest in the industrialized world. 200 times slower than Korea! Protect the Internet from privatization. Do it for your children. Otherwise, the greatest breakthrough in human communication since the invention of language will become one giant daytime TV show.

—Harold Gaskill III, San Antonio, TX

If this goes down in America, how long 'till it comes knocking on our doors?

—Chrysa, ,

These companies already overcharge me for internet service, please don't let them rig the system so that they and only they make even more money from a less valuable product.

—Jose Contreras, Starkville, MS

Why pay more for something where already paying for? DUHH!

—Nick Knibbe, Attica, MI

Please fix this before it becomes entrenched, and ruins the free flow of information that we have taken too much for granted.

—Matthew Aaron, Austin, TX holy shit

—Laura, ,

The internet need be free flowing and unrestricted so that speech and ideas are not censored or promoted by the companies(monopolies or oligopolies) whims. support net neutrality. Protect the people and their right to access information freely. The ISP's can now chose which sites work on my computer? Seriously reconsider this decision.

—Mark Flanagan, Roslindale, MA

we give you guys money in so many ways already. LEAVE THE INTERNET ALONE

—Liz Printy, Buxton, ME

this is bullshit

—Christopher Chamberlin, Miami, FL

please do not do this i am literally broke as it is

—Stuart Tusspot, Dallas, TX

Senior System and Network Administrator

—Tsvetomir Totev, ,

The internet should always be open and equal for all. Let's keep this.

—Callum Hurry, ,

PLEASE KEEP INTERNET NEUTRAL NO BIAS

—Bernie Wolschlager, Elkhart, IN

We need to stop regressing socially already and be rational human beings already.

—Sean Murphy, Lubbock, TX

I already deal with slow internet, and the loss of choices on cable/satellite TV. I DON'T WANT TO DEAL WITH THIS! Nobody ain't got time for this! Just please do something before the internet explodes and we will have millions of people in jail to rally for their normal internet to return. It's not a laughing matter, nor a greedy matter. Stop being greedy and think of the people! You will lose more money and people will have to resort to other methods to communicate around the world. AND I MEAN IT....

—Jessica Lopez, Louisville, KY

Free The World Wide Web

—Woodsen, ,

The internet should not be a place for money grubbing corporations to control our freedom. With internet being a further paid service, what is stopping this corporations from blacklisting a website they don't agree with or is bad mouthed by? This is despicable and wrong.

—Michelle Ulmer, Columbus, OH

This is NOT okay. The internet is one place where free speech and browsing is never restricted. Let's keep it that way please.

—Emily, ,

This is unacceptable. This is not what the internet was meant to become.

—Patrick Riggs, Clarkston, MI

We need net neutrality, it is the only way to ensure the internet servers its original purpose of spreading knowledge and ideas, not to mention removing it is a massive violation of the freedom of speech.

—Donald Merritt, Newark, DE

Keep it free wtf are they thinking

—Nils Lindquist, ,

Did you know we have one of the slowest network at one of the highest cost globally? In order to advance in this day and age, we MUST put customers first. Eliminating Net Neutrality rules will only support communication conglomeration in charging its customers high prices for zero services.

—Chun Yeung Szeto, Cary, NC

It's time to support the people in the United States not the company/corporations in the United States.

—Ferne E. Knauss, Pennsburg, PA

I use the internet every day, it's a part of my life and livelihood. Without Net Neutrality, my life and livelihood would be far worse off. Please don't let that happen.

—Jimmy Faryewicz, Plano, TX

People are convinced that last weeks action is a good thing and that that it is supposed to do the opposite of what it does!

—Michael Fragola, Saint Petersburg, FL

Noooooooooooo!!!!

—Kelli Bronson, Tulsa, OK

The entire idea of big business (cable TV trying to stop residents from using free wifi being transmitted by TV station, any kind of free telecommunications, and now Verizon trying to continue to gouge their customers, SUCKS completely. Let free market and free internet be available to US, meaning us!!!!!!

—, Kingsport, TN

HELL NO

—Kamzegreat, ,

I'm a full time student and couldn't afford these tolls to do the research I need to graduate. If this is turned into something like cable, students will suffer greatly.

—Deidre Comstock, Rock Hill, SC

As a public services librarian, I am able to see the current digital divide in our country quite clearly. I can also see that by removing net neutrality, it will become a much deeper, more permanent division.

—Barbara Thorp, Port Republic, MD

Democracy runs on information. It must be open and equal.

—Mark Wilson, Denver, CO

In any other market, this would be the first step towards creating a monopoly. The argument that users who are unhappy with packages offered by one company would have the ability to choose another is absolutely untrue in large areas of the U.S., especially those not as heavily populated as large cities or simply out of the way. The internet is vital to communication and distribution of information in today's world and you've taken actions to throttle it in favor of companies who want to nickel and dime us to death for access. Don't be stupid. Fix this now.

—Derek St. Pierre, Augusta, ME

Please take decisive action now. It won't be easier if you delay action.

—Klaus Fechner, Los Altos, CA

THAT'S BS

—Annelis Rivera, Miami, FL

Won't you do something for "We the People," rather than for "We the Money?"

—F. Wayne Wayne White, Jefferson City, MO

Quit making EVERYTHING about money!!!

—Allison Arvay, Charleston, SC

Don't be a jerk.

—Chuck McIntyre, Lexington, KY

I do not think that Americans have a right to try and push their laws and greed onto the International community. The Internet is a tool for all. My country Internet is already the worlds slowest. It is difficult for me to surf as it is. To slow down traffic that is unable to pay, will restrict my right to access to information that I am unable to access without the Internet like CNN. Perhaps it is time for the Americans to realize when they are passing laws like this it doesn't just affect the Americans.

—Lisa, ,

I refuse the notion that free market theory is an acceptable form of politics and that I have no voice in market negotiations. The repeal of Net Neutrality allows for unconstitutional infringements upon the freedoms of the public, and it must be restored.

—Evan R Jones, Kalamazoo, MI

FUCK THE GOVERNMENT IN PARTULAR.

—Marko Ivanovic, ,

FUCK U gimme my internet thnx

Remember: Even you will be adversely affected if you allow the monopolies to take control of the Internet.

—William Thornton, Irvine, CA

Please take back our internet rights! We need our small businesses to be able to succeed, without net neutrality they may not be able to!

—Ashley Whitman, Stamford, CT

Is there really any such thing as a Free (facts only) Press?

—Ralph Johnston, White Lake, MI

Restore the internet back to what it was (NET NEUTRALITY) before it is destroyed by big business!

—James E Hall, Bloomington, IL

Go Neutrality!

—Karl-Anton Svensson, ,

So much off the growth and innovation that has happened in the past two decades is the result of the open nature of the internet. Please take action. It's so important. Also this issue is a voting issue for me.

—Matt Freeland, Falls Church, VA

This is ridiculous, restore neutrality!!

—Whitney Banker, Canaan, NH

Why is it that somebody always has to get rich off of any enjoyment we have. I swore there would never be pay TV and look at us now!

—Michele Cardillo, Sonoita, AZ

Justice is a gift for humanity, not corporations.

—William B Barsan, Astoria, NY

FCC - Please get a spine and DO THE RIGHT THING for ALL CITIZENS, not just Verizon, AT&T, etc. You can fix this very simply and easily with a change of classification.

—Cindy Yoe, Prince Frederick, MD

our future depends on honest, open government service. Please don't sell out to the big money corporations. Keep the internet open to fair competition. Net Neutrality for all people.

—Michael Crisafulli Jr, Saint Bonaventure, NY

I am a web developer and these laws will destroy innovation and cut out all competition, leaving us with more expensive service and out-of-date websites.

—Nicholas Napier, Pittsburgh, PA

A neutral internet is essential continuing innovation, economic health, and freedom of expression. The "service" provided by the telecommunication monopolies is already needlessly inferior to that enjoyed by other nations. Allowing these corporations to control what content we are and are not allowed to access would only further hinder growth in the United States.

—Timothy D. Abbe, Lakebay, WA once again the conservative courts of ruled against the people , what a shock

—Richard, Glenview, IL

STOP

—Monica, Columbus, OH

Come on, you know it's the right thing to do, do it!

—Gay Jarvinen, Chiloquin, OR

Sup...

—Mike, Valley Stream, NY

This should stay just how it is.

—Nikke Seppänen, ,

Restore Net Neutrality, Please!

—Cory Spitzer, Brattleboro, VT

We need Net Neutrality because we need access to information, free information. The internet is for all to use, not for whoever has money. We already have to pay for internet.

—Vanessa Mendoza, Los Angeles, CA

The internet should be open because it is a form of freedom of speech.

—Justin Carstarphen, Atlanta, GA

THEY ALREADY CONTROL EVERYTHING ELSE!

—Rita Lachmansingh, Chicago, IL

This not china!!!!!! You bust Tommy Chong for water pipe distribution which he did not ship or touch in any way and now taking away Our internet!!!!???? Might as well call you AOL!

—Ernie Estrada, San Antonio, TX

why would you do this :(

—Mark Barnett, ,

This is crazy!

—Slavi Hristozov, Skokie, IL

This is in the same vain as planned obsolescence. Slowing down websites and limiting users access to the web is motivated by greed and is not in the best interest of the customer. The internet is too powerful of a tool to start adding arbitrary restrictions to it. Rejecting Net Neutrality in hopes of gaining more money is short sighted, and will ultimately hurt society.

—Jeffrey Brown, Fort Worth, TX

I thought we were against, as humanity, taking away freedom.

—Jasper Roff, ,

Please don't allow illegal monopolies such as Comcast to further gouge their customers and control the internet as they see fit. Thank you.

Devin Close

—Devin Close, Portland, OR

Please start treating broadband like a communications service, and to restore Net Neutrality rules.

—Kristine, Holbrook, NY

For a country all about freedom, this is an incredibly stupid move, as it merely increases the lack of freedoms citizens hold.

—Colleen Campbell, Northampton, MA

Humanity holds you accountable.

—Carlos, ,

The geeks of the world are watching. Your names will go down in infamy as the people who led the holocaust on the internet. Plus, feeding oligopolies always leads to significantly less growth.

—William Davern, Shoreview, MN

Don't take our last freedom away.

—Tiffany, Aliso Viejo, CA

Fix this!

—Scott Garbelman, Woodbridge, VA

Do not let corporations push out the little guy... we will all fail if this passes.

—Heather Shirin Neff, Mills River, NC

It's not enough to actually pay for the internet already? Just how deep are companies' pockets going to go if they're that desperate to bleed their customers dry? This is nothing but greed, pure and simple.

—Sarah Miles, Columbia, SC

Restore Net Neutrality!

—Suman, ,

Stand up to lobbyists and listen to the people!

—Laurel Holmstrom-Keyes, Cloverdale, CA

Internet neutrality is crucial to a free flow of information and to our nation's economic future on a world scale.

—Martin Kascewicz, Fifiield, WI

This is really really stupid

—Caelin, ,

Please remove earlier lobbyists from the commission, because it is also threatening the neutrality of the organation. Thank you

—Rahul, ,

Please don't kill net neutrality. That is all.

—Jessica, Lehigh Acres, FL

The World Wide Web has been defined by the freedom of communication and that access to all public websites is technically unrestricted. It's morally wrong to change that and ISP providers have no right to do so.

—Mary OCallaghan, ,

Every internet provider has different packages for data speeds and data limits. There claim to needing to remove net neutrality is false.

—Mr. Zachary Ewaniuk, Laguna Hills, CA

Please take action on this immediately.

—Daniel Lieberman, Shelburne Falls, MA

Please reclassify broadband Internet access as a telecommunications service.

—Jamie Stevens, Oconomowoc, WI

WHY IS THIS HAPPENING. WHERE IS NET NEUTRALITY. THIS IS A FUCKING OUTRAGE.

—Ashton O'Neil, Beaverton, OR

This is terrible for individuals and small businesses. What made the Web great is that content and services are not controlled by corporations.

Please don't let CEOs put a price tag on free speech!

—Patricia Voigt, New Orleans, LA

Reinstate net neutrality or else you're dooming us to a 1984-styled future.

—Blair Ballard, Kelseyville, CA

Give us our free internet!

—Aleksander Jenssen, ,

Do NOT protect the greedy corporations! PROTECT US!

—Patricia McHUGH, SAINT LOUIS, MO

This will probably only lower traffic to websites not increase it.

—Rachel Simmons, Taylors, SC

The American public OVERWHELMINGLY supports a neutral Internet. Please do not let big corporations strong-arm you into doing what is in their biased favor. Do the right thing and fix this.

—Heather Ebert, Franklin, TN

Disrupting Net neutrality Undermines the first Amendment. Letting ISPs decide what is and what is an obstruction of these rights of the people.

—Brian Kass, Baldwinsville, NY

The internet is like a giant, visual telephone. I do not believe we should be limited access to any website based on whether that website "payed extra." It needs to be protected the same way telephone calls are.

—Kaitlan Cavanaugh, Toledo, OH

THIS IS ABUSING OUR GIVEN RIGHTS!

—Sameer Hussain, , give us free dark neutral infrastructure for fiber optics & rst cities

—Leslie jack, Elgin, IL

I believe in freedom, and civil rights.

—Allen M Richmond, Tempe, AZ

Save the internet!

—Matthew MacDonald, Los Angeles, CA

The United States communication infrastructure is dependent on free and unbridled use of the internet. Broadband internet MUST be reclassified to ensure this as well as the rights of citizens over conglomerates. The FCC has taken action in the past to ensure the rights of customers and must do so once again.

—Jacqueline Edwards, Sun City, AZ

fcc pls

—Guy Ohana, New York, NY

Please do something so that the internet doesn't look like cable television. I want to be able to access any website I want and not have my access to it throttled by an ISP.

—Scott Lawrence, Bakersfield, CA

Protect our 1st amendment from those trying to push an agenda that may hurt the country more than better.

—Benjamin Robinson, Newark, DE

We need neutrality back on the net.

—Ria Edens, Harker Heights, TX

Do you WANT us to be like China? Blocking a website because it MIGHT be against the goverment!?

—Matt Tillman, Berthoud, CO

Although you likely discount views from internet users outside of the USA, the regulations set by the FCC and other US Government agencies have a significant impact on policies adopted by other countries.

—Michael Warner, ,

Please protect network neutrality.

—Robert Reinsel, Fairfax, VA

As a college student, it is vital that I have access to the vast amount of knowledge the internet possesses. This will hinder my education, either by limiting the amount of knowledge I have access to, or through increased tuition prices to cover the access fees these new structures will create. That cannot happen. The beauty of the internet is that I can learn from and converse with people of all different backgrounds all around the world. I won't find that in my college library. Please take action so I can continue learning.

—Emily Ische, Cedarburg, WI

This literally destroys the first amendment rights of Freedom of the Press and Freedom of Speech

—Patrick Devereux, Berwyn, IL

Why should i have to fight to keep my privacy? Actions like this are disrespectful.

—Alexis, ,

So many people make their living from home based jobs that require a consistent and quality internet service. With this change, it's possible all these people could be in serious jeopardy of losing their livelihood if their isps decide to make certain changes.

—Chris James, San Jose, CA

This is an abomination.

—Daizy Salyers, Shelbyville, IN

ugh this is bullshit

—Emylee Lucas, Mesquite, TX

The internet is a sovereign nation. Led by the people. What better form if demicracy is there?

—Erik Jeny, ,

The internet is more accessible than TV or radio or newspaper access, often determined by location. Time Warner Cable blocked the RT channel without warning although it continued to be listed on the "channel line up" for channels paid for. I contacted Time Warner and was told that the channel was available on the internet. Many websites are available online that are associated with criminal activity and hate crimes, but even in violating civil liberties and human rights with the defense of national security, the US has supported universal and affordable Internet access. There are already inequalities to better without threatening an either Private Business controlled and/or State controlled Internet. The possibility of pricing structures will effect libraries, schools, healthcare, software accessible through websites, personal blogs, applications of all sorts, and bill- pays, and create conflicts of interest that will lead to action on the Court's part later on to a greater extent and expense to protect the balance of the scales that has arguably been checked, however misguidedly and in reference to their bad role model of US government agencies, like the NSA's, own intrusive behavior (involving their own government contractors, like BAH, who are abusing the service providers and profiting). Thank you, FCC, for your time and attention to protecting every man's and woman's chance at communication using the nation's basic infrastructure of the Internet that is currently not completely failing or inevitably in need of repair. The FCC can also protect itself by making it's business the protection of the freedom, and distancing the FCC from the destruction of freedom.

Thank you for your time and attention. Sincerely, Amie St.Amour

—Amie St.Amour, Liverpool, NY

We already pay for optional per-site subscription services like deviantART's Premium Membership. We already pay to get a set number of channels on our TV. Not everyone can afford it, some are just barely affording internet costs as it is. Don't let the internet as a whole become a subscription service.

—Michael Miller, Davenport, FL because it isn't fair

—Katie, ,

Net neutrality is of utmost importance. We NEED net neutrality.

—Sean Burton, Oklahoma City, OK

What is wrong with you! Do not discriminate websites and make them pay to be in the network. Money hungry Dead beats is what they are. How would schools connect with their teachers if they cannot even access a website. How would we study or read free books off the internet such as Frederick Douglass?? Where would students get information from websites if they cannot get the money. This is the worse idea ever to come. Continue Net Neutrality terms!!!

—Ernesto Martinez, Newport Beach, CA

I used to think this kind of thing would never effect me but ever since last month Comcast has been charging me 10x my bandwidth just for using torrents.

—Waldemar Barrios, Lithia Springs, GA

I will not vote for any official who supports this. Period.

—Justin Borders, Los Angeles, CA

Keep the internet open, everyone uses it, and to change its meaning would be to take it away, and would be awful and strange.

—Tim Soikie, ,

Why do people continue to think up these IDIOTIC things? You think they would have learned by now

Net Neutrality was a major factor to keeping the internet a safe area for everyone to share and spread information and keep us in a world of boundless limitations. Without it, we may end up going into circumstances that are in the third world, in which censorship is heavily placed on all material and the suppression of the people's thoughts and actions may change to suppress those who would place these heavy restrictions upon them.

—Wahab Quazi, Valley Stream, NY

you dun goofed.

—Kaine Crampton, Newark, OH

Don't limit my access to the Internet. After all that's why it is called the Worldwide Web

—Betty Harrell, Temple Hills, MD

This nation was founded on the principles of free speech -- Benjamin Franklin would espouse a free and open Internet as well!

—William Anton Rohm, Portland, OR

This is an outrage, the net is a free place for all to share information to. It is owned by no one, and should have no laws made against it.
—Jim Ream, Westfield, IA

Internet companies should not be allowed to throttle or not allow certain network communications if the customer does not pay for a certain tier of internet, or simply because the service the customer might be using may in conflict with a alternative service that the ISP may offer. If someone is purchasing internet, they should be receiving the whole internet. Not some censored or tampered portions of the internet.
—Oliver Narragansett, Boston, MA

Repealing this act is one of the largest failures of legislation I have ever seen, and I do not say that with any exaggeration. The internet is one of the last bastions of freedom this country still holds. The quintessential human need to communicate must be upheld, as there is a reason our forefathers made this the #1 priority in granting inalienable rights. Does a corporation whose primary interest is in creating a profit for shareholders have any obligation to maintain free speech? If it comes down to turning short term profit vs potentially restricting freedom, as it is their fiduciary responsibility to act as such.
—Scott Kaplan, half moon bay, CA

EVERY site on the web must cost the same!!
—Mr. Michael Paulsmeyer, Seattle, WA

The Internet is the last best hope for democracy to flourish. Keep it open to all.
—Faye Steuer, Mount Pleasant, SC

No corporation in history has ever demonstrated the ability to remain impartial to profits.
—Loo Choo Khong, ,

It is completely outrageous that a few humanoids with ideas above their station should take it upon themselves and make decisions about us and our world and our private lives - as if they owned the planet!!! Serious cases of God Complex - need urgent psychiatric treatment/intervention.
—T Bolton, Durham,

If there's one cause I'm ultra passionate about, it's having a free internet and the knowledge that I'll be able to shop where I want to shop, research where I want to research, access the media I love, and continue to connect with old and new friends on whatever social media platform they choose to make their home on. Internet access is already expensive enough. Please don't allow ISPs to interfere with our lives in this way.
—Nichole Chisholm, Madison, WI

Please protect our freedom to see any and all information that is available! It's the best way for our nation to grow in the right direction and not just what big business / money dictates! Thank you!
—James Velarde, Colorado Springs, CO

Don't let the internet go the way of TV, where what was once 'free' and programming was fairly decent, to what we now have to pay an arm and a leg for (and exactly why are we paying $80/mo to watch sluts and rednecks behave abominably in short intervals between commercials repeated ad nauseum?). Long live net neutrality!
—Myra Emmons, Greenville, NH

Please do not do this mistake and make everything right. This is telecommunications service!

The end of democracy and the defeat of the American Revolution will occur when government falls into the hands of lending institutions and moneyed incorporations... Thomas Jefferson

—Dave Coffman, Auburn, CA

Tom, it's not likely you'll read this. I unfortunately do not have the same intellectual capacity other people do to type something extremely eloquent regarding the state of the internet. The very least I can say is that, as an always unappreciated kid of Generation Y, I marveled as the internet grew from dial-up to what it is today... or was, certainly not at this point. Suffice it to say, I am rather saddened. You can't honestly expect us to step into the throes of George Orwell's 1984. At the very least, I had thought we were the proles who were well taken care of. I don't know what we are now.

—Sir Marlow, Draper, UT

Having life's necessities alone is difficult on a family. Americans pay way more than Britains for cell phones. We pay way more for our medication than the Canadians from the same company. Stand up for us and stop all these charges that will hurt the average American and increase the wealth for companies that don't need it. Help you citizens in an area that only you can! This will hurt education in America as well. Do the right thing.

—Tommie Griffis, Rome, GA

—Corey Moore, Greensboro, NC

Listen to the people, and the corporations are not the people that I'm talking about. We need to have a neutral response, no matter from whom it comes.

—Stephen Spofford, Seattle, WA

I believe that allowing anyone to restrict someone's access to any part of the internet goes against the constitution and the human right to communication in general. The internet (spanning social websites, forums, etc) plays a critical role in our right to free speech in the USA. Thus allowing ISPs to charge fees and setup tollbooths is metaphorically the same as allowing them to charge us for speaking our mind, and speaking with others.

—Miss Kasandra Kelley, Phoenix, AZ

The internet needs to be free as it connects all.

—Gurjiv Dhami, ,

it's not right, broadband service providers are a communications service, something that provides communication NOT the INTERNET or INFORMATION. it needs to be acted upon.

Dafuq? Bring back net neutrality.

—Adam Savard, Canaan, VT

Our tax dollars paid for the infrastructure that these companies use, let's please keep it fair for all of us. People are fed up with big money bullying their way and creating laws whose sole purposes are to gain huge profits, at the expense of fairness for everyone.

Please please don't break the internet.
—Thomas Beutler, Tuscaloosa, AL

I DON'T WANT some Cable or Phone company, located hundreds of miles away from me, deciding FOR ME what I choose to read, see, hear, and what I'm allowed to say, online!!! I WANT Network Neutrality made the law of the land...for good!!!!
—Mr. Dean Bodholdt, Storm Lake, IA

We don't live in a dictatorship country. So why should our government dictate what we view. Thank you
—Juan Hernandez, San Bernardino, CA

This is basically declaring a war against the entire world no man can't own the internet especially a group the internet is like the last thing of true freedom for the people taking control of it is like making everyone a slave and must do what they say or else this is goverment corruption at is finest.
—Orlando, Camuy, PR

Other governments in the world have censored the INTERNET. Why are the POWERS THAT BE afraid? Do they want to enslave mankind?
—Imogene Yozzo, Baytown, TX

Net Neutrality must be protected!
—David Martin, Tucson, AZ

Freedom!
—Ted Bloom, Brooklyn, NY

The Internet can be terrible at times, but we love it how it is just the same. Forcing sites or users to pay fees for access to different sections simply places all the power and ability to learn and grow from contact with others in the hands of those with money. Ending Net Neutrality is a form of censorship, and class warfare.

—Laura Sharp, Annapolis, MD

The internet is meant to be free.

—Matthew Foster, Spartanburg, SC

The argument that such regulations are not necessary because consumers have access to alternatives, is simply a fallacy. There is a massive population of consumers who only have access to one major internet service provider, and ISP companies will surely abuse this fact to their greatest benefit. The neutral and open internet we have enjoyed the past few years is possible one of the greatest inventions of human history, and is a beautiful experiment in global free information. The internet has undeniably been the most powerful shaping force of the world's global culture, and it needs to be protected from exploitation.

—Ben Cook, Minnetonka, MN

YOU BIG DUMMIES!

—Matthew Smith, District Heights, MD

Its bad enough that deals between Frontier and Yahoo are providing the shittiest email functionality known to customers, now they get to deliver the garbage faster? I guess that enables the NSA to do more of their dirty work faster, and normal quality connectivity and services that a customer chooses (i.e. freedom of choice) to use, could be negatively and purposely prioritized to lower quality of service. Will we still maintain the ability to log and show poor performance for providers who fail to at least deliver on the speeds promised, regardless of their endpoint.

—Brian Poissant, Mukilteo, WA

Aren't there laws against establishing monopolies?

—McKenzie Stevens, Bremerton, WA

The future of media is over the internet, not another means like cable. Cable companies are fighting tooth and nail to keep the rights they currently own to most TV content, but as soon as they relinquish their monopoly, TV and video content will move toward more efficient and cost effective broadband internet. Please help our media infrastructure progress into a more efficient future!

—Jeremiah Smith, Columbus, OH

I only discovered things about myself and the people I care about because I could meet with them on a plethora of sites and online games, such as Steam and Skype, and I certainly stand against any action that would make it possible for either service or services similar to be shut down because the ISP decides they feel like it.

—Andrew Ryan Edwin Aurs, Henderson, NV

Internet must be a free thing it can not be that some big concerns do what ever they want to the customers no restrictions nothing thx and greetings from germany

—Sascha Bergmann, ,

Is the American people being aware of bills and legislature like this being made by the government? And how?

—Felix batista, Quantico, VA

Net neutrality.

—Melvin Gutierrez, Carbondale, IL

I don't care if I'm not from the US. If this happens in the US, it can happen to THE REST OF THE WORLD!!! This has got to stop!!!

—David Robertson, ,

Now I know why I am having problems online. I use Verizon. They should have no say or control what we do in our private time or anytime for that matter!!

—Brandy Wine, McAdoo, PA yo i aint go no money

—Andrea Berr, Palmdale, CA

There's more important things to be doing than killing net neutrality!

—Rebecca Maier, Carmichael, CA

This must be a high priority item on your agenda.

—Carl Nye, Jerome, AZ

Please give us back net neutrality

—Mario Corro, Valhalla, NY

It's a no-brainer.

—Hannah Culbert, Minneapolis, MN

The Internet is here to freely share information, to help us and to share. It should be open, and take no sides or be controlled by any one party. Any efforts to stymie its growth or to hinder access to the global Internet should be examined closely and likely overturned and prevented.

—Jordan Spalding, Glendale, AZ

Someone step up. I would if I could!

—Kyle Kees, West Monroe, LA

This is so wrong. We must save the internet!

—, Palo Alto, CA

Free access to internet is the future for our democracy. To allow providers to discriminate who gets priority is akin to interfering with our right to a free press.

—Jonathan Neal, Oklahoma City, OK

—Jake Laton, ,

Net neutrality is important to all Americans. Please restore it, so that we can keep the internet free for everyone!

—virginia Karwel, Dresher, PA yeah!

—Ivan, Huntington Park, CA

Seriously, we need net neutrality.

—Elizabeth Lukjanczuk, Erie, PA

This is what happens when greed overpowers the right of mankind!

—Marc, ,

TAKE BACK THE INTERNET

—Fredrik Lindell, ,

It MUST be the Peoples' Internet for freedom to ring out! You MUST NOT ALLOW the Corporations to obtain full control of this precious communication resource!!!

—Janet Smythe, Olmsted Falls, OH

I'm an American citizen.

—Dan Bazuin, ,

To have true freedom and democracy we need to have a free flow of information, unedited or regulated.

—Michele Miller, SLC, UT

Good lord, slow internet is frustrating, yes? So read the law correctly and lets pretend this never happened, okay?

—Seakiu, Woodinville, WA

Customers have very little buying power when the ISP market is noncompetitive and of low quality. Giving ISP's more power to limit data to third party services sets the progress of technology and access to that technology back 10 years.

—Jarrett Napier, Beaverton, OR

This is a very important matter that requires your immediate attention, if the people are to have any chance of an open internet. We already pay for our internet service, we should not have to be subject to mass media commercial programming that we don't want. It is bad enough that we have to put up with commercials on You Tube, I can't imagine what it will be like if you let the major corporations take control of the internet. Please take action now to resolve this important issue and restore our right to free press.

—Forrest Pechak, Boulder, CO

RESTORE NET NEUTRALITY

—Olivia Hughes, Westlake Village, CA

Don't let corporations have more power over citizens than they already do!

—Tyler Breier, Seattle, WA

This is a basic human rights issue, and an issue of freedom of the press.

—Anthony North, Seattle, WA

This is just another blow to the free access to internet that the American people deserve. Restore Net Neutrality now!

—Joshua Quinn, Saint Paul, MN

The internet is THE ONLY PLACE for me to make friends who share the same interests ad I have and to enjoy overseas shows and fiction that will MOST LIKELY NEVER be released in New Zealand, Please bring back Net Neutrality.

—Ceara Morton, ,

fuck off

—Ryan Schwab, Cincinnati, OH

We will not stand for the destruction of our open internet. Children like myself - a first generation immigrant from a very low income family will allow you to build a bigger barrier to the access and extend the digital divide. It is in everyone's best interest to uphold net neutrality and we will fight for this to the end.

—Martina Ramirez, Chicago, IL

This shouldn't even be a matter of discussion. The internet should not be treated like cable television. This is an action that hurts small businesses and individuals, like myself, who have (or will have) resumes online. If the internet provider restricts the sites I can access, whose to say I will still be able to access vital sites in the future? Please, reconsider this decision. Thank you.

—Samantha Compton, Maryville, MO

The idea that service providers can block content from their users for no other reason than because they can is absurd. Why are we taking a step back? The passing of this ruling in America leads the way for other countries to do the same - what happens to people like me, self employed people and small business owners, if we cannot reach our audience because our blogs, personal websites, and other methods of online advertising and selling are blocked? It would have a devastating effect on my income and is simply UNFAIR.

—Gemma Marsh, ,

This is absurd. I request you use your better judgement and cognitive skills to realize the foley of this decision. Americans are awake and watching. Will you be for us or against us?

—Seth Russi, Boise, ID

How can some families keep up with others when they can't afford Facebook or their email websites? This is ridiculous and unnecessary. If companies allow this, what's the point in paying for internet at all? I certainly would rather not have internet at all.

—Morgan Gee, Palmyra, PA

You cant stop the internet.

—Skyler, Grand Junction, CO

no company should have the legal power to limit an individuals freedom of choice. We are paying for the services and to be limited on what we can or can not partake in is a severe injustice to our personal freedoms. This action is unconstitutional, plain and simple

—Pepper Herzberger, Summerfield, FL

I would like to see an internet with a code of ethics like our postal service

—Eric Payne, Corpus Christi, TX

I expect to be able to reach important services freely regardless of which ISP I am doing business with.

—David Trampe, South Saint Paul, MN

Everyone should be equal on the net!

—Caren Ostrowski, Lexington, KY

let this not happen!! you can change the future!

—Robin Vanden Ecker, , without open internet at all why bother going on? keep it open

—Paul Horton, Schenectady, NY

It angers me that they didn't listen to the first one of these we did when they were threatening to do so and hadn't yet. I hope that this gains signatures quickly so that congress realizes how unfair this policy is-- especially to small online businesses that NEED internet freedom to survive!

—Kaitlyn Rose Wrhel, Lawrenceville, GA

Don't let shit like this happen.

—Freddy Cameron, Orange, CA

literally stop

—Florence Finch, ,

FCC RESTORE NET NEUTRALITY IMMEDIATELY!!! REPRESENT THE PEOPLE< NOT THE CORPORTATIONS!!

—George Coffey, Chicago, IL

Protect the internet from exceedingly large corporate interest!

—Brittany Beavers, Winter Park, FL

What a bad decision.

—Scott Siegel, Pikesville, MD

Restore Net Neutrality Rules!

—Robin, Jamaica Plain, MA

The internet is not property to be sold to big business. If net neutrality is dead, small businesses will suffer. Our economy will suffer. Show that you give a crap about people and not corporations! Give us Net Neutrality back!

—Katherine Taylor, New Windsor, NY

The Internet must remain open and un-restricted for the full expression of First Amendment rights.

—Dewey Casaburi, Baton Rouge, LA

Bring back net neutrality! Freedom of information should trump big business greed!

—Richard Oesterling, Chicora, PA

no one should have the right to block you from viewing a web site or hinder access (slowing down or speeding up) Regards, Jim

—Jim Moses, Imlay City, MI

This is IMPORTANT. Big media companies are taking over this country, we need to stop it at the internet.

—Hope Richardson, Lutherville Timonium, MD

Maybe broadband connections should be provided independently of content providers. What is the true cost of the connection without forcing anyone into "bundling"?

—John Howard Grace, Jefferson, WI

stop, everyone already hates the USA and Verizon, stop making it worse.

—Samantha Williams, Old Bridge, NJ

I should have the right to go any where I want, do anything I want as a free citizen of the USA.

—John Pecore, Saint Petersburg, FL

This issue is not simply a matter of the FCC "overstepping its boundaries," the decision by the court to rule in favor of anything other than a free and open Web is inherently a decision to allow politics and capitalism to infringe on the free and open flow of ideas between people that has already accounted for so much personal and communal growth and development.

—John Goggins Nalls Jr, Bethesda, MD

The free market solves a lot of problems. However, Internet service is becoming the sole link that many have to the outside world. That link is often controlled by just one company in a given area. This gives the monopolistic company too much control over what is seen and not seen. This is just where the government should step in to ensure the free flow of speech, even if it is speech that someone might not like.

—Matt Brown, Hillsborough, NC

YOU SHOULD NOT TAKE AWAY FREEDOM OF CHOICE!

—Walter Bohlin, Rincon, GA

Its ridiculous that things have even gone this far.

—Nathan Kimmerle, Sewickley, PA

The internet is our future and by supporting legislation which allows companies to restrict it in any way you are restricting human progress. This is a dangerous route that needs to be stopped now before large companies have complete control over the internet, and in effect a large portion of human communication. I've no doubt that this will soon lead to first amendment violations.

—Carly Overbay, Nashville, TN

The loss of net neutrality could have very negative implications for those families who lack the financial resources to continue accessing the Internet, most notably, the children.

—Joseph Duquette, Lakeland, FL

Just imagine that a city that does not agree with a particular newspapers opinion decided that they cannot deliver the newspaper in your city.

—Tom DiGregorio, Midway City, CA

I wouldn't want the postal service deciding what mail I can and cannot receive either. I consider the strike down of Net Neutrality to be a violation of my personal right of free choice.

—Denny Richards, Youngsville, NC

net neutrality must be restored!

—Frank Portwood, Portland, OR

If net neutrality is not restored, civil unrest will be at hand.

—Richard Taylor Lindsey, Dallas, GA

stop your shit

—Matthew, ,

A company should not decide what site I go on. This will cause issues as i am a college student who might not be able to do research for college courses.

—meghan August, Rochester, NY

The internet should be free and no company should be able to charge to access the various sites. Please keep the internet from being manipulated by large corporations. Thanks for your attention to this matter.

—Charlie Troy, Philadelphia, PA

For once, let's have a government office DO ITS JOB!!!!

—Neal Brown, Fort Wayne, IN open information access is one of the cornerstones of basic human rights

—Mark Robinson, Kingston, MA

This isn't an option for the FCC it is a right of the american people.

—Mark Rainwater, Hanahan, SC

This is a communications network that needs to remain open without sensorship.

—Charles Still, Mead, CO

Keep the net open and free

—Barney Wadley, Dayton, NV

fuck up

—Brandon Caldwell, Wesley Chapel, FL

Don't cave to the crushing corporate lobbyists and please look out for the interests of the people! Net neutrality needs to be established as a law and the FCC needs to look out for the public interest!

—Daniel Wright, Derby, CT

The desire, or expectation, is that I pay for an open, unrestricted connection to the net. Nothing more. Nothing less. I only have one broadband provider available to me, so there is no so-called "choice". Fix this.

—David DeFusco, Mickleton, NJ

no

—Ji Young Park, ,

Net neutrality is the single most important concept in the free world.

—James Gass, Dunedin, FL

Please protect our freedom to an open and free information stream. This is a fundamental reason for the FCCs existence.

—Wendy Dodd, Cambridge, MA

For once, stand for the 300+ million citizens of this nation who cannot afford to buy your influence and give a cold shoulder to corporate lobbying interests. We need you to work for us for a change.

—Joe Kirschling, Madison, WI

The internet fuels innovation like nothing else, and corporations already have too much power. PLEASE, for the good of us all, restore net neutrality.

—Jared Anderson, Salt Lake City, UT

I support Net Neutrality.
—Rudy Vital, Marysville, WA cease & desist with you communist efforts to allow internet providers to control my internet usage.

—Glenn Adams, Farmingdale, NY

Letting ISPs control which sites are available is not a good idea. they are already granted virtual monopolies in geographical areas.
—John Allman, Green Bay, WI

Grow a pair and fix this.
—Larry A. Joens, Rock Island, IL

Big corp's have too much power to control our information. Do something NOW. Remember 'Ma Bell'? not much difference here.
—Rod Collin, Saline, MI

The absence of Net Neutrality will hamper innovation and reduce competition. This will hurt all consumers in the long run. The federal government has the power to control and the responsibility to promote interstate commerce.
—Chris Janonis, Arlington Heights, IL

It's time for the new FCC leadership to correct the agency's past mistakes and to reassert the agency's clear authority over our nation's communications infrastructure. To preserve the open Internet, the FCC must reclassify broadband Internet access as a telecommunications service.
—Kervyn Dimney, PEYTON, CO

Please don't add any more taxes or fees.
—Steve Petruska, Pompton Lakes, NJ

Please give us back our internet
—Sidney Nichols, Woodruff, SC

The ISP should not restrict access or content, unless unlawful.
—Al Bowers, Pittsburgh, PA

our internet shouldnt be controlled the way they want. This is crazy, As a software engineer I need all access not just limited
—Tiffany Blair, Evans, CO

The internet has always been a free space, where corporate greed has held little sway. Charging extra for access to information, or to entertainment, is wrong - it was wrong on cable, it is most certainly wrong on the internet. Please reconsider.
—Ashley Griffin, Amesbury, MA

freedom is an right of all Americans
—Terry Moore, Holly Springs, NC

Use this opportunity to make it better! Stronger! Net Neutrality, go!
—Melissa Mayhew, Orem, UT

There can be only Net Neutrality!

—John Tyler, Rolla, MO

The internet belongs to the people. Special interest groups push us all around enough as it is, and now they're after our free port of communication. They're not interested in sharing this amazing gift. They are the schoolyard bully breaking our pencils and ripping our papers. They are the groomed, spoiled, arrogant nobodies hiding behind worthless money. The internet is inseparable from the generations for whom we've built it, and the world of communication and business would be crippled by this arbitrary, self-centered tolling system. Please, for the sake of the Information Age, maintain our net neutrality.

—Thomas McDowell, Eugene, OR

The open internet should remain free to the public and anyone who tries to disrupt it should be fined heavily and restrict their business from operations.

—Charles Willis, Yellville, AR

Nope.

—Riikka Marttila, ,

Please support net neutrality!

—Matt Stern, Williams, OR

Seriously... don't let this happen.

—Alex Studenroth, Austin, TX

This is a must. Rules should apply such that they cannot explicitly slow down certain sites either. If I want to restrict what is available in my home, then an extra fee can be charged, but let it be something that the individual has control of.

—, Grand Rapids, MI

Keep the Internet free.

—John P Goffredo, Bangor, PA

Restore neutrality now.

—David Burns, Cumming, GA

If the internet becomes a problem I will have to just do something different.

—Lou Robinson, Los Angeles, CA

Keep the internet neutral

—Mary Ellen Jones, Decatur, GA

Our internet services are behind the times as it is. A thing like this could kill it entirely.

—Sidney Laurent, Jacksonville, AR

The internet should be treated as an extension of our society: A free and open forum. We don't want to end up like China or North Korea now, do we? I'm quite sure the American people will not stand for it.

—Nemo Steele, Boyds, MD

Enough regulations already!

—John Toyne, Laurinburg, NC

The core of Internet functionality needs to remain open. If companies are able to choose which content or type of content should, should not or should be slowed down, we will lose the democracy that is important online. This will lead to a new, second internet, with a charter to allow all traffic to flow freely. This second set of infrastructure is completely unnecessary! If the ISPs need to charge more, to keep systems up and maintained, that is a part of our partially capitalist economy. Don't allow them to block or slow specific traffic! Keep the internet free!
—Sharon Finden, Seattle, WA

Let's make a difference by keeping the internet open and accessible.
—Perry Lachner, McKinney, TX

The freedom of the internet is the best thing about it, otherwise we might as well be watching the tele!
—Janet Morgan, Brooklyn, NY

Free and Open Internet for all.
—L A Rose, Grand Rapids, MI

Now that we've all been forced to accept computer technology and the internet as a way of life it must always remain free and open and not an engine of social control. We have had enough of social engineering and unconstitutional invasions of privacy.
—John Albert Yurek, New York, NY

Are you going to wake up eventually ???
—Bernt Vongrabe, Daytona Beach, FL

I demand net neutrality!!!
—Elisandro Barajas, Petaluma, CA

You have no right to take our rights away from us, government. Don't expect there to be another peaceful organization like the framers to stop you, the time of peaceful organization will be over if you continue on your path to total domination.
—Steven Koranek, San Marcos, CA

Net Neutrality is critical to the freedoms of this country. This ruling is taking the United States towards the dictatorial characteristic of China. This is not good for the United States and the Freedoms for which it stands.
—Glen C. Grenier, Ray, MI

Don't be "just another politician"! Take action!
—Allen Berry, Waynesboro, PA

Keep broadband networks open, accessible, reliable and affordable for everyone!
—Margie MacDonald, Waynesville, NC

This is another step towards socialism. This is un-American and wrong.
—Bryan Butsch, Milford, OH

At no time in the United States should a bureaucratic bully be able to tell someone what they can see, feel or touch. I'm my own person with moral and values taught to me by those who raised me. I have the right to choose what my eyes and mind want to see. The FCC should spend more time watching the illegal actions of other government agencies instead of worrying about what the true owners of the this country the citizens are doing with information. I wish I had more time to devote to stopping things of this nature but I'm too busy working and paying taxes which pay these idiots salaries.

—Joseph W Brogan, Havertown, PA

dnt u do dis shit mang

—Dylan Robert Thompson, Cary, NC

A former lobbyist as head of the FCC also needs to be challenged! Protect the internet, not special interests, and keep broadband networks open and affordable.

—Andrea Castillo, Oakland, CA

I love the ability to use the Internet freely for work and pleasure. It is greedy and ridiculous to want to take our freedoms away.

—Ms. Shea Maynard, Prestonsburg, KY

They are persistent. We can be persistent.

—Lynn Allen, Bellingham, WA

Freedom of speech is in grave danger. This is one more cut...

—Tim Swanson, La Grange, MO

INTERNET EQUALITY FOR ALL!

—Matthew B. Loui, denver, CO

The threat from Companies like Verizon or other ISP are real they now have the capability of denial of information. Which is suppression of free speech.

—Scott Jorgensen, Olathe, CO

American's First and foremost Right is the free access to Information, and the Right to Freedom of Expression. You do not have a right to limit what I can, or cannot access Online. It is Unconstitutional to limit my right to free access of information.

—Hubert Aguilar, Pompano Beach, FL

Free press is an absolute necessity in a free nation!

—Justin Cook, Idaho Springs, CO

Why must we keep letting corporations get the better of us? The Internet is the great forum of our day, and to allow corporations to control it completely robs it of all of its value as a communications medium.

—Robert Collier, Jacksonville, FL

If we don't take care of what we have we will loose it all.

—Stephen T Cyran, Rochester, NY

please don't ruin the one good thing left in this world

—Everyone Everywhere, El Paso, TX

The FCC used to have some power. What happened to it? Why aren't you acting for the interests of the American people instead of the American entertainment industry and its delivery system?

—Donna Hungerford, Quincy, CA

Restore liberty

—Colin McLaurine, Charleston, TN

Here are the FCC's Open Internet rules, which state: No Unreasonable Discrimination: Fixed broadband providers may not unreasonably discriminate in transmitting lawful network traffic over a consumer's broadband Internet access service. The no blocking and no unreasonable discrimination rules are subject to limited exceptions for "reasonable network management."

—Shea Sage, Accord, NY

I don't use the internet as often as some but when I do decide to turn my system on, I don't want to be directed to any other site than the one I initially chose.

—Debbie McIntosh, Stockbridge, GA

Please keep the Internet from being turned into a corporatist nightmare that does not serve the people and is not accountable to the people.

—Gregory Pyatt, Huntington Beach, CA

Corporations are already destroying our freedoms one by one. the free and open internet is the one remaining arena where the average Joe at least has somewhat equal footing to powerful corporations. Please take the steps necessary to ensure that we don't give yet another advantage to corporations.

Freedom

—Juan Carlos Daza, Hollywood, FL

Neutrality is in the interest of the public and the FCC must protect it.

—William Nemcik, San Juan, PR

Start siding in favor of humanity and not the corporations that have become soulless demonic entities sapping our culture of free expression and positive growth. You're on the wrong side of history and shame on you for it.

—Jeremy Kilar, Oak Ridge, NJ

very very very important stuff... first amendment people... and hey, there wouldn't be an Internet business (ISPs included) without our tax dollars building it so... let's keep it open, and equal, huh? For more freedom and innovation for all!

—Jak Plihal, Palm Harbor, FL

Stop letting the big companies "buy" everyone's freedom!

—Samuel James Stubbs, Orem, UT

Historically, while new technology has been expensive, the cost has decreased over time. Why isn't that happening in the cellular area? The answer is pretty obvious: monopoly and collusion. The cellular market is not a free market and this must change.

—Michael Vincent Capizzi, Santa Clara, CA

Start treating broadband like a communications service, and restore its Net Neutrality rules.

—Rick Smith, Dallas, GA

I have spent 20 years of my life protecting our constitution not big business. Freedom to the people is extremely important. It saddens me when I stop and look around and see our freedom and rights being whittled and chipped away to the point of facing martial law lifestyle.

—Clay Norfleet, West Columbia, SC

The internet has and always should be free. Other than subscriptions to certain things, which is a personal choice matter.

—Alice Deakin, , stop the division and let's be one earth, spinning around the sun together... for all life here!

—Stuart Walker, Granada Hills, CA

This is not the time to let lawyers set the standard for the rest of the world. You might think you won't be affected by this ruling now, but what about the generation that comes after?

—Corbin Stack, Reinheim,

This is completely AGAINST the American constitution and values of freedom of speech and information. You have stripped the American people of their ability to move freely on the internet and communicate in favor of upholding corporate interests. We the PEOPLE not we the Corporate entities.

—Stephanie Rogers, Oakland, CA

Biggest mistake the FCC has ever made was to kill net neutrality.

—John Peterson, Mebane, NC

How dare the court hand down that kind of ruling! You're destroying free speech, not upholding it! Come on FCC, treat the internet as a communication service. This kind of ruling is separating everyone from each other around the world so some companies can squeeze more money out of us! No one but the rich can afford to pay extra to access the sites! We're all struggling as it is to keep the bills paid for our homes, we can't be forced to have more.

—Delia Quevedo, Somerset, TX

No.

—P Sherman, ,

I was living in a house in Portland, Oregon when my friend Bob Kelly, a friend of his that was at MIT, and another buddy in Berkeley were connected to the phone line with their computers and communicating with each other through their computers. None of the carriers/providers (ATT, Verizon, Comcast) were present. It was "We, the People" who discovered the internet - no one else! I believe that if net neutrality is compromised by corporations the internet must be Nationalized as a Public Utility to maintain its intended purpose - the unfettered access to each other and, more importantly, information. Anything less would amount to capitalist censorship spearheaded by a bought and paid for government not a government of the People, for the People, to the People.

—Ronald D. Stout, Portland, OR

I can't believe this! Everything has to be turned into a big money-making proposition for those who already have everything. It isn't going to work on me, or for many others. I will simply go back to the library. I have no intention of supporting a fee schedule for access that can be blocked or restricted anyway.

—Shari Meats, Butte, MT

It is time to reverse the devastating effects of the Brand X decision. Reclassify Internet infrastructure as common carriers.

What one chooses to listen to, read and view belongs to the individual and should not be dictated by governments much less corporations. Without free speech and free press an individual's ability to make informed decisions would be severely limited. In today's world where more and more of that information is being delivered by electronic communications systems it would be too easy for a controlling interest to severely limit the access and timely delivery of such information. Two incidences come to mind: The restrictions on news East Germany imposed on their citizens during the Cold war (remember the Iron Curtain?) and was provided by Radio Free Europe ; more recently, to get the contract supplying the electronics, Cisco had to meet the Chinese governments requirement to enable site location of all who access the internet, making it easier to locate and jail dissidents. For that matter, given the US Government is legally collecting and storing private citizens communication records, what would happen if the neo-Nazi factions in the US gained control of the government gaining access to that information. Just makes me wonder.

—Rodney H, Marthaville, LA

To have the internet be tiered like this is a stab at equality. The internet in its entirety should be accessible to anyone that can get on a computer. Everyone should be allowed to obtain any and all information from internet and not be denied that obtainment because big businesses want to increase their already large profits. Added to that this set-up could really hinder schools as now a days they rely quite a bit on the internet.

—Lori, ,

By monetarily restricting the internet you are restricting equal opportunity based on pay wages, and therefore restricting a thriving democracy.

—Marissa Roman, Saint Louis, MO

Please understand that by giving control of the internet to different companies can make it nearly impossible for smaller businesses to get a start, as the internet has become such an ingrained part of society. Plus, paying additional charges to access different websites is absolutely ludicrous. Not everyone would want to pay or afford the fee. Please take this into consideration.

The internet needs to be free. Net neutrality is critical to a fair, equal-opportunity system. Allowing ISPs to control what data uses their networks or gets priority is sick and wrong and goes against everything the internet stands for.

—Ian Maines, Orono, ME

The internet is over-commercialized as it is. To give corporations the power to refocus internet services into a state of economic relativity is to negate the internet as we know it and contradict the overarching purpose for which it exists at all: a more free form of communication.

—Harrison Garrett, Victoria, TX

Please bring back Net neutrality , it is a form of communication with people all over the world . it should be available to everyone but now lower class citizens might not be able to afford it if they can not use it how ever they like. Everyone should deserve free internet.

—Ly Nguyen, Sacramento, CA

The internet is clearly not just an optional information service. It is the fundamental backbone of telecommunication... now and into the foreseeable future. Please reclassify the internet to enable the enforcement of Net Neutrality rules. Nobody wants the ISP middleman to muck up the internet.

Net neutrality is a right for everyone to have the ability to retain any information from any web locations as they please. Net neutrality is a representation of our FREEdom of speech. I already pay $70 a month for the use of 10GB per month before my internet becomes infiltrated and slowed down. Now I here of more methods of taking money per website with service threats to back it up. The Devil is in the greed here but what we all must theologically remember is that the Devil did rise into the clouds of heaven only to have pride and greed catapult him to the deepest, hottest coals of hell for his selfish blasphemy. Here is my opinion and blessings on those who follow the darkened path.

Taking away the freedom of information for the sake of corporate profits is a slap in the face to the American public and the American way. I don't want to live in a world where profits outweigh personal liberties. These trends toward internet censorship are all too similar to the situation currently occurring in China. I have faith in the legal system of the United States of America, but when monopolistic corporations, such as Comcast, have the power to almost single-handedly control an asset as important as the internet, I begin to lose faith.

This is an awful decision it would be like making a great highway system and then say only American made cars and products can travel on it and then make them all toll roads with only the best lane set aside for the very wealthy. Please restore net neutrality

—Christopher K Clouse, San Francisco, CA

The D.C. Circuit's decision in the Verizon case dealt a huge blow to the open Internet. Right now there is no one protecting Internet users from ISPs that block or discriminate against websites, applications or services. Companies like Verizon will now be able to block or slow down any website, application or service they like. And they'll be able to create tiered pricing structures with fast lanes for those who can afford the tolls and slow lanes for everyone else. It's time for the new FCC leadership to correct the agency's past mistakes and to reassert the agency's clear authority over our nation's communications infrastructure. To preserve the open Internet, the FCC must reclassify broadband Internet access as a telecommunications service. Use your authority to establish a solid legal footing for the vital policies and protections this court decision threatens.

—John Mann, San Antonio, TX

Many people need the internet the way it is. We need the services that it already provides. Its the livelihood of too many people for anyone to take that away. Without someone there to protect us, none of us will be able to not only express ourselves, but be ourselves and live the way that we chose. We already must pay for the many laws and act that restrict our freedoms already. Will we really have to adhere to another system that not only slows our access but may end up blocking us off? I don't think so. Please, whoever this ends up with and whoever may read this. Please help us so that we may continue using the services that are already provided to us.

A well informed public is essential in any country. We should be the leaders in this area. Net neutrality is essential. We see on the news what happens in foreign countries when access to information and the truth are not easily accessible. Please do not let this happen here. It's bad enough that the drug companies own the news and are more concerned with selling drugs than finding cures. When they get to the "pearly gates", they will be judged on good deeds, not money. The wealth of easy access to information is immeasurable. Thank you.

Dear Mr. Wheeler, I am a Canadian resident and citizen of Canada. I was born here, and while it is not perfect, it is certainly my home, and I love it here. At the same time, as a software developer, and reasonably well-informed about the infrastructure of the internet within Canada as well as in the US, it's sometimes unpleasant to look southwards and see how much faster the internet access on the market is down there; how much more free, in many ways, as well. As I'm sure you're aware, our closest equivalent to the FCC is the CRTC. Whether warranted or not, it bears the reputation of nepotism, being assumed to be staffed with ex-executives of our largest ISPs (Bell and Rogers) and television providers. This perception would be harmful enough on its own, but the more damning, and much more obvious fact is that our regulatory body is failing us: our infrastructure is an anachronism, the market is held hostage by the two largest ISPs, and we have little or no recourse. When the CRTC planned to authorize nationwide 20 GB/month bandwidth caps for more or less all ISPs other than Bell and Rogers, a swift and vocal response by hundreds of thousands of citizens was all that prevented us from falling even further behind in our infrastructure. This is a failure of the CRTC, of our past several governments, and of our ability to effect change in our democracy; it is further an embarrassment. Please, consider this a cautionary tale. The survival of the internet as a whole really does depend on the FCC's actions, not only because of the bulk of the global infrastructure housed in the US, but also because other nations look to you as a (generally shining!) example of how internet infrastructure can be done. With sympathy for the position you have been placed in by recent events, and with respect and admiration for your position and ability, Sincerely, Rob

—Rob Rix, ,

Please restore net neutrality. Without neutrality children born into poverty will have an even greater disadvantage, and minority opinions will struggle to be heard.

—Diane Burns, Columbus, OH

I can't understand how taking away one of the key joints of the internet is good for any of its consumers. Pushing for more money for less product, my goodness that's a horrible idea. Would you buy a car off the lot and before you can even leave you're forced to buy the 4th tire? No because it's a system that's been working whose going to willingly take a worst deal to line the pockets more of someone who's already getting their money. The economy is rough enough as is without the rich trying to get richer. I pay a $126/mn for cable, phone, and internet. If I had to drop to services it would be cable and phone because the phone and tv do not provide job searches, online bill pay, research for homework. Please let's not make our day tougher just for a few to come out on top.

There are many more people than is generally realized who are aware of and are tired of the tightening grip of corporate takeover. This can only lead to increasing frustration by the masses and its possible attendant side effects, (civil unrest and the like), in the not so distant future. If this isn't reversed and internet neutrality restored, what will happen to the relationships Americans have with people overseas if the site they use to communicate with has a stopper put in it? Some countries, like China, don't have Facebook and the only way families can communicate (a cheaper alternative than phoning) is through Weibo or QQ? You need to consider the effects it would have on these families, most just trying to get themselves off the ground. How about those international students who can't afford to go back to their home countries over the holidays? Don't make America be a country that blocks people out.

The internet should allow equal access to all sites without any restrictions or discrimination. Blocking net neutrality will make small online business suffer and prevent the startup from innovation and success against the larger online corporations. Small businesses have done a lot of things in past years to propel the economy of this country with a lot of help through online advertising. Lives have been saved because citizens learned how to perform life saving actions because of learning necessary skills online to do so. In short this will kill or at the very least decrease innovation if ISPs are allowed to block those sites for their own reason. This is legal discrimination and makes being apart of this country shameful that this kind of thing could actually happen.

—Julius Cirwithian, New Castle, DE

The end of net neutrality is a velvet rope being placed between people and knowledge. It impedes technological progress and will result in further economic disparity on top of creating a huge disadvantage for American businesses to compete in a global market. The FCC MUST protect internet neutrality. Media giants should not usurp the power that belongs to the people. Act now to protect democracy. Free circulation of information is the bottom line for a free country.

—Sandra Spangler, Tucson, AZ

Net neutrality protects freedom of speech and fair access for everyone. I want the internet to remain neutral!

—Michael Schwartz, Lake Forest, CA

The internet does not belong to any one entity to restrict its flow, but to everyone to benefit from its neutrality. Companies are not people.

—Gavril Baderca, Sterling Heights, MI

This gives the telecomm giants way to much power. Thank you for your time.

—Randall Weigner, Dover, NH

I firmly support treating broadband as a telecommunications service.

—Terrence Nugent, New York, NY

I work for a major ISP and though this may bring about great profit, it will ultimately bring about the destruction of the free exchange of information

—Kenneth Jones, Reidsville, NC

This is wrong in every sense of the word.

—Sam Fernandez, Tucson, AZ

After billions of dollars in stolen fiber-infrastructure fees, perhaps the people can get something back for their money. FCC's mission should be to protect consumers and foster competition in the broadband market.

This is bullshit.

—Caulin Stephens-Lucas, Chandler, AZ

Keep the internet FREE!!!!

—Juan Najarro, Lake Balboa, CA rights over data control: network providers have no rights over data between end-users conflicts of interest for network providers: the temptation for network providers to restrict information from competitors will be too great stifling of innovation: the involvement of network providers in determining what content, like sites, reaches consumers will create a misleading picture of what consumers really want; the success of sites will be determined by deal-making, not the site itself

—William Velasquez, Dallas, TX

Net neutrality is essential for the functioning of the internet. Do not let its services be limited to only a select few.

—Jordan Stillman, Jamaica Plain, MA

Verizon is currently charging me more for internet-only service than for a "bundle" that includes the same internet service. Please help regulate these telecom companies. They do not deserve all they take.

—Henry Whelchel, Virginia Beach, VA

The internet as equal grounds for the exchange of ideas is essential to protecting the freedom of speech and expression in America and the world. Please keep it equal and fair for peoples of all means to access. I'm sure the FCC staff is receiving lots of these emails but this issue is important and many people would like to see action taken. Thank you for your time.

—Ethan Gladding, Pittsburgh, PA

Without Net Neutrality, this would shamelessly tarnish the title of "Land of the Free". I thought we were done with discrimination, or so it seems. Please rethink this because the equality scale doesn't tilt one way. This would show that you are trying to reform the First Amendment which would make a lot of people unhappy and on your tail. Please rethink. We're supposed to be moving forward not backwards.

—Steve Tam, Stockton, CA

The internet is no place for a class based society. Having access to information should not be limited by ISPs or arbitrary fees.

Why does this country keep thinking it's okay for corporations to control things? It isn't. They're greedy and hate us. I mean, is that not incredibly clear from the last thirty years?

—Liam Alden Smith, Sacramento, CA

Would you let companies come into the Library of Congress and charge money for the information that the government has stored?

—Christopher Louis Panayi, Clinton Township, MI

I do not believe a service provider should be able to limit or deny access to an open website. The entire point of the internet is to be fully open to informative and entertaining websites of the users' choice.

—Wyatt Thorson, Kelley, IA

This is unfair and unjust as our internet is our last freedom.

—Trent Townsend, Beverly Hills, CA

What's going on with all of these secretive legal actions regarding the Internet lately? Why can't we have one place we can go and leave the rest of the world behind? Leave the Internet alone, for goodness sakes.

—Karl, Milwaukee, WI

Please save net neutrality, it is vital to consumer rights and protection.

—Justin Pemberton, Phelps, NY

I truly believe information should be available, affordable, open, and feasible to access for the public, REGARDLESS of income. I am hoping that the FCC shares in my belief that the Internet is a forum for free speech and not "paid" speech. Please take action to prevent the price gouging and blocking of one of the most important communication forum in our lifetimes.

—Kendra Waller, Pflugerville, TX

Are you out of your minds? What makes you think that the public will tolerate corporate censorship?

—Vic Plichota, Temple, TX

By net neutrality being struck down it will make it possible for companies to have too much power slowing many other industries such as music, movies, software. Not protecting net neutrality will stifle our society and slow the exchange of information. Protect the people! Verizon chose to go into telecommunications, I didn't make that choice for them!

—Matthew Schenck, Watertown, NY

I am absolutely shocked that our collective American right to free and equal access to information has been so blatantly threatened by moneyed interests. Please, please, please use your common sense and your authority to correct this blatant disregard of the rights and freedoms of the People of the United States.

—Seth Owen, Iowa City, IA

Give me liberty or give me death!

—Kenneth Wilson, Bristol, TN

Controlling What information can be accessed based off what your provider thinks is Wrong. Everything has a right to be found equally, And if things become controlled based off the provider, Where does that leave the consumer? Is it fair we must be limited because our provider sees it to match their opinions? Is it fair to be told "If you don't like it, Find someone else?" When where one lives only one provider can be found? Its violation of our rights, Access to free information EQUALLY, is the same as freedom of speech, our right to learn, OUR RIGHT to view what content on the web as we like. Slowing access to a site, Or even as extreme as charging more to access certain sites, is illegal in itself. To pay a second fee to a service, Example Netflix or Xbox Live, Is not fair to the consumer. We already pay for the service to connect us, We pay for the services of sites separately as well, but then another fee JUST BECAUSE they think its not their type of site? Keep the net neutral, Its the same as discrimination if you don't, and its the same as taking our right to freely live out lifestyles, and its just morally wrong.

—Tyler Cantrell, Pocola, OK

Can we get an anti trust going on ISP's while we're at it? Internet should not be sold by the same people who want it to fail.

—Steve Womack, Fullerton, CA

We do not want our internet browsing to be controlled by Internet Providers that are already screw us over. Please FCC! Save us !

—Yannick Lambert, ,

Please reinstate the net neutrality. Many of us will not be able to afford the internet if ISPs are allowed to block or charge more for individual applications and/or services. It is one of the few things we can still enjoy within our means. Thank you.

—Susan Dudak, Coraopolis, PA

I just don't think this would be fair. I'm a college student in a private art and media institution that basically relies on the internet. Not all of us are privileged enough to have a full ride for school and therefore must pay in order to continue attending our dream school. It wouldn't be fair to make us also pay for a tool that shouldn't be messed with to begin with.

—Mayra Mesina, Cicero, IL

Keep the internet free and neutral.

—Carol York, Sacramento, CA

This will destroy any chance this generation has to gain a real career! People are already paying for the services they have access to and if this does pass, this will filter out what my family and I look like, All in the Family and many other Christian sites. Destroying the worldwide communication with friends we can't see? Taking away the freedom that God has given us in the first place? God BLESSED and given the geniuses who WANTED this to be an open realm where we all can share and bring the world closer. Destroy open internet the FCC will simply push us all back into the dark and make the world as small as it was 20 years ago.

—Sara Blaske, Wheelersburg, OH

This decision is so unbelievably important to protect our freedom of speech. With a bias like this the idea of a person controlling their own blog could some day become impossible, if you don't have the money to pay off internet service providers you may no longer have a voice. Information will be limited where it was once infinite. Please end this madness and stand up for what is right!

—Paige, Fairfax, IA

It's very silly that I even have to do this.

—Sheldon Prescott, Decatur, GA

Without net neutrality, you are generally blacking out the chance to LEARN anything, backing us up to the dark ages where we don't know anything as the kings and chancellors keep all of the knowledge and secrets. This is NOT "Brave New World", where the masses take drugs because the higher powers want us to stay ignorant.

—Emily Blaske, Wheelersburg, OH

—Samuel Klajbor, San Jose, CA

Net Neutrality is essentially for internet and web businesses (such as kick starter and video reviews) to grow

—Demetruis Lawing, Atlantic City, NJ

It feels pointless to take action like this, because this powerful Evil Empire of a nation is about money and only about money. But I want to at least try the political legal approach, why not? Civil disobedience is frowned upon. I know what this is also about too, this is about the government and NSA having complete control over the internet -- creating a larger data base for the CIA and censoring any free speech and file sharing we free citizens are allowed. Net Neutrality is important to restore. You take away certain liberties and freedoms little by little it goes unnoticed by the people, their illusion of freedom is still believed to be there. What else can they take away when we're not looking? I see through this totalitarian states' rhetoric bullshit.

ENOUGH IS ENOUGH! FCC is time to start treating broadband like a communications service, and to restore its Net Neutrality rules.

—Annette, Roslindale, MA

This must be stopped. We, the people, cannot afford to be nicked and dined anymore. The access should be free, no matter what site. Whom does this benefit? Certainly not the people but corporations. They have already taken way too much control and placed this country in a downward spiral. Please, stop this nonsense and give the consumers back the buying power and freedom to choose! Please appeal to re-instate net neutrality!

This is stupid! Dont we already pay for internet? Why would we want to pay another bill on top of all the other bills? This isn't going to help any one in any way so why bother trying to make people pay to do stuff on the internet when we are already paying for the internet.

—April, Tucson, AZ

Restore Net Neutrality PLEASE!! The Supreme Court has opened a Pandora's Box Of InEquality Which Will Cost The American People A LOT, not just in higher fees to the Prevailing Over Lords Of Internet Access, but In Fewer Resources And Outlets Of Affordable And Necessary Information, Essentially Blocking The Free Flow Of Ideas And Information! Financially Blocking Access To All But The Most Affluent. Thank You!

—Rue Watson, New Brunswick, NJ freedom is what we love about the internet. you take that away & no one is going to use it anymore.

The boilerplate is fine, but I do firmly believe as a technical person, computer user, US citizen, and advocate for the future for the sake of my children, that true net neutrality is the ideal we should strive for and build our regulations and laws to point toward, just like a clean environment is something we should aim for and regulator toward - it makes sense, it's common sense, and it's what the best of our human nature should be seeking. Thank you for your consideration and more importantly, action in this key matter.

—Geoff McLaughlin, Cedarburg, WI

Net Neutrality could very well lead to a future similar to China's communist regulation of internet. An effort to box our minds toward information, ideas, and propaganda that are in the interest of those who can pay ISPs to be visible. This could single handedly give a big corporation control over our minds. There is no motive for getting rid of net neutrality except pure greed. Those who own the big ISPs have made their money and bandwidth is not a scarce or non-renewable resource. Please stand up for a future where information is free for exchange.

—Caesar Anyogu, Decatur, GA

Quit being a corporate stooge and protect the population that pays your salary. While we understand that the lobbyists buy your dinner, remember your civic duty and protect the interests of the population, not the corporation.

—Rebecca Finch, Highcliffe,

Leave it alone, stay out of our lives!!

—Mike Ellis, Indianapolis, IN

The loss of "net neutrality" greatly concerns me - it is a serious freedom of information issue when a company can control what information is passed over its system; web sites which are opposed to the company's view points (for any reason - political, business, or other) can be blocked or slowed. In many places net providers hold near monopolies, giving them unprecedented control over what their customers are able to see and read on the internet. This is simply wrong. Please act to maintain "net neutrality". Thank you.

—Charles Ewing, Westbrook, ME

This is a must for our freedoms in the great country!

Please don't let the ISP's take away my right to explore the world and turn it into another cable scam. Thank you so much for looking at this!

—Melissa Dangreau, Lompoc, CA

Is our entire country for sale? Maybe not first, but foremost, is overturning the Citizens United SCOTUS decision. Next in my priority is jailing the bankers responsible for the sub prime mortgage market debacle, and then this situation where corporations are "trusted" to be neutral in providing us consumers what we want, not what they want us to have.

—Dave D. Devol, St. Petersburg, FL

I have no choice where I get Internet access. Why should I have to pay more to see what I used to see for the monthly rate I pay to verizon? I am on a limited income. It does not benefit others like myself. It only benefits the big corporations. Take a stand and grow a spine! Don't let big business win this time!

—Jennifer I crater, Cape Coral, FL

No democracy is possible without net neutrality

—Richard Seyman, Davis, CA

Technically, I live on an island, am the only year-round resident at the end of a dead-end road and am cursed with dial-up, so I'm already at a severe disadvantage for internet access since the local library, with less-than-secure WiFi service, has very limited hours, even during the summer tourist season. At age 70, I'm not about to waste my savings on a 2-yr contract-based smart phone -- again, with limits because of the geography of Door County, with its bluffs, forests and erratic weather conditions -- just so I can get faster internet service. (I've occasionally had to stand on a rock in the driveway just to get my dumb phone, aka my cell phone, to work!) Furthermore, I refuse to give my business to companies that, as general policy, rip me off. I insist that you do your job as FCC members and reclassify ALL internet access as a telecommunications service, which can then be properly regulated to provide fair and equal access to ALL users. Perhaps you would also make sure that regulation SHALL include oversight of the NSA to put an end to the government's illegal spying on us!

Comcast is the only internet provider in my neighborhood. They have promised lower prices and then on the bill charged three times that - and they did that many times until I had to cancel my cable. I have to keep wireless for my work. Now with this law, they have even more freedom to control and behave badly. We NEED net neutrality!! Stop these few companies from running how we get our information! I don't understand how you can let this happen. This is absolutely wrong. They already have too much.

—James Kennon, Murphy, NC

This is Ridiculous. So much of the advancement we have had in the past 20 years the internet has been about, in technology, society, online education, etc. has been solely because the internet retained a open, unbiased, free market with equal sharing for all. It is an absolute disgrace to ourselves, our country, and humankind as a whole to greedily play to the huge monopoly corporations which honestly wouldn't give 2 fs about our societal well-being in this respect. And would rather limit our potential and justice in favor of someone's greedy, ignorant, or simply clouded views. Please have love for humanity, and keep the greatest invention in the history of mankind, the internet, neutral, and a free and balanced community for all.

—Joseph Balardi, Chico, CA

—Zachary Pounders, Erie, PA

Sites we already have been using should not be blocked now. I use the Internet to communicate with my family. And I shouldn't have to make my own website only for someone else to tell me who can and can't see it. This is entirely unfair and ridiculous.

—Janis Blades, Columbus, OH

Net Neutrality must be maintained. It is a fundamental right to free speech. If I can't access Twitter to make a comment because I lack the funds to do so, I don't really have the same freedom of speech as someone with more money. Also the internet is used for the free exchange of ideas and information and is the leading source for children to do research for school work. Lower income families will not have the same resources to allow their children to get ahead in school. When I turn to a TV Station I do not have to pay more to access their primetime programming. I have access to all their programming, no matter the content. Please restore Net Neutrality. Thank you.

I think that the people involved with the destruction of net neutrality should be prosecuted and then executed while televised. It might send a message to the assholes at Verizon and the like.

The continued attacks by corporate America on individual freedom are a form of tyranny. Tyranny is quintessential failure.
—Kip L. Allen, Everett, WA

This is not right!
—Chris Christiansen, Randallstown, MD

I support American freedoms.
—Maria, Conway, SC

The death of net neutrality is the death of the freedom to share ideas, the death of innovation and the death of the last frontier of open discussion among the people. We cannot allow corporations to control this last open venue in the share of information.
—Andrea Stone, Everett, WA

As a REAL citizen of the US, NOT a corporation, I believe the Internet should be regulated by accountable government offices, and not by companies who are not accountable.
—Alicia Goldstein, Longmont, CO

Please do not allow internet providers Yup make choices for me.
—Saul Corral, Buena Park, CA

Net Neutrality is integral to all peoples' access to education, information, and communication with the world. To take Net Neutrality away is oppress the poor and underprivileged even more than they have already been oppressed for hundreds of years. Make the right decision so you can sleep at night.
—Megan Bott, Farmington, ME

Thanks for removing the last democratic forum left in the US, all in the favor of money!! Profits over people, as American as apple pie. I know this is hard (and less pocket lining), but do the right thing here, for once do the right thing. Thank you!
—Adam Holscher, Fargo, ND

Please be bold. If Congress wants to impose political repercussions for our appropriate decisions, then that should be an affirmative step we force them to have to take and live with. We cannot let fear of what the wrongly-motivated may do stop us from taking the correct first step.
—Jenny Zhang, New York, NY

Eff this shit. Cable Companies will kill the internet's entire purpose.
—Adam Wisneski, Chicago, IL

Do not allow private corporate interests to cripple the free flow of information on the Internet.
—Cara Beckenstein, Brooklyn, NY

Get rid of FOX NEWS. It's not news. It's not based on facts and that's what you are the agency that protects the public on being misinformed and lied to. Is our President the only one that the Koch's haven't bought?
—Janice Claypole, Wichita, KS

This is one of the worst ideas you have ever passed. This is America, and by giving big companies the ability to control what we do and who we communicate with we are acting more like an outdated monarchy with over-controlling tendencies. The Internet is a huge communication tool, not just a commodity for entertainment. Don't limit who we can talk to!
—Kristin Sanders, Bellingham, WA

This decision is not about a fair and open market when large ISP corporations control access through "ownership." IS should be nationalized. When we lag behind, everything in our society suffers, whether business, education or the arts. I urge FCC action toward net neutrality.
—Alice Dubiel, Seattle, WA

don't cripple US ingenuity by giving it to monopolies to stifle
—Bruce Powell, antigio, WI

please restore Net Neutrality!
—Susan Grier, Frisco, TX

this is not right. there's is no reason to force people to pay extra for websites when the already have to pay for internet access.
—Jesse Clark, Longmeadow, MA

This will eventually price people and families who are on the lower rung of the economic scale out of using the internet entirely, which, in turn, will keep them from vital access to the internet. Well done. You figured out yet another way to make the wealth gap in the US grow even wider.
—Alisha Grauso, Chino, CA

keep the internet as it is —Sugar, Phoenix, AZ

You are limiting the free flow of information and ideas, and creating a classist divide that LITERALLY targets minorities. Don't keep us in the dark.
—Neal Thompson, Kirksville, MO

Not everyone can afford multiple internet packages. This is ridiculous.

—Charlie Rashkin, Janesville, WI

Please... just please bring back Net Nuetrality.

—Jessica, Sammamish, WA

you know that if you set-up the internet like this that you will have people stop using the internet world wide

—Hani, Turlock, CA

I know it's strange to say, but the internet is a huge part of my life. I love the internet because it is huge and I can find anything I'm looking for. There is no limit to what can be learned on the internet. It is a gateway to the world for those who do not have the means to go explore the world in person. I have the internet to thank for my job, apartment, boyfriend, most of my friends, and many of my best memories. To separate all of the websites on the internet into different tiers is absurd. It is not possible to do so, which leads me to believe that some of my favorite websites would simply become inaccessible. The web would no longer be world-wide. The internet would no longer be limitless.

—Katie Sale, Anaheim, CA

The internet is a very big thing that is different from TV. It has more information than a lot of libraries can hold and this could impact education negatively.

—Anisa Milton, Independence, MO start treating broadband like a communications service, and restore the Net Neutrality rules.

—Julianna Lifton, Nolanville, TX

fuck you

—Samii Hillis, Hillsboro, OR

Verizon is NOT using freedom of speech in this case at all. They are just taking that away from the general public by limiting access to websites that would promote this exact idea.

—Isabelle, West Newton, MA

—Cassy Pierre, Covington, GA

Get your disgusting corporate hands OFF of the internet.

—Sarah, Poughkeepsie, NY

—Yocelin Rodriguez, Houston, TX

As it is now, part of my Time Warner bill goes to my local government as fees, taxes etc. As a result, every time Time Warner wants to shove their hand into my wallet and pullout ever increasing gobs of money, they are given the green light. The public service commission has proven to be totally useless. Now, you are giving up on we, the consumer, and giving them a gigantic green light to force us to use whatever overpriced sites they have connections with, along with any and all marketing monitoring and intrusions they wish. Why would Time Warner allow me to visit Netflixs when they sell movies? With this much control, their possibilitys are endless, and our freedom, HISTORY!

—Jim Albrecht, Saugerties, NY

Don't mess with my internet. bitch

—Shanon, Nelsonia, VA

This is an absolute tavesty that not only affects the US, but the entire world. What makes them think they have the right to to dictate to us what we can do with the service we pay for? This is nothing but a power grab and WILL get worse if it is not dealt with.

—Chris, ,

You can't just impose something like this on the whole of the internet.

—Stephanie, Easton, MD

This is not okay at all

—Olivya Jade, Irvine, CA

This is sickening. If net neutrality is dead, what can stop the govt. from telling us what sites we can or can't go to. Do what you have to do to fix this before things get to a point of no return.

—Shuvankar Banik, Troy, NY

This is really messed up

—Kiela, Grand Rapids, MI

please do the right thing.....

—Kathleen Stewart, Valley, WA

Seriously?

—Jani Toiminen, ,

The government is supposed to be for the people, not your selfish, money-making back alley schemes that gets you dollars under the table!
You're supposed to work for US, not the other fucking way around!

This is not the way forward. You will create uproar.
—Graham Markus, ,

The internet should be for all
—Molly Weber, Brookville, IN

RESTORE NET NEUTRALITY!
—Cody McDonald, Toledo, OH

This is stupid. I hope you understand what horrible people you truly are, because not a lot of people can afford to pay more just to go onto a specific website.
—Raslynn May Berry, ,

As you sow, so shall you reap
—Jo, ,

I love the internet the way it was. Freedom of speech is an amendment.
—Nicholas Picinic, North Bergen, NJ

Restore things and stop invading our privacy!!!!!!
—Rita Corica, ,

We already pay for the internet when the internet is no one's to own. We all have a part in the internet, if you allow big business to once again control our access to communication you are denying our rights. It may all seem like business to you and these companies, but it means so much more than that. Have you not seen the protests in countries across the world who have protested and fought for the access to this form of communication? Right now Ukrainians are protesting, the pictures we are only able to see because of our access to internet websites since the news will not talk about it, next will be the American people.
—Aubrey Walters, Las Vegas, NV

I can't believe this. I don't have anything to say except to urge everyone to take action against this.
—Jade, ,

Net neutrality protects everyone and needs to be restored.
—Adriana Canepa, New York, NY

I'm not voting for those in the interest of the few but for the many that actually take action against the privileged.
—, San Marcos, TX restore the law of the internet

—Boo, Zirconia, NC

keep the internet the way it is. if you take it away from us a lot of companies will be shut down. our way of living will die and so will our freedom.

—Brandon Madden, Masontown, PA

The internet is the most effective telecommunications service of today's society. Regulations should treat it as such.

—Sarah Tsang, Oakland, CA

Don't let big business ruin our 1st Amendment.

—Nathaniel gray, Austin, TX

I would like to say that this ruling is absolutely horrid. This is the equivalent to charging to go to a library and JUST to read.

—Keith Lee Jackson, Richmond, VA

You have got to be kidding me. The internet is the LAST place where we could find freedom. And Verizon took that away from us. Do the right thing, for the sake of the next generation who will thank you, you know in your heart what the right thing to do is. We (the internet) are literally begging you to do the right thing.

—Tim V, Valencia, CA

The internet is a place for freedom. To be who you really are. They're trying to take away and/or slow this. BAD GOVERNMENT

—John O'Neal, Vine Grove, KY

Okay seriously can this not happen this is dumb.

—Brianna, Keene Valley, NY

This is a shocking decision that is absolutely unacceptable. American people deserve Net Neutrality. In a time of economic crisis, many Americans won't be able to afford extra money on their internet bills for the same speed they had before, which is a horrible deal for the people. It's shocking that anyone would give big businesses like these that kind of power over their customers. They do not need to leech away any more of our money than they already do.

—Kei Burt, East Aurora, NY

Do the right thing for the world and the future.

—Christopher Zurawic, Chicago, IL

Please restore net neutrality! This is my only source to happiness, especially after all this I've been thru. I need this, and I don't think I'm the only one. Please don't destroy lives. Make it Neutral.

—Anna N, ,

PLS! Dont change the internet. Its perfect like that.

—Martin Tsvetanov, ,

Again with this? AGAIN!? STOP MESSING WITH THE INTERNET!!! Yes we live in a day and age where communication and spreading news/rumors/information is beyond easy, but it's THIS GENERATION'S WAY OF LIFE! STOP TRYING TO CONTROL IT AND FORCE IT BACK DOWN!!!!

—Cristina Martins, Laie, HI

NO.....NO PLEASE GOD NO!

—Eugene Schirkunov, ,

This is disgusting what happened to freedom of speech??

—Amy, ,

Why is this even an option? Additional costs for the internet... bring down Obama!

—Devon Hackwith, Dana Point, CA

Living in an area with only two real internet service providers and on the lower end of middle class, net neutrality is important. I don't want some third party dictating what sites I can and cannot access; that's not what the internet is about.

—Daniel Ahrendt, Jacksonville, FL

FREEDOM!

—Robbie Mills, ,

I would like to request that you change this and try to defeat verizion. I love the internet, it's my life, and I don't want it to be ruined by large corporations who think they have the right to rule the people... I don't know if this is the way to go, but PLEASE do something to correct this and prevent huge corporations from ruining our freedom here, the press, small businesses... Thanks.

—Justin Haynes, Beebe, AR

Please keep fighting for freedom instead of corporate censorship.

—Aaron Capdeville, Ferndale, WA

The internet was created by private individuals and should stay public! It shouldn't be controlled by corporations who didn't create it. It should remain free for all NOT sold to the highest bidder. The more you pay...the better service you get! Is that the new America? I hope not! I've been around for 67 years and for most of my life it hasn't been like this. PLEASE...don't turn the Internet into a two tier system. Thank you for considering my comments.

—Maxine Gordon, Sonoma, CA

It's not a 'world wide web' if people across the globe can't access it freely and equally.

No, no and NO

—JC Abbott, Mystic, CT

The last thing this country needs is more corporate control. I worry about the future of this country.

—Miranda Vesey, Abilene, TX

Don't be stupid, net neutrality is the largest thing keeping the world connected, take that away and you'll make an enemy of the new generation. Please, think carefully about this.

—Axel Kirk, Klamath Falls, OR

Don't kill the Internet as a free market and source of information. It is akin to telecoms, a carrier. It should be regulated at such. Please act in the public's interest, not corporate interests.

—Craig Chanin King, Berkeley, CA

Why would you do this? The Internet is a great thing. Stop being greedy and let us have one nice thing.

—Carley Phillips, Mount Vernon, OH

Whooooaaa this ain't right.

—Maddie White, Frankfort, OH

You wanna lock down the web and throw away the key? Well, you better not touch my fuckin' technology.

—Howard Hicks, Virginia Beach, VA

I am a small businesses owner who utilizes the internet for marketing and promotional reasons. I don't want the internet to become a restricted service to the public. The internet is a necessity in order to help my small business take off. If the internet is reverted into a telecommunications infrastructure then small businesses in the U.S. will struggle to make a name for themselves.

—Luis Alberto Vadi, Miami, FL

why, does the government always want more power and money? the republicans are just capitalizing on the internet ging green thing. just like them wanting to do away with food stamps, medicare and caid. you(the government) already have to much control.. plz loosen your grip

To end what has been almost entirely the sole cause for the worlds progression into more equal and available education would be to end the worlds most optimistic future it ever had.
—Spencer Tye, Saint Paul, MN

Net neutrality is important. Without it, how do you expect people to learn? How do you expect people to discover? How do expect people to thrive? Net neutrality has been alive since the birth of the internet. Breaking that neutrality is close to saying you own the internet. That is ridiculous!!!! No one can even fathom how wrong that really is. The net has become a public means of living life, a new tool that has made life so much more convenient. Why regress even further?
—Jackson Bailey, Fort Collins, CO

This violates freedom of speech as well as freedom in general. Just because corporations and marketing giant want more money doesn't mean that they can just put restrictions on things that are supposed to be free for everyone. What's next? Am I going to need to pay a fee to get groceries at the store? Go to the park? Work?

Stand up and protect consumers from the monopolistic practices of ISPs the cable compact not even provide a fair pricing structure for TV due to monopolies now ell be able to abuse consumers with the Internet as well

—Christopher Payne, Tinton Falls, NJ

The internet should be a regulated entity in the US, the same as most first world countries. As a regulated service, Net Neutrality would be automatic. I will go further and suggested that WIRED internet should be a regulated monopoly, operated under a defined set of required service levels and a defined rate of return. Running broadband wires down a street is a natural monopoly no different than water, electric or gas. Regardless of the technology used, having two such providers raises the cost/household, which means each househjold will have to pay more to support two providers. A NATURAL monopoly. R C G

—Raymond Gray, Easton, PA

Quite taking our freedoms!

Just wait till yr Netflix starts slowing down the broadcast! Or the bill goes 2ce what it is to pay Verizon or whomever for the Elite service of actual speed availability! This is total Citizen's United crap...

—Beate Nilsen, Malibu, CA

It is disgusting that the future of our online access, that the our future competitive edge against the world around us, is for sale like this. You should be doing everything you can to ensure as cheap and as fast and as accessible of an open internet is available as possible for us.

—David Scott, Kingwood, TX

Keeping the Internet free of corporate control will best serve the public. Please work to keep the Internet free.

—Edward Barrett, Saint Paul, MN

Please leave us ONE space free from commercial interests.

—Amy Altadonna, Belchertown, MA

This is bullshit!! our internet that WE pay for should be used to do whatever we like (within reason ofc)

—Marius Widnes Olsen, ,

Dont let our internet become violated, dont let companys like Verizon bully you into thinking you dont make the rules. JUST FIX THIS PLEASE

—Adam Gonzalez, South Amboy, NJ

Something needs to be done about this. If this was truly a democracy, net neutrality would still be protected. This is not what the people want. What about the small business owners and innovators...they will be unable to compete or unheard in the marketplace. Consumers will be paying a higher price than just the extra dollars for access and services such as music. The internet has undoubtedly served as a democratic medium where ideas are shared, voices are heard even those of politicians, big and small, and what will happen to them? What will happen to non profit organizations. Websites are their own entity so why is the power being given to these cable companies ?

—Melissa Zapata, Gainesville, FL

There is just is no point of taking away our freedom. The net neutrality rules weren't made for no reason.

—Petar Arsic, ,

Please do it now!

—Dennis Schultz, Berlin Heights, OH

net neutrality must be kept secure freedom of information is the whole point of the internet, do not let companies control what we can see we do not live in china or north korea, net freedom is imperative to free society

Taking away net neutrality not only threatens liberties for the little guy, it can also threaten our economy by enabling further wealth inequality and hindering upward mobility.

—Jane Wallace, Collingswood, NJ

This has to be stopped now. These corporations have no right to decide for us how the internet will be. This whole thing is evil and will only hurt America.

—Brian Stumpp, Stockton, CA

Please make free speech free in America.

—Chris Rhodes, Chicago, IL

Keep the internet free for everyone. Nothing good can come from taking away net neutrality, —Katie Schenkel, Indianapolis, IN

The internet itself is a free entity, it's just a collection of tubes. Regulating it like this is just another way for government to show its control over any and everything it can. It's stupid, having it all be equal is the best way to go, because otherwise you're starving small businesses and other amateur web sites. Don't.

—Laurana Aguilar, Tampa, FL

This can't happen. The internet is a place of freedom and expression. If this isn't stopped, then what will the internet be then?

You federal people have all the power, all the resources, and lie to our population on a daily basis. Just allow us some of our freedom. Keep the internet free.

—Matthew Jacob Saracino, Woodland, CA

We already pay for Internet. The internet is a big thing with hundreds of websites and communities. Many of them are there to help and take care of others who need someone to listen to them. There are people out there with problems. People who can't afford therapy or 'real' help. There are people of all ages and genders who self harm, are suicidal, who have abusive families, who are bullied and beaten up daily, people who have no friends in 'real' life because they don't fit in just right. So they turn to online communities for help. And they get it. There are websites run by people who know what it's like to be hurting and they dedicate the site to help others. To talk. To be there for them. And those sites, save peoples lives. I myself am one of those people. Myself, my friends, and my siblings have all been saved from suicide, self harm, annorexia, and so many other things it's not even funny by sites like these. Because quite frankly, you 'adults' and 'government officials' are doing a shitty ass job at taking care of your own country. There are people with no homes. No food. Nothing at all. There are people being abused. People being killed. People being bullied and beaten up. People self harming. People with families that don't care and are dysfunctional. People who have been driven to the brink of suicide. My best friend killed himself because no one was there to help him. A therapist doesn't help enough. No trust. It's their job to listen. Meds don't always work. What does work? Friends. Anonymous people who don't know who you are and who aren't paid to listen. And these people can only be found on the internet. So until you figure out how to fix all these problems, stop trying to restrict the damn internet. Cable companies are for televisions. Phone companies are for phones. Internet providers are for the internet. Don't make the internet like cable. Why can't you see how catostrophic that would be to so many people? Get your head out of your ass and do something that will help us, not harm us. And by restricting the internet and making it like cable, YOU WILL BE HARMING US. If you still don't understand, email me at korzara@gmail.com and I will explain it to you in smaller words.

—Miranda Seelhammer, Mt Pleasant, SC

Education is the ultimate door to freedom. If we restrict access to information, we're only retarding the growth of society.

—Anthony Lane, Sacramento, CA

The internet has been free and open to all no matter what their status is or their wealth is. It should remain free and open to all. We built it, we pay for the backbone. No corporation has a right to take any advantage over others or any person. If the FCC can't do it then turn it over to the Librarians.

—David Vernola, Wasilla, AK

Internet service providers in the USA are already considered a joke around the world, this is just a slap in the face. We need Net Neutrality or some kind of extensive rules which will not allow companies like Version to edit the internet.

FCC!! You need to do your job as a protector of the interests for the people and not corporate interests!!!

—James Dexter-Lee, Tiburon, CA

We are all entitled to a free internet. This is a draconian ruling and I will not participate if this continues.

—Keith Forrest, Volcano, CA

This act is a bad decision to make for the American people. If our lawmakers could remember that they serve the people of this country, and not the companies of this country, we might actually see some positive changes.

Please restore our internet's rules or it will be taken over by some companies that just want to make money.

—Jimmy Sity, Mandeville, LA

Please help America to continue to be a leader in computer innovation.

—Michael Freeman, Los Angeles, CA

The Internet should be equally accessible to everyone. By allowing companies to charge extra for better access, the law will deliberately be encouraging values that do not correspond with a Free America. Please classify broadband Internet as a telecommunications service, as it is used by millions of Americans in the US, as well as educators, small business, and nonprofit organizations that try to make this country a better place. Net Neutrality maintains a healthy economy and society and wards off internal tension.

—Shantay, Granada Hills, CA

The internet is the only way for those without voices to be heard and for the titans of wealth to be criticized without censorship.

—James Rokke, Minneapolis, MN

Stop censorship! What happened to America being land of the free?

—Momo Smith, 4325 149th PL NE, WA

Keeping Net Neutrality very important.

—Dustin Bray, Troy, IL

Please fix this. Giant greedy corporations should not be allowed to block/slow down certain websites. This type of thing goes beyond people having to potentially pay more to watch certain shows, movies, etc. This is another way to block freedom of speech. Not only that, but this is potentially bad for small enterprises. Please, please, fix this.

—Marcella A. Brubaker, Eagle Point, OR

Please listen to our voices FCC Leadership. The internet is the greatest mediums for people around the world to educate, share, build communities of individuals, and learn. The further implications of internet neutrality being stricken down would lead to the censorship via financial hurdles, and financial burdens on our poor. Please realize this will negatively impact every person out there to the gains of the financial powerhouses who would see this net neutrality die for their own financial gains.

—Graydon Allerton, Cincinnati, OH

Thirty years ago no one could ever imagine that such thing as the internet will be invented. Nowadays, life without internet for the most people is unimaginable. It is rooted in our communication and banking. Some people consider the internet as the most important invention ever. My personal opinion is that every invention has its time, and the internet is the greatest invention of our time. I will support my theory in the following paragraphs. Firstly, the internet provides enormous amount of information. Everyone can find all types of information on millions of topics. That way they can find data for their work or school projects. Also, people are able to find information on every subject they are interested in. Moreover, with searching engines like “Google” and “Yahoo Search” it’s even easier for them to find the exact information they are looking for. However, this easy access to so much information can sometimes be dangerous. For example, someone could search the web to find a way to build a bomb. This kind of information, if not in the right hands, can be very dangerous. Secondly, people are using the internet for communication. People can participate in social networks like “Facebook” or “Twitter”. Also, there are millions of chat rooms and even dating sites. Communication through the internet is easy and available to everyone with a computer. With it, people can keep in touch with their friends in distance, or make new ones. Nevertheless, this way of communication can sometimes be inefficient. Face-to-face conversation, atleast in my opinion, is much better. Last but not least, I want to say that the invention of the internet could not be even possible without some earlier inventions and discoveries. As I said above every invention has its time. First it was the discovery of fire, then the invention of the wheel. Later it was the electricity, the telegraph and the computer. All this led to the invention of the internet. It can be concluded that, there are many great inventions, every one of them important for its time. The internet, even with its flaws, is the most important invention of our modern time.

—Jorl Hammerswing, ,

The FCC should protect an open internet and not allow it to controlled by business ventures who determine what you can or can't view.

—Lloyd R. Jackson, Kansas City, KS

No one country has right or rulership online, it is neutral, accessible to every person in every country, don't deny people the right to what is global property... AGAIN

One mistake on the scale of "citizens United" was more than enough. Stop this now.

—Ed Moore, Bradenton, FL

This needs to stop right now. Keep the internet open and free if you want people to remain as passive as they are. Don't and I'm quite sure the public will make it clear you made the wrong choice. Your call.

—Samuel Elmore, ,

Please save our government!

—James M. Harrison, Harrisburg, PA

Keep out your hands from anti-neutrality rules. Net Neutrality lowers the barriers of entry for entrepreneurs, startups and small businesses by ensuring the Web is a fair and level playing field. It's because of Net Neutrality that small businesses and innovators have been able to thrive on the Internet. Let's allow them keep growing up. They use the Internet to reach new customers and showcase their goods, applications and services. What companies like Verify, AT&T and other providers is trying to take control of its power. They just simply can't do that. Without Net Neutrality, the next Google being built in a garage somewhere will never get off the ground. And it gets worse. The court's decision and the FCC's bungling have put more in jeopardy than just Net Neutrality.

—Iván Cernadas, ,

Open internet is my only hope of getting my home grown business off the ground.

"...A government of the people, by the people, for the people!"

—Chris Story, Benton Harbor, MI

Chairman Wheeler, I strongly request that you and your peers at the FCC take a hard stance on Net Neutrality and data capping practices. I live in an area where a choice in ISPs simply isn't an option: it's Comcast or bust. As a recently unemployed Mainer trying hard to make himself relevant and profitable in a digital marketplace, I rely desperately on the Internet. Unfortunately, I also live in a Comcast test market where I am unfairly having fees added to a bill I already struggle to pay, simply because my particular line of work requires me to use a little more bandwidth than other customers. Still, Comcast doesn't care that I can't afford an extra $20-$30 a month while I'm trying so desperately to get back to work. Their profits are up 28%, meanwhile I'm having to cut other services out of my life in order to pay them MORE money than I initially agreed to. This has to stop. Please, help me and others like me, and take immediate action on this. Innovation and creativity are being stifled in the name of profits for big businesses that wouldn't even exist had their innovation been stifled not that long ago. We need your support.

—Justin Meader, Eliot, ME

Pass this or you should be jailed.

—Greg Thomas, silver spring, MD

—Joseph Oldham, Lexington, KY

I have no desire to see the freedom we have on the internet to be stripped away, blocked, or limited in any way or resemble in any part "the great firewall of china". Please get this right, the use and very limits of the internet should be held by the users not a corporation or government.

—Tim Daugherty, Turlock, CA

I would never trust industry giants to oversee my freedom of information. I want that left up to me. When others control what we as citizens are allowed to see, it spells the end of democracy.

—Ms. Eva E. Hatch, Richmond, VA

This is to control our expanding networking opportunities and to repress knowledge.

—Lisa LeBlanc, Austin, TX

The Internet, as we have seen, is an indispensable tool in the dissemination of useful information, as well as in the preservation and promulgation of democracy and freedom, globally. We must not allow such a powerful tool for good to be transformed into yet another one-way channel of propaganda and/or profit chasing.

—John Rodat, Troy, NY

Power to the PEOPLE. NOT CORPORATIONS.

—Jennifer Diaz, Chicago, IL

Your current actions are truly UN-american. You should be ashamed. Broadband is the future (and present) of free communication. Why would you not treat it as such. Broadband IS a communication service far more dynamic than past technologies. I believe that greed has led to voluntary ignorance regarding the facts of this topic. One day even you may need net neutrality to save your way of life.

Net neutrality is mandatory for democracy--DUH. Correct your idiotic mistakes now!!!

—Karen Mukherjee, Houston, TX

ISP's as an 'access providers' SEEMS like a more accurate description than 'info providers' because ISP's are not the ones providing the info; the internet users and content creators of websites & articles provide the info as they retain the rights & control of their content, we simply ACCESS it via the ISP's. 'Internet Service Providers' provide access to the internet, they don't create the internet, and thus I don't feel they should have control over how we USE it, only over how we access it. If they retain control over how we use the internet it's going to create further complications down the line regarding grey areas - nip it in the bud.

—Raj, ,

Please keep the Internet Free and Open.

Instant access to unlimited information and services at our fingertips is vital to our country's' entire identity. It is what has made the 21st century what it is, and is vital to our way of life, our social and economical infrastructures, and our standing as a world power. Strong action needs to be taken in order to protect ourselves and our country's future generations from profiteering corporations that seek to take buy our legal system so they can further separate the gap between the rich and the needy. Inaction could create a loss of education and resources to those that would need it most, and upset business throughout our country as the cable and cell monopolies hold our most needed services hostage for piles of cash, which would crush students and small businesses. Instant communication and access to an entire world of knowledge is a powerful tool that needs to be protected and shared for the benefit of our entire country. Please help us keep our country strong and growing for everybody and protect our most important asset, knowledge.

This is absurd

—Ivan Totchev, Chicago, IL

To quote the ACLU, "Net neutrality is one of the foremost free speech issues of our time, ..."; and "The Internet is a supernova of free speech – ..." The First Amendment protects against censorship from the government, but it does not protect from private parties. A few big companies are threatening the openness of the Internet as a forum for speech. It is crucial that policymakers protect Internet openness, for all the same reasons that free speech is important in the first place (such as, the right to express oneself, the right to organize, to tell truth to power, to criticize others, and to engage in democratic conversation and debate). Thank you.

—Peter J Luciano, Columbia City, OR

Why would any sane individual want to give even more power to those who already have the most of it? Let me guess, whomever allowed this travesty is being well paid (though not in any traceable way) to affect this change.

—Jennifer Marshall, Watonga, OK

This shouldn't even be a question in your mind. It's the right thing to do...this isn't China.

—Angie Holloman, Casselberry, FL

I want my internet to be without limits. Everyone should be treated the same on the net and big business has no place on the net.

—Michael R. Mitchell, Brea, CA

Net neutrality is important. Please do what is best for the public.

—Robbie McBeath, Denver, CO

The internet must be left as the last bastion of truly free speech and not given over to the highest bidder. We have already lost too much to the highest bidders.

—Joseph Bisson, San Diego, CA

Net-neutral dump pipes is the only way to an acceptable Internet.

—Logan Moseley, New York, NY

It is time for multinational corporations to stop controlling governments actions regarding national communications. Re-instate broadband access as telecommunications service or modify existing laws to give broadband the same protections as telecommunications service for everyone.

Net Neutrality is an awful idea -- do not try to resurrect that miserable policy. It will stifle innovation and investment in the networks. Be glad the court overturned the FCC's rules.

—Steve, Alexandria, VA

Come on, man, it's time to make sure that Net Neutrality doesn't disappear.

—Roger Raby, Walnutport, PA

Help us, you're our biggest hope!

—Per, Washington, DC

This decision will stifle innovation and eviscerate free speech. In a time when we need more small businesses, this will make it even harder for them to become established. This can't be allowed to stand.

—Melissa Wilson, Fort Worth, TX

How the lobbyist for Cable interests became the FCC chairman is but another example of DC's revolving door policy. The people no longer have representation. Only Corporations have the monetary and political clout to get any attention.

—Traci Squyres, Ramona, CA

The FCC is a branch of the Federal government. It should heed Lincoln's words from the Gettysburg Address , " that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain -- that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom -- and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth." Give the internet back to the people!

C'mon it's not bad enough that everything else in our lives is being regulated these days but now the internet too ? And what about all of the people who are unemployed and trying to find jobs ? You have to apply online these days and now not only do you have to pay for internet but you have to pay extra just to find work ? You've gotta be kidding me. Don't take away our last form of free expression... That ironically already costs us money. How is this ok ?
—Myka Montgomery, San Antonio, TX

The term “net neutrality” refers to the principle that everyone should have equal access to the internet. However, companies like Comcast, Verizon, and AT&T want to monopolize internet access for their own financial gain. They would take away individual internet rights and procure sole ownership to the internet that Americans, not corporations, created. The demise of “net neutrality” would allow these companies to control what goes on the internet and stays on it and permit them to sell better usage to the highest bidder. This goes against democratic values. It puts the power in the hands of the minority and takes it from the majority. The American people will have no rights when they use the internet, and the control that these companies wield will simply continue to grow. It equates to the digital destruction of democracy. It was society's interest and support that created the internet that exists today. It is unethical and immoral for a few companies to capitalize on society's sacrifices and needs. The people created the internet. Companies have only sold access to it. Without the support of the American people, the internet would become worthless. It is the patronage of the masses that makes the internet so worthwhile. Take that away and the one-percenters would find the internet far less lucrative. To put this into another context, think of the roadways. Should construction companies have the authority to create traffic laws? We allow the owners of private highways to charge tolls just as internet companies charge for access; however, ownership does not give companies the authority to manipulate the U.S. legal system for their own financial gain. That is extortion.
—Christopher Johns, Carmel, IN

My local internet provider was swallowed by the American Company 11net. I now find my emails are routed through an American Government facility in California, WHY? Why are you allowing the violation of my privacy? I am no threat to the US or her people, and the argument that if I have nothing to hide why worry does not wash with anyone of integrity.
—Brian Snowden, ,

This is a ruling that has global significance and could change the face of the digital world overnight destroying small businesses, minority languages and the whole dream of "universal access." Net neutrality has to be maintained.

—Richard Carlisle, Springfield, MO

honestly, is this road being traveled again? Look; as a person who pays MONEY for something i should have some right to use as I wish, either for gaming or social media, or hopefully streaming one day and I am sick and tired of this. People; the internet is ment for free use. Period. In the USA we have rights. big bushiness and government please remember; WE give YOU money. Wanna do this? You won't get a red cent. And if WE are paying for this, where is OUR representation? We have a right as a nation to representation you cowards, we did NOT put you people into office to do this. Do your job or face losing your positions as called for by the American people.

—Bradley Morgan, Buffalo, NY

This recent verdict is as un-American as corporate personhood and relating money to free speech. You should be deeply ashamed of yourselves. What would your mother say?

I want freedom of choice which the FCC can make happen. If the FCC does not reclassifying broadband ISP's, it will allow corporate America to rape users of choice and money, creating micro-monopolies. Verizon and other companies will make money by throttling internet connections creating favoritism for specific sites which will have a domino effect on destroy jobs in the private sector creating more harm than good. In order for this country to evolve with jobs and economic status we must think about the long game of what is to come with business opportunity and not crush those opportunities that make this country amazing. Imagine if you will if all the roads in america were the internet and private companies owned them, nothing would get done as effectively and only certain people would be able to do their business well. Allowing private companies to take control freedom will only allow them to twist it to their own will, making this capitalist state more communist.

—Sean McMahon, Phoenix, AZ

Stop trying to control everything. We are already programmed and controlled enough. The internet supports the essence of freedom. Let it be!

Classify ISPs as common carriers.

—J Brian Bailey, Richmond, VA

As the nation that created the Internet, we must not give up our leadership of a content-neutral Internet. Bandwidth providers should be in the business of providing bandwidth without trying to control the speed at which certain traffic travels based on type of content, sender or recipient.

As the owner of a website design/development company I am beyond saddened to see Net Neutrality struck down. Every small business should have the same ability 'out of the gate' to be successful the way that it was. No one should have to pay more or rely on an ISP to have a fair shot. Please repeal this new policy so everyone can still have a chance!

I get my news on the net. I don't want my news censored because someone has decided I don't need to see it. All news is news no one has the right to limit or slow down my receipt of it. Additionally, if I subscribe to time warner and pay for their internet connectivity and I pay for a service like netflix by limiting my access to netflix they are limiting free trade.

—Linda Walker, Willard, OH

This is the one thing that could ruin the United States' ability to create and compete with new services and industries in the future. Information must be classified as a utility!

—Adam Tuck, Banks, OR

ISPs should not be allowed to any way slow down or downgrade services that I paid for. They also shouldn't be allowed to charge certain sites to allow them better access/throughput in turn raising what I would need to pay indirectly. There is very little competition if at all, maybe the government should provide free internet services via the TV broadcast spectrum.

No to tariffs on the Internet! Why should content providers have to pay ISPs, when it's the broadband subscribers who asked the content be sent to them? Pricing should be transparent, and covered by the subscribers, not by the broadband provider that controls access to the provider. If ISPs are charging too little to cover their costs, then the subscribers who are generating these costs should pay more.

—Michelle Unwin, Winthrop, IA

Net Neutrality is a requirement in today's modern age of everything being down over TCP/IP. Once ISPs are legally allowed to modify their traffic as they see fit, the modern internet economy of consuming content is flat-out over. I hope the FCC is prepared for that if they refuse to classify ISPs as common carriers.

—Alex Kapaan, Buffalo, NY

Do the right thing! Don't silence the already marginalized voices of the world from expressing themselves on the Internet!!

—David Jones II, Baton Rouge, LA

Internet Service Providers are carriers of data, not owners. They should only carry data from point A to point B regardless of what it is, just like how telephones, USPS, FedEx, UPS and every other "carrier" is doing.

—Christophe Rioux, Bellevue, WA

Give us back our net neutrality NOW.

—William Kelly IV, Tulsa, OK

For a nation that allegedly values freedom and equality so much, it's rather shocking that the need for net neutrality was even a courtroom-debatable issue. ISPs by definition "provide internet service," that's it. It's in their name. The only Content Regulation Providers I know of are in the PRC. I also find it rather ironic that a federal judge actually held that an executive agency like the FCC could be overstepping within its own field. Not to mention the "plenty of alternatives" argument--right, because we all have dozens of ISPs ready and willing to provide cheaper, competitive pricing to every house in every small town across America (let alone the rest of the world). Good luck, guys! Don't let megacorps buy our freedoms, whatever they're willing to pay!

—Joe Helgeson, La Crescenta, CA

The thought of a company possibly throttling internet traffic because of competition is unheard of and appalling. Imagine the internet now which is free and open. Now imagine it when no net neutrality; a company can lock and down on their service, nothing but their products can connect to the internet excluding third party products. Internet sites can be blocked and throttled to benefit said company for example, Verizon can throttle or block traffic all together to Netflix, and block all Comcast owned channels such as NBC, or block programs from Disney which not only include the host channel but everything under them such as ABC, ABC Family, all ESPN related channels and other Disney channels as well. I beg you to reconsider to your actions by accepting Verizon's argument. The internet should remain open so everyone can benefit from possibly the best thing that has ever been presented to people here

We are already paying higher gas prices food prices housing is more than 3 times UR income.Cable is to high.They can up the bill with no notice.This is not right to get rid of a law that regulates the flow of the internet for greedy IP's .We are in tech world and need this technolgy to connet with jobs and school work and every thing else. What right do U have to censer the right of media from internet companies and those who use the internet for there phone service.U have no right to favor big Mega bussines over the ones the people who pay for UR service that keep U in bussiness.So U cannot be trusted to be fair because U seek to keep anyone U deem a threat out of competion so U can keep people with with an old way of viewing media.UR wrong and U need to be stopped.

—Nathalie Marie Cuellar-Mayoral, Miami, FL

This is a no brainer. Companies will abuse market dominance if net neutrality laws are not established. Due to the high cost of building an infrastructure, most communities only have one real option for broadband. Because of this, the companies are free to abuse their customers, and the customers must simply deal with it because there are no other options. These companies also have the ability to abuse content producers and force them to cough up unjust fee's for the "right" to reach an end customer who has no other options.

Fix this please!!!

—Jeremy Iriarte, Charles City, IA

Restore Net Neutrality before the internet is a pay per view fiasco

—Corey Drescher, El Mirage, AZ fix it

—Steven Tazic, Chicago, IL

Why is everyone always attacking the internet?! LET IT BE!

—Desiree Dillon, Columbus, OH

There is no need for this bandwidth is not a limited resource. Stop the LIES, this will not encourage economic growth, it will in-fact stifle it. Support the freedom of the people, not the corporations. Corporations are not people either, not until a corporation can be put into a jail cell and raped by an inmate.

—, Missoula, MT

getting rid of net neutrality is like repealing the monopoly laws for large businesses.

—Deborah R. Drescher, El Mirage, AZ

As a software developer, this decision impacts not only my individual right to the internet but my job and livelihood. It is time for our generation to stand up for what is rightfully ours.

—Ryan King, Raleigh, NC

Net Neutrality needs to be protected. This will have ramifications across much more than Internet speeds. It will stifle creativity and the access to knowledge based on economic status. This is a ridiculous ruling that needs to be overturned now!

—, Noblesville, IN

To whom it may concern, i belief it is fundamental to treat broadband like a communications service. Also please restore Net Neutrality rules in order to maintain the internet as it always has been!

—David Carpio, Livingston, CA

An open, free network is vital to a free society and promotion of freedom around the world.

—Ms. Emily Bristow, Austin, TX

I moved away from an "emerging" nation in order to escape the type of unfair and biased control you are giving corporations with such rulings. This is a government BY the people, FOR the people and I did not elect corporate officials, nor can I get rid of them with my vote. Free market economies do not work to what is essentially a basic utility like roads.

—Michel Guerreiro, Fayetteville, AR

The physical networks that compose the internet are a crucial telecommunications pipeline and deserve to be protected as such.
—Jeff Blagdon, New York, NY

I had a dream that all internet was created equally. It was a pretty good dream.
—Zachary Albert King, Amory, MS

But seriously.
—Ashley Faulkner, San Francisco, CA

My livelihood depends partially on the freedom to start NEW products and businesses on the internet, without paying exorbitant fees to providers who would surely throttle me.
—Joshua David VanderHook, Saint Paul, MN

the lose of net neutrality is a violation of the first amendment in the united states the ruling against net neutrality is a ruling for corruption bias theft and censorship and the monopolization of media into a super lawless agency all with a ok nod from the courts
—William Motill, Cleveland, OH

Keep net neutrality alive!!!
—Zeke Scroggins, Richmond, KY u guys r butts

Lack of net neutrality will ruin the internet as we know it.
—Lucas Weiland, Alexandria, MN

NET NEUTRALITY NOW PERMANENTLY!!
—Roseann DeLuca, Auburn, NY

If I have to give money to a company that blocks any part of the internet from me or charges additional fees for any websites I might visit, then I would rather give up the internet entirely. Because that is BS. And how in the hell was Internet access not already a telecommunications service?
—Tyson, Santa Rosa, CA

We need net neutrality to preserve the human innovation that is the internet.
—Christopher Dolan, Los Angeles, CA

We don't want the internet run like our cable is run.
—Kevin Stern, Indio, CA

The internet is a beast that cannot be controlled. Trying to control it will only result is you getting bit.
—Makinah Starkey, Saginaw, MI

Net neutrality!!!
—Rhett Melton, Conway, AR

Don't let old people who are scared of the internet have anything to do with it.

—Keefer Vincent, Greene, ME this affect the rest of the world to!

—Harry Lassen, ,

Net Neutrality needs to be taken very, very seriously. Dont start pricing out people who can't afford to pay a premium price, they're the ones who need the internet the most!

—Mr. Tom Oliveri, camberwell,

The Internet Is For The People and should be kept open and for all to use

—Cristian David Del Bosque, San Bernardino, CA

Restore Net Neutrality.

—M K Ashraf, ,

YOU WILL NOT DO TO MY INTERNET WHAT YOU DID TO MY CABLE TV! LONG LIVE NET NEUTRALITY!

—Marc Laberge, ,

Are we Americans or American'ts? Freedom is what we deserve! Don't turn your back on Americans when we need you the most.

—Richard Saperstein, Collierville, TN

Restore the Net Neutrality rules.

—Tolga Balci, ,

FCC: You are hypocrites.

—Sean, ,

Keep the net neutral, its a safe haven for those who wish to stay independent and free of the clutches of corporations.

—Liam Snape, ,

Government corruption is allowing this. Enough is enough!

—Dean Milette, Yarmouth, ME

This actually affects citizens worldwide, to whom you hold an obligation to uphold net neutrality as much as to those in your own country.

—Caroline, ,

Small websites will not be able to compete with large corporations who can afford to pay an ISP's fast tax. Google, Microsoft, and Facebook were born in garages and dorm rooms. To deny the opportunity to future innovators is pure folly.

—Joe Rochinski, Scranton, PA

we NEED to stand up to the criminal telecoms and show them that we're DONE sitting back and letting them steal from us. they CANNOT steal our internet.

—Robb Page, Delray Beach, FL

Let's not limit the potential for free speech and honest debate, two values our country was founded on, by assigning some voices more importance than others.

—Riker Jones, Norwalk, CT

Protect democracy, protect free, equal and open access to Internet.

—Laura Kayacan, Sturgeon Bay, WI

Greedy bastards need to keep their hands off of our internet freedom if they want to keep them attached to their bodies.

—Joseph, Mountain View, CA

Shame on you FCC for not addressing this issue years ago.

—Carlos Barrionuevo, Takoma Park, MD

Robbery is still illegal

—Rune Ellingsen, ,

We need Net Neutrality so that innovation thrives! Also, I want super fast speeds for cheap like Google Fiber. Make it so!

—Jeremiah Johnson, Morgantown, WV

I pay a premium already for faster service that is NOT faster. At certain times during the day I just cannot get on. At what point do our tax dollars work for us instead of big business?

—Penelope Williams, Studio City, CA

We, the People, deserve a neutral method of communication in this cyber age. We really rail against the idea of interception by uncivil eyes. STOP IT, please.

—Thorleif Glenn Ellison, New Albany, IN

You have failed as an agency of the people if you do not take action. Lobbying does not delegate laws in America, and the people should not be subject to corporate governance. You make the laws, now make the right ones

—Matthew Vega, Brooklyn, NY

The FCC has at its dispose right now the power to fix this problem save net neutrality. All the FCC has to do is decide that a company that owns the wires is a common carrier telecommunication service. This is a definition that was backed by the Supreme court in 2005, and has confirmed that the FCC is well within its rights to make that decision.

Bring Net Neutrality back or future generations will look down upon us as the generation that killed the Internet

—Abdalla Sherif, Starkville, MS

FCC: Please restore everyone's right to traffic freely without others getting involved!

—Holly Moore, Madison, WI

Broadband is clearly a communications service and needs to be treated as such.

—Benjamin Skrabak, North Kingstown, RI

The most important battle of our lifetime. If we, the people lose, the countless generation coming after us will live in the intellectual darkness and not even know it..

—Marko Mijuskovic, Morgantown, WV

The internet was created with tax money and should not be the property of corporate america
—Nicholas Ladendorf, Springfield, MO

It's extremely important to protect the internet. It's A free and open source of information available to the masses. Don't let them ruin it!
—Guven Kemal, ,

Seriously, we shouldn't even have to sign this. Its a no brainer.
—Mark Morrison, Ashland, OR

Chairman Wheeler, The appeals court did not say Net Neutrality Rules fail to serve society. Rather, they said you need to publish an Open Internet Order which has better craftsmanship. Get it done! The Internet is a common carrier. There must be a published rate structure for all customers. If you pay the fee, you get the transport. Canals, railroads, interstate trucking, packets. Plant your flag in our century. Thank you,
Jerry Nelson OSA IEEE
—Dr. Jeremiah Nelson, McLean, VA

Please do this before it is too late for consumers. We deserve an Internet that isn't arbitrarily restricted based on the whims and greed of large corporations.
—Chris Mergerson, New Orleans, LA

Restore Net Neutrality before the capitalist assholes of this country ruin the last frontier we have left.
—Chad Preslar, Garland, TX

Net neutrality has been the fundamental principle that has driven this era of unparalleled communications innovation. Without these governing principles of net neutrality, the United States risks stifling competition and losing our preeminence as the world's leader in software and technology.
—Curtis Tongue, San Francisco, CA

Please re-classify broadband providers as telecommunications providers so that net neutrality can be restored.
—Paul J. McLaurin, Durham, NC

Do not let over regulation and oversight of the American people slowly destroy America's freedoms and liberty's
—Thomas Morris, Louisville, KY

The Internet is the place where the 1st amendment can be protected and upheld in its purest form, please don't let corporations attempt to take away the rights of the American people by limiting what content we can access and how we express ourselves. Thank you.
—Lauren Walker, Bartlett, TN

не прощаем, не забываем
—Alex, ,

This is important, do not drop the ball on this!
—David Slifkin, Staten Island, NY

It's time to step up and keep the Internet open and free from corporate interests.
—Chris Sivanich, Madison, WI

Everyone has the right to free internet as much as they have a right to free speech!

—Gregor Dežman, ,

What happened to freedom

—Shawn, Bellingham, WA

Let's take action against these corrupt politicians. They really think they rule the world..

—Robert Bell, Jonesboro, GA

I already pay for cable service to even use the internet!

—Tegina Williams, Wellington, FL

Do not charge tariffs for internet use will cripple internet use and economy cause no one will be able to afford the amounts so which will stop people from making money

—Brandon crump, Cleveland, OH

Say no to more freedom killing!

—Marcus Gabb, Chicago, IL

Enough is enough

—Mukaya Hoye, Highland Park, MI

Leave it freeeee

—Cece Duru, Columbus, OH

How dare you try and charge us for something that should be free. We already pay for the Internet service, and the device we a viewing the Internet on. It makes no sense how corporate America is so money hungry. You can only live in one house at a time, you can only drive one car at a time. Stop being so money hungry.

—Davon Covington, Chicago, IL

Cable and internet already ar monopolistic . Any more and you turn a non competitive system over to the large corporations.

—Dr. Joseph Orthoefer, Rockford, IL

Please keep corporate America away from my internet. We are already subjected to their ads on a daily. They do not and will not own the internet.

—Chloe Foster, Montgomery, AL

As someone who uses the internet daily, and routinely counts on being able to access a variety of sites, I feel that not enforcing neutrality will simple spread the "micro transaction" concept to another medium, forcing me to be nickle-and-dimed to death by every little service that now has to pay "bandwidth fees" to be usable.

—Mr. Bill Weir, Pittsburgh, PA

Net Neutrality is of the utmost importance to our American society. The free internet is the cornerstone of our society globally. By allowing corporations control over the free internet, it will only stunt America's prosperity and reduce our rank among neighboring countries. Please protect net neutrality.

—Anthony Meadows, Saint Charles, MO

Don't let corporate interests destroy the internet. Restore net neutrality rules. This is important.

—Jorge Hazera, Arlington, VA

Free internet!

—Miles Lewis, Philadelphia, PA

Give us free!

—Robert Graham, Newark, NJ

Keep the Internet free

—Kenneth Williams, Houston, TX

Keep it free!

—Melvin Lewis, Philadelphia, PA

Free!

—Connie Lewis, Philadelphia, PA

We will not stand for this.

—Chad Woolard, Austin, TX

If we don't have net neutrality, our lives will be fundamentally worsened. And why do we always support policies in favor of companies over people?

—Lori Daniells, Harvard, MA

dont fuck wit my internet fam

—Rfields, Dorchester, MA

We already pay for everything else in our world. The internet is the only thing we have left that's free. Don't take that from us!!

—Adrianne Berry, Athens, GA

Keep the internet free. This is a democratic nation established in freedom of the people, limiting our access to any information is essentially stating that our rights are non-existent. It is our right to view and do as we please so long as we stay within the parameters of God's commandments and the laws of the land. Don't take away our rights!

—Constance Benson, Kennesaw, GA

Information an access to communication is vital to our country's growth. We depend on the internet as it is - available to ALL.

—Raziya Reavis, Fort Worth, TX

I would like to keep the internet free and fair

—Lomax Edwards, Saint Johns, FL

Classify the carriers like we classify the power companies! THEY ARE A UTILITY!!!

—Joseph Coleman, Salt Lake City, UT

Please don't charge us humans for internet

—Johnny cardona, Paterson, NJ

DO THAT AND SEE CRIME INCREASE FROM BORED PEOPLE THAT CANT USE THE INTERNET LIKE THEY USED TO.AND ANGRY PEOPLE LIKE ME THAT WOULD BE REALLY ANNOYED IF YALL DID SOME STUPID SHIT LIKE MESS UP THE INTERNET.

—Gabby, Pittsburg, CA

The internet is for the people, not the corporations!

—D J., Santa Monica, CA

IF THEY CHANGE THE INTERNET I DEF WONT BE USING IT I GOT BOOKS

—Crystal Byrd, Riverdale, IL

What's next. The provider blocking sites because they do not agree with their view point. Limiting free communication and information is the next step. 1984 for real.

—Charles Bassett, Crossville, TN

Keep it free.

—Tiffany Robilotta, Mastic Beach, NY

Let's keep it free

—Kurt Darrell, San Jose, CA

We need the internet to stay free as it currently stands. Otherwise corporations have the ability to benefit financially and prioritize connections over others.

—Scott Rinebold, New Windsor, MD

Why is this even an issue. Keep the internet NEUTRAL!

—Mike K., Van Nuys, CA

The internet should be free for everybody and should not be "bought" and sold by anyone. I am sure this isn't the vision Bill Gates had when he created the internet. This is America not some communist country. Stop This Now!

—Walter Hill, Thomasville, GA

As a IT Consultant and as a consumer, I strongly believe Net Neutrality needs to be restored to ensure a healthy, productive, open internet for all to utilize.

—Eric Mendes, Dorchester Center, MA

Keep it free

—Darren, Baltimore, MD

FUCK GREED....THE GREEDY WILL FALL....

—Kevin, Atlanta, GA

Keep net neutrality alive!

—Tiffani Sloan, Washington, DC

Lets do it!

—DeErick Bryant, Savannah, GA

If this happens in US, rest of the world will soon follow behind. NOT GOING TO HAPPEN!!!

—Valtteri Saukkola, ,

Big money can not be allowed to win. We must band together and right this wrong.

—Martell Marcus, Salisbury, MD

Our rights do not matter anymore and they should! Stop it, Big Brother!

—Deborah Conton, Brooklyn, NY

Stop trying to jack up the country buying charging us for air. Yes air!

—Peggy Lewis, Seattle, WA

How about no?

—Kiana Hayes, Woodstock, GA

We need to restore Net Neutrality!

—Joe Bruce, Boise, ID

VIVA Net Neutrality!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

—Quentin Hill, Kernersville, NC

Keep it free please !

—Gary Cayetano, Staten Island, NY

Don't add more costs to families already struggling. This will widen the gap between the poor and the rich. Children in poorer homes will not have the advantage of internet use for homework. All neighborhood libraries are not safe havens for kids.

—Charnetta Dozier, Oakland, CA

Net neutrality is important to us all. Do not let greed get in the way of what is right for us all.

—Vincent Harris, Jackson, TN

KEEP THE INTERNET FREE FOR ALL!

—Steven Church, Jamaica Plain, MA

This action is absolutely critical in preserving an open internet, one ruled by the people, and not by anticompetitive corporate interests.

—Nathan Mealey, Ann Arbor, MI

Lets take action!

—Christian Delossantos, Bridgeport, CT

Free internet forever!

—Kelly, Stone Mountain, GA

Please don't allow the cable companies and lobbyist to dictate this section of business.

—Antonio Calico, Woodbridge, VA

We pay for our online gaming which is a hassle we would like to keep our internet free and at good speed.

—Christopher Varns, Philadelphia, PA

You don't know what trouble and greed you have just unleash onto us.

—Carnegie c Fils, Gretna, LA

The problem is the avg age of our representatives. How can they vote responsibly when over half of them don't understand the technology at hand?

—Corey Treaster, Smyrna, GA privacy is our right

—A Dacosta, Fort Lee, NJ

We the people of the United States deserve better than what our politicians are giving. It's time to take action on our rights that are being taken away everyday with the stroke of a pen.

—Rj Quails, Charlotte, NC

as a technical professional and start-up founder, hindering the open internet harms small and midsize businesses and ultimately the income the government derives from the businesses and their employees

—Johnny Washington, Hammond, IN

No one get's to regulate free speech!

—Scott, ,

Keep it free. The big boys already make enough by shoving ads down our throat.

—Christopher Brundage, Brooklyn, NY

ARE YOU KIDDING !!

—Michael Moody, New York, NY

I operate two small websites, fighting for traffic and market share. Cannot live with ISP discretion on whether they like me or not.

—Mr. William Cody, Cleveland, OH

Freedom of the Press shouldn't be less free because of technology but more free because of it.

—Rodney L Carthans, Saint Louis, MO

Quit screwing over the middle class America. Middle class flips bill for everything only way to make it is to be high class' or low class. One takes what they want the other gets handed everything they want.

—Donnie Fint, Louisville, KY

We already pay for internet these high ass cell phone bills cable bills all include a price for internet so why they want more we already living pay check to pay check to make ends meet enough is enough

—Latoia miller, Hempstead, NY

This is truly wrong.

—Nidialeak, Washington, DC

Freedom

—Demetrius Brown, Gilbert, AZ

Keep the internet free!

—Larry Parker, Chicago, IL

out of control...go that way with this bullsh*t

—Shanett mcwilliams, Upper Darby, PA restore it before we make our own internet

—Albert Puckerin, Brooklyn, NY

Do not let our liberties be taken whilst we look away.

—Craig Clavin, Patchogue, NY

We pay for service nothing should be blocked unless user blocks it.

—Jeneen Brown, Dundalk, MD

Free enterprise keep word FREE!!!

—Roger Coffey II, Miami, FL

This is just absolutely ridiculous. We pay vast amounts for everything else. Its unnecessary to add another tab to our monthly bills

—Amyah Gissell, Teaneck, NJ

Keep the internet free. Do not allow ISPs create another cable or satellite style system.

—Robert Lee, Sumter, SC

This action is another example of class-ism and an attempt to control the masses. Information and knowledge are power. The lower class is becoming to powerful and educated for their own good. We are not making the proper decisions for the country, so to control us the amount of information must be controlled. Kinda reminds me of slavery and not teaching slaves to read. If you can afford to pay for information then you can be as educated as you want. If you can't afford it then you can remain ill informed and and uneducated or sick as in the case of healthcare. I live in a country where every man is created equal. I believe that. I will fight for that. Just like my ancestors did.

—Andria Stone, Atlanta, GA

Please take action

—KaliK, San Carlos, CA

This is ridiculous we already pay extreme prices for the internet this just makes harder for technology to grow us it has these past years

—Rishonna Cokeman, Savannah, GA

I will not let a corporation dictate the laws of this country.

—William Artz, Los Angeles, CA

Man Up!!!!

—David, Waterbury, CT

A free and open internet is essential for a 21st century free and open society. PLEASE, continue to support net neutrality to support an internet dedicated to the free exchange of ideas and information. Thank you!

—Jason Burns, Ames, IA

ISP should be treated as common carriers. If not, they should be held legally accountable for everything they transmit.

—Craig Pryor, Iowa City, IA

Not to sound uneducated but my feelings on this topic can be summarized by a very simple phrase "fuck that". What other countries do this? Far as I know, none.

—Joseph Blanton, Columbia, MO

UNACCEPTABLE!

—Gerard Finnerty, San Diego, CA

My internet service is not an information service. I did not subscribe to consume information systems furnished by comcast, but to communicate with information systems around the US and the world. I want my freedom of expression to be protected from corporations that seek to control and extort it.

—Gabriel Heim, Acworth, GA

Put an end to conditions that lead to ISP monopolies and duopolies! Consumers need more choice!

—Jordan Boland, Olympia, WA

As ISPs actively work to remove competition, they have become actual monopolies. We need regulation to ensure open access and net neutrality.

—Walter Wolanski, Portland, OR

Striking down net neutrality is striking down people's most common platform for freedom of speech in such a technologically dominated era. Please fix this potentially catastrophic problem!

—Ivan Potter-Smith, Winston Salem, NC

Neutrality is the future of innovation.

—Jay Block, Bridgewater, MA

As a software engineers who specializes in internet commerce application development, but also a remote worker who relies on a fast, secure and stable internet to do my job, I understand that network neutrality is a critical component of not just keeping the internet free (as in speech) and open to all, but also in keeping it maximally robust and competitive. My career is at stake in this.

—Gawain Lavers, Tucson, AZ

The sitting judge failed to recognize areas where only one option exists. There is no option to take your ball and play in another court. This decision opens the door to Monopolies. The internet doesn't belong to this Government, it belongs to the world.

—Christopher Gervais, Navarre, FL

The state of US broadband is a world-wide embarrassment. Please take action.

—Nick Farwell, Seattle, WA

no to censorship bu throttling internet traffic

—Petr Buben, Davis, CA

I already pay a monthly charge to have internet within my home. What is the world coming to? Stop being greedy.

—Antoinette Davidson, Bear, DE

This is important to me. ISP's have too much power to begin with.

—Ry Whittington, Morton, IL

The internet is not free as it is. Only if u go to a library. Any other venue charges u. When u get it on your phone, it's included which means u pay for it, it is not free but should be everyone communicates via internet. From social networking to job interviews. It has become the chosen way to communicate nowadays. Some venues require everyone to have an email address. How is that possible to be used if not everyone has access to the internet? What about indigent people like myself? Homeless people? What about poor families with children who need access for homework & projects? What about us? Everyone needs to have free access to the world's chosen means of communication? So, charging more for less is wrong. Please don't. FYI, even using this petition requires email & internet access. I tried to click the take action button without supplying an email address & it made me give one. If I can't check it unless I pay for a phone's service, home service, someone else's, or a point of sale service where they offer limited access for a fee, how do I get to use the internet? If they disconnect a person's cell phone, they no longer have the internet. When has it been free any way other than a library?

—Rolanda White, Suitland, MD

Keep and protect the neutrality of the Internet.

—Stephen Shaffer, Northville, MI

Please do not let corporations control everything. The Internet should be open to all, not just the rich.

—Matt Brown, Iowa City, IA

Rule that they are common carriers and force them to treat all traffic equally without regard for source or destination.

—Leonard Jaffe, Columbus, OH

Not only broadband, but cable providers in general give us no choice of service and competition is nil. This needs to change!

—Bruce Richwine, Richmond, VA

Please protect Net Neutrality..

—Darrell Langford, Madison, AL

Seriously, FCC, this is insane. DO THE OBVIOUS RIGHT THING. Internet access is a telecommunications service.

—Nicholas Kalister, San Jose, CA

Common carrier status for network pipe owners and access providers is critical for the stable, reliable, and fair operation of the global internet.

—William Page, Round Rock, TX

With the use of internet for VoIP, news/press, and public discourse, you could very well say that you are giving them an easy way to limit everyone's freedom of speech. All that being said, I don't think there is an ethical concern with pricing tiers for speeds or data caps, I just don't like that part.

—Daniel Moess, Rosemount, MN

Don't talk about it! Do it!

—Jamie McCarthy, Melrose, MA

How exactly ISPs were ever categorized as "information services" rather than "telecommunications services," I'll never understand. Please do the right thing for consumers.

—Mr. Aidan Short, Oxnard, CA destroy patriot act as well

—Jayson Mickel, Erie, PA

Tv was free then we had to pay for that and a lot at that what next do we need to pay for air

—Bridget Powell, Burlington, WV

I've enjoyed the freedom that the internet has provided since the mid-90's and am very sad to see that great freedom being chiseled away at by big corporations. Please bring back net neutrality.

—Timothy Milligan, Benton, IL

I can't think of a better way to stifle competition and innovation than allowing carriers and providers to control the speed of individual services on the internet.

—Zachary Thomas, Streamwood, IL

Save Net Neutrality!

—James Kazmierczak, Berlin, MA

As an IT Manager for a small company, the fact that several systems we use rely on cloud infrastructure and network communication could be hobbled because the cloud provider (or their customers, such as us) could be penalized because we are not paying for the fast track on the Internet is ridiculous. This must be fixed NOW.

—Adam Vogini, Canonsburg, PA

Stop the Madness!!! What I browse is my personal business.

—Tommy Killfigure, Columbia, SC

Especially important with phone systems all moving to IP networks, this should make the issue open and shut!

—Jason Ahrens, Seattle, WA

We cannot let the local monopolies the broadband providers have win this fight.

—Brandon Ganem, Brighton, MA

Fuck Verizon!

—Derek, Campbell, CA

As a technology startup founder, we need network neutrality to keep an even playing field.

—James Gibson, Gainesville, FL

I do not believe that a lack of net neutrality has any advantage or benefit whatsoever for consumers. It only benefits the companies that provide internet at a detriment to the consumer.

—Alden Reed, Newark, DE

Verizon's shared data usage, Is kicking my ass.

—Will H, Philadelphia, PA

What happens in America almost always trickles through to Canada.

—Nicholas J Matear, ,

That comment about how ISP's want to provide "interesting services" to their customers is a blatant lie.

—Alex Beatty, Santa Clara, CA

The internet is the telephone of the 21st century.

—Craig Burdett, Austin, TX

Net neutrality is essential for my business' operations.

—Eric Rand Jr, Frazier Park, CA

Hands off the internet.

—Joshua Crisp, Dallas, TX

The internet has become the primary communication means for a large portion of the US. This precious resource should not be controlled solely by big business. I'm happy to pay a fee to have access, but not for "Verizon's version of the internet" or comcast's version. Do for the people what they can not do for themselves.

—Max Matson, El Dorado Hills, CA

These bastards need to be stopped!

—Emily Pokoik, Chesterfield, MO

The Internet is the new freeways of the world. Let it be open and let it thrive. Cities will grow on the highways and citizens will prosper.

Please restore Net Neutrality

—Kiat Hong Ng, Austin, TX

Most people have little choice in broadband provider, and certainly little influence over their behavior. Network access is too essential in this information age to trust that the ISPs will not distort our only access for their own monetary or political gain.

—Shawn Dream, Riverside, IL

The FCC has the power to stop the destruction of the internet as we know and love it. Please use your unique authority to reclassify broadband Internet access as a telecommunications service.

—Christy Edards, Beverly, MA

Don't fall down the slippery slope.

—Blake Burns, Round Rock, TX

It should be mandated that the people who make decisions regarding the future of the Internet actually understand how it works and the impact of their decisions. It's sad that this hasn't happened yet.

—Mr. Alexander Yue, Los Angeles, CA

How the internet providers are not classified as common carriers by now is beyond me. Internet is the new phone is the new electricity.

—Damien Leif, Pompano Beach, FL

ISPs should have been classified as common carriers back in the '90s. It's time for the FCC to take proper oversight of the regional duopolies and their anti-competitive practices, for the sake of the citizens and American broadband progress.

—Brian Brauchler, Lakewood, OH

Don't let corporations determine what we can and cannot see.

—Paul Gouge, Frederick, MD

I will drop Verizon as a ISP if this happens.

—Shimell Hinesman, Decatur, GA

Internet connectivity is no different from any other telecommunications service. Please treat it as such.

—Craig Rae, Honolulu, HI

To allow innovation to flourish!

—Brian Chamberland, Salem, OR

It's time the FCC develop a backbone. The will of the people or the will of corporations. Hopefully you will make the right choice.

—Joe Phillips, East Haven, CT

Net neutrality is all about protecting innovation by restricting monopoly power. Imagine what would have happened if AT&T treated phone calls over MCI as a second class or even blocked them?

—Lawrence Yang, Parsippany, NJ

Please! This is highly important for net neutrality to keep consumer interest at heart with the Internet!

—Dustin Hamilton, Brookfield, IL

It's ridiculous that our tax dollars continue to support the monopolistic tendencies of the telcos. The lack of competition in the broadband space continues to cause us to fall behind other countries and that is extremely disappointing. Please reclassify these services as title two common carrier and enforce absolute neutrality with regard to source/destination/protocol.

—Eric NEsvick, El Dorado Hills, CA

I cannot support any legislation or action that limits the ability of people to freely access any information, data, or any other media on the internet.

—Brian Westermann, Trenton, MI

Please, do the right thing, and take a stand for the people. Business and the economy are supposed to work FOR Americans, we shouldn't be fighting them.

—Mark Edward Sinclair, Chicago, IL

Net Neutrality will only help the consumer and promote market competition. Favor the consumer, not the local ISP monopolies, and declare ISPs to be common carriers.

—Mark Jansen, Mason, OH

I pay for my internet connection. ME. _I_ pay for it. The deal was that it gave me access to the entire Internet, not just the parts of it my ISP wants me to see. This isn't Compuserve or AOL anymore, where you bought into a closed community. Netflix should not have to pay my ISP to carry traffic to me because _I_ already paid my ISP to carry Netflix traffic to me! Allowing ISPs to meter or throttle traffic is like allowing private companies to put toll booths and speed bumps on public roads in hopes of directing traffic away from their competitors (Netflix) and towards them (the ISP's Pay Per View).

—Richard Downer, maple valley, WA

Now's the time to take action!

—Michael Stauffer, Wynnewood, PA

Keep the internet open! Keep corporate agendas away.

—Brian Artz, Oak Lawn, IL

keep the net neutral

—Jeff, Plano, TX

I need this for my job. I Like being employed, don't you?

—Josh Marshall, Midland, MI

Save Net Neutrality!

—Kyle, Independence, MO

Restore Net Neutrality !!!!!

—Danilo Martinez, Hallandale, FL

The oligopoly of the internet service and media conglomerates threatens the very nature of the internet. It's openness and freedom of information depends on unbiased and unfettered access to all aspects of its existence. Internet service is a utility in the year 2014. It is expected in order to do business, in order to educate, in order to be a part of society. As such, internet service providers must be classified as common carriers and be made to follow the same regulations that allow for unbiased service to all customers from all content providers.

—Ryan, Charlotte, NC

A lack of Net Neutrality places ISPs as gatekeepers to access; access by customers to new companies! If an ISP anywhere between me and new start-up has a competing service, they have the ability and the motive to stifle the innovation of competition. They are acting as common carriers by transporting information from between desperate parties. they has no ownership claim to that data, and have no right to modify its routing preferentially. Allowing such behavior is a hindrance to democracy and a barrier to entry for new companies. Just imagine if every new website had to contract explicitly with each ISP in the world so that the ISP's customers could access that new website, how much that would slow progress and invention. It would turn the internet into cable TV.

—Chris Lawrence, Phoenixville, PA

Please, do what is ethical. America's future prosperity relies on a foundation of open internet.

—Nicholas Davis, Saint Louis, MO

The FCC works for the American public, NOT for Telecoms. Protect the open Internet.

—Michael John Sandstrom, Alany, GA

Kansas Cable Telecommunications Association introduced state legislation to make it almost impossible for cities and towns to offer broadband services. This will significantly reduce ISP competition.

—Keith Grant, Castle Rock, CO

net neutrality is important in the same way that other telecoms are i.e. phone lines, radio, etc. these are all public, basic infrastructure that must be universally accessible, reliable and affordable .

—David Wright, Imperial, MO

This should be a no-brainer.

—Maurio Tillman, Calumet City, IL

One thing that has been proven time and time again is you cannot trust corporations to protect the interests of their customers. They are only interested in 'maximizing' shareholder value which these days means providing the customer the minimum possible service for the most money since there is minimal competition due to them having been granted local monopolies.

—Aaron Angelo, Clinton, MA

Just for once can we do something for people instead of profits?

—Adam Sporinsky, Chicago, IL

Do your job. Regulate, punish the monopolies, and open up the internet for competition.

—Chris Shrake, Bettendorf, IA

We don't demand sane pricing, or removal of caps. We just demand equal opportunity to access the content WE want to access in the same timely basis as all other content.

—Zach Coles, Marietta, GA

The internet has quickly become a basic need for all parts of life. Consumers and Businesses should be protected from the ISP-centric decisions on how to handle everything the way they want.

—Gary Satko Jr, Encino, CA

I can say for certain that, as a web and game developer, giving the ISP's the ability to block any action, protocol, website, or application can be detrimental to the workforce that relies on the internet. If it were up to the ISP's (like it now is), they could entirely block the bit-torrent protocol which is widely used by online game companies to help speed up downloading and using their services. A perfect example is the downloader application that Blizzard uses to update it's game clients. That launcher app has bit-torrent protocols built into it allowing players to assist in the update with other players. Of course the speeds are capped at whatever your isp bandwidth is, but you aren't relying on everyone hitting one (or a few) servers to get the potentially large data file since it's packet source is split amongst all of the users. Also, the email used to sign the petition is a masked email specifically to prevent unwanted subscription type emails. The unmasked version of the email is trackstar4life@gmail.com

No one entity should have all that control over the internet that's unheard of.

—Kemar Jones, ,

Especially in an age when most of our economic growth has come from internet startups it is more important than ever to preserve the freedom and openness of the web. In addition I see the telecoms like AT&T are looking to move all landlines to IP. This means that they NEED to be classified as a common carrier in order to preserve the basic telephony service we have come to know and use.

—Thomas Russell, Durham, NC

This is especially pertinent as these companies make moves to not only restrict internet use, but also shuck regulations over phone use by moving it onto their data networks.

—Benjamin Goodman, Alexandria, VA

Like telecoms of last generation, we need to treat ISPs like common carriers so every American can benefit from a fair and open telecommunications system.

—Adam Kraus, Somerville, MA

This decision reeks of "Big Brotherism"! Please don't let it stand!!!

—Dee Grimsrud, Madison, WI

Internet Service Providers should be regulated as common carriers. Also, if landline phone companies are regulated as common carriers, why aren't wireless carriers? Phone service is phone service and both should fall under common carrier rules.

—Anthony Dobson, Cedar Rapids, IA

For the love of god don't let corporations take control of this area.

—Marla Jones, Cincinnati, OH

I love my cable company (comcast) however I do not wish they have more power then they do now, and get my services blocked or throttled. Internet to my family is as important as electricity, water, sewer, and more then phone. Thus Internet cannot be held to less regulation then phone if our society now and more so in the future sees it more crucial to our lives.

—Eishani Hearvy, Medford, NY

This is not negotiable in my opinion.

—Michael Miller, Circle Pines, MN

Network neutrality is desperately needed to prevent the internet from degenerating into a handful of corporate-run walled gardens. In that environment no real competition can occur, and all we do is ensure the existing oligopoly (which is quickly approaching duopoly) is perpetuated.

—Jeremy Rohrer, London, OH

Treat them as utility like electric, water, etc. They're just pipes...transferring information and bits. ISPs should've been classified telecommunications service providers since the start so we wouldn't have this Verizon lawsuit threatening free and open Internet. Don't sell out America to ISPs who are afraid of competition. Take, for example, TWC and others, getting state legislators on their sides to propose legislation to ban municipal networks. Most prominently, Kansas and Google Fiber case. Don't Verizon and rest of ISPs bully you, FCC. Fix your mistake and restore free Internet.

—Ossama Ansari, Gibsonton, FL

While you're at it, declare the cellular telephone carriers to be common carriers as well, as they also obviously provide a telecommunications service.

—Greg, Camarillo, CA

I believe net neutrality is an important concept for the users and that the narrow spectrum of suppliers (non-competitive) prevents the user from having a practical choice in access to Internet services.

—Charles Weesner, Tucson, AZ

The internet has become something more than a commodity, it is a necessity to compete in the world today.

—Jon Reed, Andover, KS

Do your job and regulate. The Internet needs to be content neutral - that is what made it the great resource it is today. I implore you to keep it that way.

—Kenneth H. Slater, Chester, VT

The Internet (and the WWW) is primarily a telecommunication service, not a passive media distribution network, no matter how much the nation's ISPs and content providers wish that it were.

—Vernon, Frederick, MD

Compared to 10-15 years ago internet access has become far too much of a necessity to have ISPs block, degrade, or prioritize services at will. I work from home and all of my work is done via the internet. I VPN into my company's corporate network and use remote desktop, VOIP, download large ISOs and in general utilize my internet connection extensively. What would keep my ISP, AT&T, from deciding to throttle or limit VPN connectivity without paying an additional fee just because I use it for work? What's to keep them from discriminating against any of the other services I use on a regular basis?

Restore net neutrality, and extend net neutrality to mobile networks. The state of retail competition in broadband in the US is non-existent. Restore net neutrality as a first step to improving broadband network service in America.

—Sam Hancock, Denver, CO

The internet has become core infrastructure for modern life.

—Chris Lee, Arlington, MA

Telecoms will destroy innovation if net neutrality is not restored. Please take action and restore net neutrality. Thank you.

—Charles Simmons, Longmont, CO

Practical reason: I live in a semi-rural area where I have only one broadband option. If my ISP decided to throttle some of my favorite media sources, I wouldn't have an alternative access solution. Idealistic reason: to me the Internet is a place of freely moving information. I understand that my ISP is acting as the conduit, but they already charge me for that access. Allowing them to treat different sources of traffic differently contradicts both my concept of the Internet and seems like it would allow the ISP's to double-dip by charging both their customers and the media providers.

—Branden Ohlinger, Fleetwood, PA

The FCC needs to reclassify internet providers as common carriers so net neutrality can be restored.

—Adam Creighton, Austin, TX

We all know this is the right thing to do. None of the other arguments matter.

—David Grattan, Kent, WA

This is of the utmost importance. The FCC better be on the correct side of history here, or the entire US will end up on the wrong side. You know what's right. Please have the courage and resolve to make it so. Thank you for your time. Evan Chicago, IL

—Jeremiah McConnell, Lafayette, CO

Seriously - step up and do your job, protect the American people's interests and not that of big companies or you're just as bad as all the other politicians!!!

—Barrett Nicholas, Spring, TX

We're already behind the rest of the free world in terms of quality in regards to internet service. The current net neutrality ruling as it currently stands will only make things worse. Until widespread competition is able to take place we will be at the mercy of a handful of ISPs with conflicting interests. Net Neutrality is the only option at this point to keep the current group of ISPs in check.

—Mark Keenan, Alpharetta, GA

I don't want to see consumers have to pay more to access websites because cable companies want to split the internet up!

—Danielle Crain, Atlanta, GA

Regulation is not the antithesis of a capitalist market. When an industry with high capital costs self selects toward natural monopolies, the public good requires government action. Just as with the telegraph and telephone, the internet is a key foundation of our economy, and ensuring its neutrality as a delivery service, and not as a vehicle for corporate profits at the expense of customers, small business, and the American economy, is vital to the American markets remaining competitive globally. It is no stretch to imagine these ISPs doing exactly what everyone fears, so please help the American public by labeling them telecommunications services.

—Andrew Boulter, Birmingham, AL

Stop protecting business interests and start protecting consumers.

—Paul Lenhardt, Cedar Rapids, IA

The Internet is not quite as important as the street in front of my house but it is today already far more important than the telephone ever was. Access is like water and power, an essential of modern life. Internet service must be regulated for abuse in service and price just like these other classic utilities.

—Mark Christiansen, Belmont, MA

Side with people, not corporations.

—Matthew Hedgecock, Southfield, MI

With AT&T making it's intentions clear that they want to move all communications to IP, it shows that the Internet has become the replacement for the phone systems. This means that the Internet has now become the Common Carrier of choice, which shows that broadband now needs to be classified as a Common Carrier, and keep the connections neutral. No one should have the power to dictate what information is available to the consumer or charge differing prices depending on what content the user is requesting. Telephone connections are two-way connections, unlike television, which is only a one-way connection. ISPs are trying to say that Internet communication doesn't need to be regulated as a two-way connection, which has been proven to be false.

—Joshua Drignat, Reynoldsburg, OH

Net neutrality should be a right!

—James Johnson, New York, NY

FCC i am requesting that broadband like a communications service, and to restore its Net Neutrality rules.

—Brenda Mayberry, Rochester, NY

This should be a 2-fold approach. The other being that we will require greater broadband competition in every market which will further ensure the customer is being served fairly. The lack of both IS the perfect recipe for unfair practices.

—Miachael Sirois, Lawrence, MA

—Kristina Joseph, Fort Lauderdale, FL

This is going to be one of the most defining moments in the history of the internet. We can't allow these corporations to squash anything they don't like and wring more cash out of the people they profit infinitely from.

—Joshua Pavoncello, York, PA

Broadband offerings in the US are pathetic compared to those in other countries (Europe, South Korea, etc.). Net neutrality is a prerequisite for much-improved broadband in the US.

—Andrew Kalman, Palo Alto, CA

The building of the ARPAnet was a government project. TCP/IP was invented with the money from a government grant. If Verizon wants to OWN the internet, let them create their own communications protocol and get the entire world to use it. Then they can do WHATEVER they want with it. UNTIL then, the Internet is NOT theirs to own.

—William Franklin, Grand Ledge, MI

ISPs are de facto common carriers. Let's make that de jure.

—Brian Allen, San Francisco, CA

Since most ISP's have de facto monopolies in their areas of business, greater effort must be made to preserve consumer internet access than for an open market.

—Mr. John Willoughby, Reno, NV

Net Neutrality is also import to simply make products work as expected. For instance, my ISP blocks the port I would need to host my site or blog, and because it is one of two viable players for getting internet where I live they can get away with it. Regulation is needed because I cannot simply move my account to someone better. In this case the Market as failed and it is time for you to fix, for the average American citizen, not the companies taking advantage of the lack of competition.

—Joel Kelley, Laramie, WY

What Verizon is doing is a crime

—Brooke Prisby, Streetsboro, OH

Our ISPs should not be able to control how we use our internet connection.

—Kimberly Blackmon, Denton, TX

I believe in freedom of speech, and should be able to exercise that over the internet -- for which I pay multiple companies each month. I don't understand how they can claim network neutrality impairs their "freedom of speech" when individual voters (i.e. me) pay them explicitly for a common carrier service.

Instead of trying to figure out a way not to classify them as common carriers, figure out a way to classify them as common carriers.

—Dan Austin, Olympia, WA

Fight the power

—Earon Toliver, Fairfield, CA

I'm disgusted by this ruling. These companies are going to abuse this ruling by limiting internet access and charging citizens for access to popular internet websites similar to how we are charged extra for HBO and other stations. Please do not allow this. Were already paying more than other countries for a decent connection. Why not amend the law to charge massive sites like youtube extra past some current benchmark of use which can be in turn amended as the bandwidth consumption benchmark changes. More insanity like the Citizens United decision will only lead to more corruption.

—Robert Muller, Ballston Spa, NY

Keep the internet free. Its ridiculous that they want you to pay more than you already have to pay now.

—Renee Eccleston, Little Rock, AR

We need the net free!

—Matthew Batie, Atlanta, GA

Everyday I grow more disgusted with our government. As a middle class American I'm already being charged for everything. And no I do not receive welfare, nor medicaid. Everything I have I earned. Now to turn around charge american tax payers for internet is outrageous. As middle class American who has worked since I was 14, I have never received any type of help from anyone. All of you Baby Boomers in office are destroying anything left of the American dream. Stop attacking the middle and lower classes incomes. We don't deserve this at all.

—Lixenia Vazquez, Bronx, NY

Restore Net Neutrality, please!

—Valerie Gilson, Gales Ferry, CT

This is outrageous! The internet is already paid for monthly, there is no need to increase the cost by doing this. If this goes through, it will help to widen the gap between the rich and the poor. While the rich will be able to afford the fastest speed, the poor and others who do not want to pay, will have to suffer.. as always.

It's bullshit to charge people for what they do on the internet. We already pay for the internet plans!

—Juno Stone, Nashville, AR

why would they it dosent make sense

—Patricia Carroll, Washington, DC

I don't usually take part in these things, but this seems to be a good cause to stand up to.

—Drew Charles, Inglewood, CA

Network Neutrality is essential to ensuring competition and capitalism. Without it, the market forces won't be able to set prices, rather monopolies will, which stifles competition. Already in many areas of the country there are literally no choices in broadband internet providers, and there is only one available. Without network neutrality, competitors of online services will be at a disadvantage to the single provider's preferences. We already see the disastrous effects on the market with the US consumers paying much higher prices for much slower speeds than other places in the world. If the consumer choice (an ESSENTIAL part of capitalism) is limited or removed, then you no longer have a free market, and thus not one run by capitalism.

—Lauren Fentiman, Hugo, MN

Anyone with even a passing familiarity of past monopolistic overreach from within the telecom/ISP sector, & is aware of how this same sector has implemented precursors to similar subscriber abuse, cannot fail to recognize the need for comprehensive, assiduously enforced regulatory control. I speak as one resident of a major metropolitan area who has precisely ONE (1) non-satellite option for obtaining internet and/or cable television programming. Immediately upon completion of Time-Warner's acquisition & re-branding of Insight Communications (my previous only option) subscriber rates were increased significantly & services included in my existing service tier were cut. Such blatant disregard of ethical customer relations promises only to accelerate without rational rules of operation imposed upon providers who face absolutely NO competitive pressures. Thank you for your time & attention to this statement of opposition to unregulated monopolistic provision of public utilities & services.

—Robert Mautz, Blacklick, OH

The state of broadband in the US is pathetic. Maybe it's related to the revolving door between lobbyists and commisioners at the FCC. One guy leaves, and goes to lobby for the cable cartels! The next guy in is a former lobbyist. Somehow, I think they're still going to be friends with all their former lobbyist buddies. It's ridiculous.

—Stephen Kirsh, Cary, NC

I am trying to start a home based internet business. I only have one option for high speed internet access. Every year their charges increase and their services decrease. My ISP's unreasonable and ever increasing charges already threaten my business's profitability. Allowing them to to block, slow, or make me pay again to reach customers would destroy my fledgling business before we ever had a chance to succeed. Please ensure a level playing field for my business to enter the market by reclassifying ISP's as Common Carriers and regulating them as such. President Obama promised a year of action that would avoid endless political debates when possible; so please act swiftly.

This is not what capitalism is supposed to be about...Internet providers are getting out of hand, and they need to be put back in their place. Please do not allow them to tighten their grips any more on their customers.

—John J. Meise Jr., Roanoke, VA

History shows that for-profit corporations WILL abuse their customers given the chance. Taking the capability out of their hands by regulating it away is a good thing.

Free internet!

—Aliyah Hoover, Plainfield, NJ

As we progress down the path to an all IP based communications network, it becomes even more vital, that the network providers be required to treat all data fairly. While I don't believe this means ALL data should be treated equally (I believe communications to emergency service providers should be prioritized above other types of data), the vast majority of data should be treated as equal in the eyes of the law, and thus by the people we pay to transmit it.

I whole point of the Internet is the fair use of free information for everyone. Let me say that again. FAIR use of FREE information for EVERYONE. I understand if you report someone who has taken your property without consent or giving credit where it is due. But when they do then you have no right to shut them down or complain. Fair use is fair use.

—Daniel Martinez, Aurora, CO

The FCC's job is to promote the public welfare, not the welfare of a handful of monopolies. There is no upshot to the public, or the United States economy, to have internet access restricted to protect the business models of a handful of telecommunication companies. Protecting their own licensed content is in the best interest of ISP like Verizon, Comcast, and other major to-the-home ISPs. The consequences for an open Internet are dire, and should not be underestimated. Please establish a clear legal framework that upholds common-carrier status of ISPs. And while you're at it, fix the same problem with Mobile carriers too.

—Jonathan Ferguson, South Burlington, VT

Everything of value on the internet today is because of the net-neutrality inherent in the original concept of the internet, and net neutrality is the sole hope for a vibrant internet of the future. Verizon, ATT, Comcast, and TWC will destroy the potential of the internet - and of our economy - unless they are brought under common carrier regulation. The internet must be regulated as a telecommunications service.

Internet should not be tiered based on who can afford it .This is considered an injustice and can be related to slavery when racism highly existed.

—Carmelle F, Miami, FL

Seriously. When compared with radio and telephone, how much more communication is occurring over the internet.

—Ashley Cole, Freeport, ME

An open internet equates freedom of expression. Take that away and we lose an our first amendment right.

—Alison Hofer, Chicago, IL

By all means, empower the FCC (or someone) to ensure that digital media is treated neutrally. Billing should be based on volume or bandwidth - not source of content. Imagine if your street charged a toll for anyone not driving a Chevy Neon... Or if your water company charged more for a glass of water than for the same water to make orange juice from concentrate... Or if power to charge your Duracell batteries cost more than power to recharge your Eveready batteries. This is how ludicrous it is that ISPs could have the freedom to charge based on content instead of volume or bandwidth. Net Neutrality is vital to ensuring the vibrant atmosphere (scholastic, entrepreneurial, social, etc...) of the internet's first 15 years can continue into the future.

I am a college student and I need the internet not only to gather information for my reports, but to also sign in my college website to submit my papers, homework, communicate with my teachers, and for other lessons. Not only that but my job has taken the internet to use for schedules, communications, and training. We have taken the internet to make our lives more convenient. Making us have to pay more would make it harder, especially with students that can only afford so much.

—Bre'Ane Coleman, Frederick, MD

It would be deeply unwise to take away the few pleasures the poor have in this desperate, rotten age.

—Mdudu Mantango, Jacksonville, FL

I am extremely disappointed in the recent appeals court ruling against net neutrality. As an academic researcher, I believe that neutrality represents the very essence of the Internet's promise to humanity. Broadband internet must be treated as a public good, and no special interests should influence the relative bandwidth allocated to citizens. In the name of democracy, I urge the FCC to cast the Internet, which is for The People, as a public utility. I will be watching the FCC's actions on this! Best regards.

—Kevin Foster, Blacksburg, VA

They get enough money over taxing on what little we are given and are taking advantage anyway they can to make more

—Natalie Smith, Indianapolis, IN

This is a worthy cause to support. Let us not allow Verizon or any other ISP to control our freedom of content.

—Bruce Wolcott, Seattle, WA

I've been a person kid built around the internet, and I'm wanting to get into a Carrier path dealing with Technology, and with how the Tech is today it mostly deals with/over the internet. I don't want to see something that have made Man kind Advance so far go to the dumps because a small mistake. Please fix this don't allow any one company to say they control the internet. No one should be able to directly control the internet, or be able to make people pay tons more for a connection to the intertnet because of a loophole!

—Jason Tufts, Phoenix, AZ

Net neutrality please.

—Andrew Pandelakis, Phoenix, AZ

Internet Service Providers (private companies) should not be permitted to "restrict" or "control" the flow of information on the "telecommunications highway". Just as our cars have equal access to our roads, the same principle should apply to the internet. "Equal access" for all.

The Federal Court's decision constitutes a major blow to consumers, especially those in smaller markets. If ISP's can throttle any feed they wish, the result will constitute a major blow to the free flow of information. The internet has become a critical communication tool, and without access, citizens are effectively disenfranchised. What the Court has done is a travesty.

—Doug Thomson, ,

I find it extremely unfair to limit in any way peoples' ability to explore the entirety of the Internet. It should be our choice to access a website and not the ISPs. I pay for Internet access, not management.

—Becky Thompson, Houston, TX

It has been clearly shown that cable ISP's such as TWC and Comcast are monopolistic and only care about their bottom line. They will abuse any leverage they can get. Want to buy a digital cable box? Can't do it because it isn't legal. Just like when you had to buy a telephone from your Telco. As a result there is no real cable box competition and the ones provided by the Comcast's of the world suck. However they sure do enjoy that $10/month of income for each lousy box. It will be similar when they can stack the Internet deck in their favor.

—Thomas Kintz, Santa Fe, NM

—Aaron G Oles, Plainfield, IN

This is VERY important. We already let Big Business influence our elections via 'Citizens United' - we can't let Big Business determine access to the internet.

—Ed Fliege, Springfield, IL

Net Neutrality is crucial to "level the playing field" for the "little guys", meaning lowly users. Stop the monopoly control pushed by the cable and DSL industry. The destruction of fair and balanced oversight by FCC favors the ISP companies, NOT the general public.

—Michael L Bailey, Corryton, TN

We the people deserve an honest, open internet. Stop this greedy madness so that innovation, knowledge, and commerce are not put in jeopardy!

—Matt, Silver Spring, MD

Love your netflix right? What about spotify? YouTube? All of these once small startups may not have had the chance to innovate if it wasn't for a free, open and fair internet. Corporations like Verizon and AT&T are trying to change laws to make it more profitable by loosening the rules on internet fairness and prioritize companies who can pay more. Bub-bye would be the chances for young startups to bring you amazing new products.

—Matt smith, jacksonville, IL

Stop screwing the citizen of the United States.

—Frank Soto, Rutherford, NJ

Protecting ISPs is extremely important, the ignorance of the governors who voted to restrict new ISPs is disgusting. No current ISP should have the right to withhold or charge more for the access to any website. Free speech, free press, and free access to the web. This is obvious to anyone under the age of 40 and should be obvious to those older governors as well. America is falling behind in freedom and cost of internet, we should be moving to make the internet faster and easier to access, not trying to slow speeds or charge more to have access to popular sites. Inept government representatives will be the end to America.

corporate greed must be checked somewhere, starting with its ability to control information

—Troy Bass Sr, Louisville, KY

Companies do not have the right to restrict access for adults using the internet. The internet is the collected knowledge of the world which is not owned by any company. And to anyone who supports the companies current verdict, imagine if your children are not able to do well in college because a science journal website was blocked by an Internet company because it has facts about a subject that the CEO does not agree with for any reason. Should your child have to be misinformed just so an Internet provider can control profits better? Please consider this carefully.

—Pretz Reyes, North Hollywood, CA

A neutral net should be one of the unalienable rights of our modern society. The thought of allowing a large corporate (or governmental, for that matter) power to control what information Americans can consume is an affront to the basic rights of all human beings to learn, and to expand their knowledge of the world around them in an independent and unbiased way. A restriction of information in this manner can be compared to that of a master forbidding education of their slaves, so as to keep them complacent. Do not let this happen.

—John, Horseheads, NY

Hard to believe a country based on equal opportunity, would allow perhaps its' most valuable asset for that opportunity, to be held hostage by a few monopolists. Who, over decades, have shown no interest other then their own pockets. We are talking about a national treasure, which they did not invent, and which they should not able to do with as benefits only them.

—Antonio, Atherton, CA

please reclassify common carrier

—Justin Rodriguez, Fabius, NY

Please do what should have been done a decade ago: reclassify ALL ISPs as telecommunications providers, and reinstitute robust net neutrality rules under the full authority of Title II of the Communications Act. Internet Service is in no way, shape, or form an "integrated information service." Indeed, it is an Internet connection's inherently flexible, multiuse nature that allows for precisely the kind of innovation that created the World Wide Web to begin with. To strip away the flexibility and openness of Internet connections by continuing to classify them as provider-controllable pipelines will ultimately do grave damage to our economy, and constitutes a betrayal of the egalitarian principles on which this country was founded. Please, correct this terrible error.

—Dulin Ebanks, Newark, DE

The net started out open and neutral on purpose and that fostered an unbelievable level of social communication and creativity that has stunned the world. Now businesses want to fence this common media of human interaction for personal and corporate profit. Now consider how people would react if told they could not socialize or communicate with others in their normal daily life because they lived in the wrong place, had the wrong religion or politics, or otherwise conflicted with the gatekeepers of communication. The first amendment exists, in principle, to foster the free exchange of ideas so necessary to democratic government, commerce, and to the development of science. It forbids the establishment of gatekeepers. Our form of government expressly denies the power to establish any such gatekeeper in our Constitution; that when the cumulative effect of regulation or law allows the establishment of such gatekeepers, particularly private gatekeepers, that application of law and regulation is void since it contravenes any established power to do so. I strongly urge the FCC to reconsider the basis they established to define and regulate the Internet. Do not kill this goose. Its children are liable to nibble the FCC to death should the goose die.

Fuck you ill never pay to surf the net

—Doob jop, Alpharetta, GA

Keep net neutrality, our internet infrastructure is already bad compared to the rest of the world. This is not helping anyone, if there needs to be control on the internet it needs to come from the government not big companies who only will look out for their best interests.

—Jose Valencia, Bothell, WA

Greedy pigs

—Regina, Atlanta, GA

Why is the USA so far behind the rest of the world when it comes to the internet?????

—John Ross, Middlesboro, KY

Hey you guys have already done a great job protecting net neutrality. Can you make sure that all the legal requirements are made in order to make sure that we can protect the internet as it is today.

—Arpad Toth, Oradea,

It is time to stop letting Verizon and their ilk turnout great nation into a third world country

—Richard Shrum, Baltimore, MD

I demand an open Internet. I support regulating ISPs as common carriers. Permitting big companies to make special "discount" deals -- and shifting costs onto the rest of us is unfair -- and in the long-run, counterproductive. I also support VIGOROUS PROSECUTION of FCC personnel who improperly lobby, accept money or accept job offers from the industry they are SUPPOSED TO BE REGULATING.

—Lawrence E. Pfeffer Ph.D., Arlington, MA

PLEASE!

—Judy Allen, Melbourne, FL

Net neutrality is important for small firms like mine and for all Americans to have the greatest access to ideas and products. A free society and free market needs it. Please act.

—Kenneth H Davidson, Kirkland, WA

Please take FCC action and reclassify broadband in order to keep the net open and vital.

—Doug O'Donnell, Seattle, WA

The internet should forever be a free flow of information from anyone to whomever they choose. To infringe upon that is to disregard the constitution. Ever heard of free speech??

—Vanessa, Azle, TX

How can the courts give the carriers the right to put caps and these ridiculous regulations on the internet? This is the end of the internet as we know it unless you are rich. The rich get what they want so why should it stop here. Right? This is another reason to believe that there is an all out war on the middle class. I have kids that are on the internet all the time learning new things everyday. Lets not hinder our children's learning. After all the internet is called the Information Super Highway right? Thanks.

—Terry Rowland, Clarksville, TN

The internet IS a communications tool and should be under the purview of the FCC. 'Nuff said.

—Matthew Pressnall, Seattle, WA

I should not be charged extra for how I do or do not use the internet.

—Thomas Fish, Kalamazoo, MI

do NOT mess with the internet

—Mr. Keith, Honolulu, HI

I appreciate all you do for the people and glad we have someone who is on our side. Thank You

—Barbara Girton, Omaha, NE

Please act quickly to restore net neutrality. Otherwise, we will all suffer from ISP restrictions on our web use.

—Diana Sheiness, Bothell, WA

Please keep the Net neutral, however you do it.

—Charles R. Head, Arlington, VA

This is truly absurd. Why in god's name would we want to take a massive step backward in such an important technology as the internet just for short term profits of a few misguided companies. The world must mature beyond just abhorrent behavior or perish. Please do what is right!

—Tim DeHerrera, Pueblo, CO

ARGH

—Mr Ulvar Kückenflüker, ,

I know it is pointless to try to fight this, but at least I know I did my part. Shame on you all.

—Justin Fisher, Delray Beach, FL

This is a déjà vu of paying $29.95 in the early 80's to a cable company promising "no more commercials". Now they want the Internet. Al Gore; are you listening?

—Gregory D Doering, Clinton, WA

Keep the net neutral!!!

—David Springob, Bowling Green, KY

I WAS IN THE ARMY, WW II, AND KOREA; SERVED IN THE RESERVES TILL I RETIRED. I'M ONE OVER 1.4 MILLION AMERICANS WHO DID LIKEWISE. ALL THIS TO PRESERVE OUR FREEDOM! YOU MUST STAND UP THESE CORPORATE ROBBERS. YOU HAVE THE POWER. SHOW THAT YOU HAVE THE GUTS! PETER EVANS, JR., LTC AUS-RET. PLEASE HONOR ME WITH A PERSONAL REPLY!

—Peter Evans Jr., Mountlake Terrace, WA

Comcast is interfering with my enjoyment of Netflix and Amazon Prime programs. Constant pauses to "download" selected content, in my view, a failure to provide access that I pay for to services that I also pay for. Piracy?

—Cecilia M Berneche, Kokomo, IN

Please do what you know is the best for all the people, not just those with money to pay telecom lobbyists.

—James Newberry, Garland, TX

The Internet should allow free access to all. It's the modern version of our Interstate highway system!

—Kip Boyle, Covington, WA

Leave the internet open, the internet is not a supermarket and it should remain an open market. No consumer wants to pay extra money to access the content they are already paying for or previously had access to. An example: Comcast and the p2p throttling incident could happen again, plenty of legitimate services use the p2p protocol now today and who is to say ISP's wont discriminate?

—Franklin Hyatt, Joplin, MO

I can't afford life

—Jessica smith, New Haven, CT

Freedom!

—Simas, ,

Begin now with processes to collect public input and frame a new set of rules to achieve net neutrality rules that can pass legal objections.

—Justin R. Swain, Washington, DC

Access to information in this country should NEVER be limited to those with enough money to pay for it.

—Megan Neldner, Denver, CO

It is simply wrong. Without the net neutrality it is like we are paying an extra tax. I thought only states and governments were able to tax?

—Shawn A Jones, Kalona, IA

I am outraged that we have to beg the FCC to take appropriate action on this! This really should be illegal!

—Clark Gillette, Tucson, AZ

Once again, the more wealthy you are you can obtain whatever you want. This is discrimination against middle class people. We are supposed to live in a democracy!

—Carole Niemeier, New Richmond, OH

Treat broadband like the communications service that it is and restore Net Neutrality Rules!

—Ryan Hammer, San Francisco, CA

We are not some resource to get money out of, there needs to be limits on what is acceptable what a business can charge for online usage. this is too much power to put in the hands of anyone and for that reason must remain free, open, for all users of the internet. net neutrality must be restored for the sake of freedom.

—Sam LaRose, Mansfield, MA

We want the best internet service in the world. Stop the corruption.

—Gregory Gilmer, Los Angeles, CA

A free internet is obligatory in a democracy!

—June Harner, Albuquerque, NM

Net neutrality made the internet as useful as it is in the first place. It was set up for the public good. Anything else makes me wonder who's side you are on anyway.

—Roderick Sprague, Moscow, ID

Will work hard to vote OUT anyone who was involved in doing this!

—Michael McCracken, Tuscaloosa, AL

Is this North Korea yet?

—Angela Payton, Florence, SC

Don't let phone&cable companies ruin our internet!

—Hannah Rudow, Baltimore, MD

how is it that the nation that invented the internet is falling behind in infrastructure and speeds compared to other countries? Corruption and no proper regulations and oversight make it impossible for the rights of American consumers to be protected

—Phuong Quach, Virginia Beach, VA

The FCC, its leadership, and Chairman Tom Wheeler, must correct the agency's past mistakes and reassert the agency's clear authority over our nation's communications infrastructure and treat network owners as common carriers. Just as our phone companies cannot decide who we can call and what we say on that call, our ISP should not be concerned with what content we view or post online. The FCC must reclassify the broadband Internet transmission as a telecommunications service and preserve the open Internet. Please don't fail us and our democracy.

—Jackie Feazell, Oakland, CA

Please stop the nonsense

—Kayla Stewart, Bunnlevel, NC

Last night 4 times 2 movies we were watching on Netflix via our plugged into the comcast box xbox slowed down. We pay enough for their service.

—Steve Woods, Rockville, MD

Please keep the internet open. Freedom of speech has worked so far, let's not stop it now.

—Ellen Tynan, Plymouth, MA

We are sick of greedy, corrupt corporations.

—Debbie Lieuwen, El Prado, NM

This is not okay. The only people that benefit from this are big corporations. I should not be limited in what I can access on the Internet!

—Mary Senger, Springfield, IL

I no longer have TV because the converter box/rabbit ears just does not work in my area. This will continue the intellectual and internet divide between the haves and have nots if it is not corrected.

—Lari Robling, Philadelphia, PA

Does my voice count even though I am not an adult (16)?

—Rachelle Fagerburg, Longmont, CO

Do not let big business and large corporations again curb individual freedom.

—Ruth Vath, Spencer, NY

Many internet sites are important to me and to my work. I already pay a lot for it, why should I pay more for certain services that have always been included?

—Sam Nichols, Glenside, PA

This is absolutely ridiculous.

—Sarah Monroe, Dallas, TX

Americans are having their rights taken away by the government wholesale and are forced to be silent about it because they lack the knowledge and proper representation that their very government is supposed to provide them. As a multinational, this is ludicrous and the very height of political corruption.

—Christopher Abraham, Indianapolis, IN

The internet should remain neutral, not throttled, tiered or censored in any way. Thank you, Jeff Webb

—Jeff Webb, Bangor, ME

Congress on the take and who is representing the people.

—Anna M Fitzpatrick, Nuevo, CA

Save the internet!

—Tiffeny Whittington, Hickory, NC

this mess is shamefully ridiculous

—Elizabeth Brown, Duluth, MN

If broadband is not a communication service, what is? Keep the internet available to all!

—Helen R Gabel, Bothell, WA

Correct this in favor of the common good - the consumers please! It's only a matter of time before the ISP's behave like bandits. They already charge far too much!

—Mona Stone, Morehead City, NC

This is stealing rights from the people, they cannot dictate what we can/can't view, what info we can/can't receive and making it harder for people to communicate

—Chris Badaoui, ,

Please restore net neutrality.

—Heather Robinson, Granite Falls, WA

None Needed. This is just wrong!

—Anthony, Elmwood Park, NJ

The internet needs to be open to all Americans. It was designed and paid with taxes from the American people. Discrimination of one web page over another is wrong, and should not be allowed, every business should be allowed to operate on the same playing field and should not be controlled by another company thru the speed of the internet.

—Raulf Neelis, Pompton Lakes, NJ

This must be rectified immediately.

—Jonathan Spinks, Salado, TX

Don't mess with my internet!

—Ryan Grobes, San Antonio, TX

Don't let big cable companies control the internet!

—Kristina honkala, Falls Church, VA

We will not stand for this

—Vonte Davis, Fredericksburg, VA

This is a prime example of a seed that will only grow to destroy. Fuck future profits.

—James Menk, Collinsville, IL

the FCC set fair and comprehensive rules for the internet. this corporate shill judge is wrong and the FCC should reinstate net neutrality immediately

—Earl A Francart, Kenosha, WI

fuck you nsa

—Nico, Brigantine, NJ

It is this country's governments responsibility to protect the publics interest. Internet communication is a worldwide network (originally a government form of communication) that is now used as commonly if not more commonly than phone service and should be regulated so that corporations are not regulating contact but the people have the freedom to affordable access just as they are for phone service.

—Karen Turner, Rancho Santa Margarita, CA

Keep the internet open and free!

—Andy Bradfield, Oneonta, NY

Please restore the original net neutrality rules.

—Adam Fisher, Providence, RI

Yep

—Kaylee Paeth, Logan, UT

The end of net neutrality is the end of the internet as we've known it. Now it becomes just another corporate scam to control what people are allowed to see and eliminate competition. I can't imagine a worse outcome then to hand control of the internet over to the greediest b*stards in the universe.

—Mark Wesley, Charlotte, MI

Net neutrality will hinder the average computer user, raising rates that will remove affordable internet access, and will limit access to various resources on the web.

—Terry Ashmore, San Antonio, TX

There should be healthy competition within the market and not have ISP's with the ability to intentionally slow down the connections for average citizens not doing any harm to the community.

—Alyxandra Tenario, West Jordan, UT

You better do the right thing

—Rashid Gadson, Bowie, MD

Monopolistic companies like Comcast have proven that without incentive, they will abuse their customer base with awful policies and practices. Please don't allow this to happen.

—Lee Hasper, Kalamazoo, MI

Stop trying to police the world, America. Remember NetZero? It worked and it was free, once. Stop giving Big Business so much power and give the power back to the people!

—Justin Hammond, Novato, CA

We already have to pay for the service monthly. The economy is only recovering for the Stock Market ordinary Americans are already too stretched too thin. And what is the true Agenda because 90% of consumers would drop the service for additional charges. This resource needs to be protected because all employers require applicants to apply online for jobs and with 50 million people looking for work it would be pure greed to start charging extra. To The FCC, please restore the Internet to its Net Neutrality rules immediately.

—Coleen Bennett, Columbia, MD

Keep the internet free

—Cynthia, ,

We can't even get broadband at our house.

—Warren Garrett, Peru, NY

We should not have everything for sale. Not like this.

—Tijmen Snelderwaard, ,

This affects users internationally, who are not consulted, and goes against a free society in general.

—Lucas Gianello, ,

In addition, fix the gap the US has with every other nation on Earth to speed up and lower costs for Internet access.

—Milton Strumpf, Brockton, MA

Take heed! Don't think for one second that the people of this great country will stay in hibernation forever. The unrelenting greed of a few nefarious men will inevitably awaken the sleeping giant that is our nation and when we finally wipe the ages of sleep from our eyes the truth will be visible from every angle, entrusting that a self evident and conscious democracy will flourish once more.

—John Korkidis, San Francisco, CA

I had to use a VPN to view this site. Comcast is blocking it. This censorship belongs in places like North Korea.

—Jon Main, Fort Lauderdale, FL

Isn't this exactly why AT&T was broken up years ago?

—Nicholas Brenckle, North Branford, CT

Net neutrality is the ONLY option! Be free or be dead!

—Jonathan Caponi, ,

Please do what you can to protect us from being blocked!!

—Angela Self, Virginia Beach, VA

Enough is enough. Stop letting these companies come up with new ways to pick our pocket of more and more money. They're wealthy enough. The net should be free...as it was meant to be.

—Cynthia Mello, Dillwyn, VA

Freedom for All!

—Brandy Beisser, Aurora, CO

I don't believe that there are any greater social benefits in supporting the Circuit Court's decision; it affects only a small margin of the population in a positive way (ie, greater earnings, market stimulation, etc) and could potentially negatively affect millions of people. Please be responsible in making certain that the freedoms allowed by the Open Internet - a service that has allowed the amazing technological, social, and business innovations of the last 25 years to thrive - will not go to pasture. Since print media is taking it's last breath and television media and news is so astoundingly useless, the internet is one of the few bastions of true open discussion, freedom of expression, and uncensored information left in America. Please do not jeopardize the potential for these freedoms to continue unabated by allowing these conglomerates free reign to control how we - the people of the US - are able to use the most important and unrestricted information medium of this or any other age. These decisions could have implications much more far-reaching than we can imagine now.

—Sean Keipper, New Orleans, LA

I already pay for internet services. It should be as fast as possible ALL the time...

—Beth Strassman, The Plains, OH

Even poor people should have the right to information in this country.

—marcus S., Irvine, KY

Net neutrality is necessary both to protect free speech and fair market competition. Allowing Internet providers to control the the flow of information to the public, to deform their service in order to provide advantages to associated companies and/or political ideologies is entirely anti-democratic and monopolistic. It is imperative that the necessary steps be taken immediately to make and keep broadband networks, the US public's primary source of information, open, accessible, reliable and affordable for all.

—Kelly Logan, Dearborn, MI

What are you thinking????

—Clifton Brett, Carrboro, NC

Please restore Net Neutrality by reasserting the FCC's clear authority over our nation's communications infrastructure and preserving the open Internet: reclassify broadband Internet access as a telecommunications service. Sincerely, Lynn Stanikmas

—Lynn Stanikmas, Auburn, MA

I, Phillip E Fisher state that I agree with restoring net neutrality. Please, stop bowing down the the dollar. It is not almighty.

—Phillip Fisher, Kalamazoo, MI

What happened to we the people ?

—Jordan, Montgomery, TX

Do NOT take away my rights to free speech and access to information by blocking or restricting my access to any Internet site I wish!

—Bridgette King, Orlando, FL

Internet/Cable already costs too much - so much for giving ALL Americans Internet access!! You've just given Internet providers free reign to charge anything they want!!

—Lucie King, Irving, TX

THE NET IS NOT COMMERCE FOR THE ASSHOLE CARTELS TO TAKE OVER AND BEND US OVER! DO YOUR JOB THAT PROTECTS THE PEOPLE RATHER THAN SERVING THEM UP FOR THE VULTURES OF CAPITALISM!!!!!! PLEASE.

—Debbi Selbiger, Vancouver, WA

Broadband is a communications service! It needs to be protected from abusive providers.

—Joyce Dowling, Brandywine, MD

Do not allow censorship!!! This is not China. American's will not stand for censored access to the internet!

—Shari Monnes, North Chelmsford, MA

hell no!

—Terrell Goodman, Newburgh, NY

Cable companies, mobile companies, and anyone offering to transport bits of information for a fee should all be COMMON CARRIERS.

—Michelle Block, Staunton, VA

I am so tired of you taking hand outs from big corporations, you are supposed to WORK for WE THE PEOPLE not the corporation who gives you the most money!

—Margot Kelsey, Bemidji, MN

We will go extinct without your efforts.

—Karsten Lundqvist, ,

Preserve Net Neutrality!

—Andrew Miller, Bethlehem, PA

No one owns the internet. How dare you allow this to happen. Why? Who has padded who's pocket? Disgraceful.

—Julie, Bemidji, MN

Classify ISP's as common carriers!

—Mark Davis, Norcross, GA

The internet benefits all of humanity as a key source of communication. Release our ISP's death grip.

—John McNeel, Memphis, TN

I'd love to have some semblance of faith in our government again!

—Eryn, El Cajon, CA

Denying Net Neutrality through the courts could very well be considered a violation of the 1st Amendment : "...United States Constitution prohibits the making of any law...abridging the freedom of speech, infringing on the freedom of the press...". Restore the Net Neutrality rules!

—Susan Stantejsky, Denver, CO

It's not in the broadband providers' interests to support an open internet, so don't waste time waiting for them to do so. Enforce net neutrality with the authority already granted to you.

—Anthony Clark, Swampscott, MA

Sooner or later justice and fairness will prevail. Let's go for sooner.

—Tammy del Sol, Dauphin, PA

Preserve the internet and give people a say at the table on how their telecommunication service is regulated it is vital to our livelihoods. It affects jobs and safety

Net Neutrality is the Ultimate in Capitalism!!! Do Not Stifle this chance for business to flourish!!

—Margaret Carlisle, Spring Hill, FL

Freedom of information is one of the founding ideals of our country. Re-establish net-neutrality.

—Kat Monaghan, Brooklyn, NY

The free exchange of ideas should not just be for those who can afford to pay. We cannot be complacent and expect these large internet providers to do what is right over what earns the quickest profit. Please protect our right to free information.

—Margret Treiber, Naples, FL

Keep the internet equal, don't let companies turn it into another greedy profiting tool.

—Chris Smith, Elk River, MN

It's time for the new FCC leadership to correct the agency's past mistakes and to reassert the agency's clear authority over our nation's communications infrastructure. To preserve the open Internet, the FCC must reclassify broadband Internet access as a telecommunications service.

—Yolanda Evans, Houston, TX

Keep the internet free

—Asa Dozier, North Brunswick, NJ

ISP's should be given incentives to build out their networks to ease congestion, create faster broadband speeds, and increase wired access for rural customers. The higher the ratio of money they earn per year reinvested into infrastructure, the lower their tax rate. A minimum value of investment per dollar earned should be mandated by law. They get tax relief only after exceeding that target.

—Mr. Jeff Timm, Redwood City, CA

This is getting tiresome. Net Neutrality is the only fair way to deal with the internet.

—Angela Collins Peiso, Sarasota, FL

Please regulate internet service providers like other essential utilities (water, electricity). Their corporate greed should not be allowed to destroy the open internet. Please restore Net Neutrality the right way and regulate ISPs like utilities.

—Natalie Kozlowski, Marietta, GA

These major ISP's have already been abusing the general public with their slow service and incredibly high prices for the speeds available. (compared to most first world countries) Allowing them the chance to restrict content or hold it for a ransom is simply ridiculous. Please support net neutrality by reclassifying their services.

—Jesse Wotring, Elkhart, IN

Come on Tom, Take action now to protect the users and restore Net Neutrality rules. Thank you

How is data not telecommunications service? Maybe my two brothers who are E-engineers would disagree but this is just bullying. Charging is enough! We don't need to play games here!

—Geoffrey Koch, Oceanside, CA

This was a decision made without having all of the information. Too much corporate influence in our judicial process!!!

—Brian Spence, Arlington, VA

Local businesses need net neutrality. Thanks!

—Flora, New Orleans, LA

The people want a free and open Internet. It is crucial to our freedom as a country, as a people, and is a paradigm of what our Founding Fathers were striving toward. Please remember who you (are supposed to, at least) work for. Thank you.

—Stephen Langer, Saint Paul, MN

Little by little, our freedoms seem to be taken away. Is this really what you want for your children. Is it what you want for underprivileged children. The disparity between the privileged and underprivileged is what leads to violence and war. You can make a difference now. Please do it.

As a graphic artist, I rely heavily on an open and free internet to connect with customers across the country. I work on a very small margin that has no room for the "premium service" fees my internet service provider will undoubtedly impose upon me when given the freedom to leverage their monopoly power.

—Matthew W Gebarski, Madison, WI

Getting rid of Net Neutrality will eventually turn the internet into a service that runs similar to a cable TV company. Let the internet be the everybody's internet, Don't turn it over to the highest bidder.

—Mr. Mike Richard, wilton, ME

the internet is a tool of communication, we have the right to free speech, and the internet is an optional tool, organizations and special interests or government interests should invest in securing their own branches of cyberspace if that is the issue, it is not legal to use isps

Please reclassify internet providers as common carriers. Realistically speaking, for the vast majority of people in the U.S. there is not competition between ISPs. At most they have access to a single ISP provider with a near zero interest (or incentives) to provide fast internet access. The only reasonable action is to reclassify them as common carriers.

—T Robison, Somewhere, AL

Please keep the Internet the great resource that it is today! The internet has enhanced general technology and the GDP of the United States as a world leader. Allowing ISPs to regulate traffic based on type will only hurt progress of our nation to move forward with bigger and better plans, and new innovations in a variety of fields. Let's make all internet traffic neutral!

In the words of Senator Bernie Sanders "I am very disappointed by the decision made by the D.C. Court of Appeals and fear that the result will be an Internet no longer open to the free exchange of ideas and content... Whether you are rich, poor, young or old, the Internet allows all people to seek out information and communicate globally. We must not allow corporate interests to disrupt this free flow of ideas. This decision deals a blow to consumers and small businesses alike. When corporations are able to prioritize the information available to users, it stifles ideas and expression, as well as commerce and innovation."

—Nancy, East Wallingford, VT

This issue is critical to the future competitiveness of the United States. Millions of jobs are dependent on the internet, as is the training that will allow millions more to move up the socioeconomic ladder. It costs more to get on the internet in the US than in most other developed countries. People who want to use bandwidth-intensive services like online courses and job training have to pay more in the country that invented the internet than in most other countries in the OECD. The companies responsible for this discrepancy need to be regulated. Especially since almost uniformly have demonstrated anti-competitive tendencies and are almost uniformly lowest-ranked in consumer satisfaction in the United States. Failing to regulate the US internet providers will guarantee that internet access remains unaffordable for the West Virginia coal miner trying to learn a new high-tech manufacturing career with online training, or the nurse in California trying to keep her license current using online continuing education tools. We need to act now. Internet prices continue to fall in countries who have aggressively embraced broadband expansion, like South Korea, Hong Kong, and Scandinavia.

—Bryan Cattle, Woodinville, WA

Killing off net neutrality principals will lead, and is already leading to anti consumer practices from ISP's. They already are capping data and want (in a clear conflict of interest) to leave their own data unmitigated by such caps. Please do the right thing for the American people and help us by pulling the trigger and classifying them as common carriers.

Strangely the only people really opposed to net neutrality happen to be ISPs.

—Spencer Johnson, Rochester, MN

I'm not in favour of the lack of competition among Internet providers and am dissatisfied with the lack of regulation of these mega-corporations. The Internet should be considered a public utility, much like telephones USED to be, and should be funded by American tax dollars. If the Internet is not going to be controlled by a government agency, then I'd like to see more aggressive regulation for these companies that have gotten far out of control. There is no competition or choice in the market and this has affected not only the cost of service, but the speeds available as well. The United States ranks far below the technical standards of other countries - especially when one considers the price of download/upload speeds.

—Wilson Northrup, Bernardsville, NJ

The death of net neutrality is a serious issue that will adversely affect many consumers in many different parts of America. Many regions of the U.S. have only one internet service provider, and eliminating net neutrality regulations will give these corporations free reign to extort customers into paying extra for the same services they have always received. It is vitally important that broadband internet be treated as a communications service so that broadband networks are reliable and affordable to everyone.

Dear Mr. Commissioner - Please, PLEASE establish a better rules framework, founded in stronger legal protections, for Net Neutrality. Cities and townships throughout the country are already forced or concede to regional monopolies and non-compete agreements among ISPs, which have simply emboldened them to this level of hubris. As an employee in tech, and as a person who remembers pre- and post- Internet eras (and as a former employee of NCSA at University of Illinois), my ability to reach new people with new development and invention requires a free and open Internet, if those inventions are to gain any traction. New technology can't be held hostage in silence until the developers ante-up to Verizon (or for that matter all other ISPs that cover regions we'd like customers or users). Such action puts powers of taxation and regulation of an entity not owned by a for-profit company smack-dab in the palms of those companies. Offering them the ability to charge for access to services THEY DO NOT CREATE OR OWN is exactly taxation and regulation by a non-governmental entity. Look, Americans pay ISPs to service them with data, regardless of what goes over that data - the contract is to provide data at agreed-upon rates. This assault on net-neutrality is simply Verizon's back-door assault changing the nature of those contracts without losing face and requiring renegotiation with their customers. Of course, why would they think they wouldn't get away with this garbage? They've been hedging away at the issue for years now, and have really gotten very little actual airplay. Developers, current businesses, and future inventors in the industry look to you, FCC, to protect the greatest creation from this great nation in the last 500 years and not sell it off to the hands of the greediest of the greedy - they know no legitimate claim, and look only to protect their existence, embed themselves in the framework of invention, and lessen their own need to compete. PLEASE SUPPORT A LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR NET NEUTRALITY RULES! The future depends on it. -Raj Singh Chicago, IL

In order to have an actually democracy citizens need to have high quality information to stay informed about what's going on around them.

Having the power to slow down the internet is extremely dangerous and sounds like something China would do. Last time I checked I lived in The United States of America. Most of the time congress allows the FCC to deal with decisions like this. You know you have the power to do something. Maybe these companies lobbied you guys so much you can't

—Erika Rivas, Diamond Bar, CA

As a military member I have seen the effects of Big Business on net accessibility. It is the same as a phone company not allowing you to call people on other phone plans (and I have seen that too) which cuts you off from what others regard as "non-profit generating services". Please take action and make sure the internet is stays what it should be...a place where information is exchanged freely without limitations placed on it based on big business profit margins.

—Eric Charles Sims, Dalzell, SC

It would be good for ISPs like Verizon to remember just what the founding principles behind liberty and the free flow of speech brings. Nothing good has ever come from willfully retarding the flow of information. This will not end well..

—Miguel Galaz, Lisbon,

The ability of Verizon to discriminate net traffic has a chilling effect on the internet as a whole. Now that confirmation has come that Verizon is actually slowing down traffic from competitors to it's services shows that the FCC needs to reclassify broadband as a telecommunications service, and to restore the neutrality that the internet depends on.

—Matthew Wright, Petaluma, CA

People in the 21st century rely on the Internet for far more than entertainment. It is no longer a luxury, but a vital communication tool. It should be treated as such, for EVERYONE'S sake.

—Carrie Putnam, Marion, NC

Killing net neutrality would be terrible for consumers and businesses alike.

—Collin Cochran, Mokena, IL

If this continues, internet activity will cease. People do not want to be charged 3 or 4 times for 1 service. This is just a case of greed and needs to stop. The internet will come to a halt and will no longer be a place of open a free speech. No one will want to continue using it if it has more regulations than a military base.

—Victoria, Des Moines, IA

I have no other option for internet access other then comcrap. The fact that you guys cant seem to do your job is a black eye on the face of the USA. We are no longer the greatest nation in the world & if i had the ability & money i would leave this crumbling country for some place better.

—George Henry, Midlothian, IL

The FCC must reclassify broadband Internet access as a telecommunications service and end these discriminatory and predatory tactics.

—Michael LeMay Jr., Newington, CT

Democracy depends on citizens' being able to choose to access information directly from the creator of the content, without a third party (the ISP) giving preference to some content over others. You can fix this problem. You must.

—Joseph Tenerelli, Terre Haute, IN

No.

—Miko Kouto, ,

The loss of net neutrality has the potential to be extremely damaging to cyber businesses by increasing their costs of operation and ISPs slowing them down. This will severely injure our future economy.

—Nicholas Boesel, Hampton, VA

Don't let these greedy ISPs kill the spirit of the internet. If net neutrality is ended and these ISPs are allowed to charge people extra money to access certain sites faster it will stifle innovation and hurt the economy greatly. Take away ALL of the subsidies to these big ISP as they have proven that they cannot use the money in a responsible manner. They still have not built the fiber optic network that we, the tax payers, payed them millions and millions of dollars to install. These major ISPs have done nothing but rip off their customers and it has been long enough.

Verizon thought monopolies were wrong when it was a little fish trying to survive against AT&T. It can't be right now, for them to behave like AT&T was when they (Verizon) complained. Communications whether via landline telephony, mobile, or the Internet is too important to let Corporations control who can and cannot participate.

—Rilla Marshall, Kissimmee, FL

I'm tired of this. Why can't the web just be an open place?

—Brad Harper, Greenwood, IN

Put an end to this nonsense with Internet and cable providers and their interfering with consumer choice. Break up these monopolies. Forbid Internet Service Providers from owning content companies, or content companies from owning Internet Service Providers. Force Comcast, Verizon, and AT&T to divest their non-core business operations.

The internet is for THE PEOPLE, as in ALL of us, some of us barely scrape by paying for internet data bills!

—Alexandra Saville, ,

The loss of a permissionless Internet is the single greatest threat to innovation this country has ever faced. With out a neutral Internet, the US will quickly lose its lead as a global innovator. Please be intellectually honest and call a spade a spade. We can have a competitive market for ISPs, but the last mile is an essential communications service. It is absolutely crazy to think that communications link is somehow different than the original telephone line. We can not let duopoly last mile provider dictate what services are developed or get to market anymore than we can allow the electric company dictate what toasters will work on their network. You know this - please have the courage to be honest with yourselves and with the American people.

We have already fallen behind South Korea, a country that even 20 years ago was very dependent on the U.S. for aid. They used that money and created a vast infrastructure that allows them to have 100 times the internet speed at 1/4 to 1/3 the price we pay for 30 mbps. Tragic.

These corporate monopolies are destroying democracy. The internet is the last source of non-corporate tainted information readily available to the public (those who can afford it). Democracy fails without a truly informed public and certainly a TV system run by 6 multinationals has already failed us. US internet speed is shamefully slow compared with other countries. Innovation and competition is something the current system has already failed to provide. More concentration of power will only exacerbate these problems.

—Tom Dorsey, Santa Margarita, CA

We are limited to Cox Cable for reasonable speed internet, and are not being treated equally compared to individuals in other areas. We would like to see regulation so that all Internet consumers can receive equal service, that the use of money awarded to ISPs dedicated to upgrade infrastructure such as fiber optics for internet use are enforced, fair pricing can be set, and we can see the elimination of data caps in all but extreme overuse cases. The removal of Net Neutrality removes the protection granted for people to view whatever they want or say anything they want (within reason) on the internet. It's kinda like how the Bill of Right's first Amendment protects against if people express their own opinions of something: People can say what they like or don't like by what they view on the internet or don't view, with actions instead of words. Taking this away removes the ability to do so because companies can be paid to block or put a price on viewing a website, which should be free since you pay an internet bill. It violates the first Amendment.

While there is still a growing disparity of internet access in comparing rural and undeveloped areas to cities, and while there is still considerable debate on how to regulate internet commerce, allowing providers, who have a monopoly in some communities, to meter, filter, or otherwise alter internet access is unnecessary for profit reasons, and undesirable for free commerce and expression purposes.

—Christopher Navage, Cortez, CO

Stop stepping on my freedoms.

—Nils Jørgen Helgø, ,

Net neutrality is important to American democracy.

—Bruce Scholten, Edmonds, WA

make internet fast and free for evryone

—Kevin Stoop, ,

Please don't give up your fight for net neutrality. Many believe that you DO have the authority to regulate this industry!

—Angela Sterley, Altamonte Springs, FL

No more crap like this. No more.

—Zackery Powell, Shelby, NC

Yet another blow to freedom and true democracy.

—Lyn Oxberry, ,

Its A SHAME that, the politians,and rich can take whatever they want from the Average Man.Which the Average Man is what makes the World go round.With out them There would be nothing.Who would do the work and buy???

—William Hall, Hebron, IN

You have to do something now! For the love of GOD

—Kevin Taylor, Fort Lauderdale, FL

We want free internet

—Melik Demirel, State College, PA

Preserving net neutrality is the right thing to do. Hopefully you have the sense to do the right thing and not let big business rule the day.

—Susan Gadomski, Germantown, MD

Restore Net Neutrality!!!

—Lisa Trunell, Woodbury, NJ

Start treating broadband like a communications service, and to restore its Net Neutrality rules

—Cengiz Camci, Boalsburg, PA

I will not bow to corporations trying to tell me what I can and cannot use! BRING BACK NET NEUTRALITY NOW.

—Mr. Nathan Felts, Austin, TX

People are paying attention.

—Colin mattis, Phoenixville, PA

Corporations are not people.

—Elizabeth McCauley, Charlottesville, VA

Please don't sell us out on Net Neutrality! There is not enough competition for we consumers to have any real choice! There is nothing good that can come from Verizon and the rest of the blood suckers waiting to grab their piece of the pie. For once, do something for the people whose taxes pay your salaries and not the corporations who spread their bribe money around Washington.

—James Hand, Columbus, IN

The internet is the last place we have to get the truth. The press is no longer free or truthful. Keep the internet free.

—Joyce Green, Green Valley, AZ

What are you waiting for????

—David A Warsow, Fenton, MI

This is an outrage - a huge blow to Internet equal access and the freedom of the people.

—Eric McQuillin, Columbus, OH

This is important

—Philip L. Russ, Washington, DC

The internet is a llace of free exchange not corporate gains.

—Cameron Gislason, ,

We need your protection. We are used quite enough.

—Debbie Henry, Argyle, TX

Save the internet!

—Oscar Pearson, Grover Beach, CA

I WANT TO KEEP MY FREEDOM. WE ARE DOOMED IF THIS GOES ANY FURTHER.

—Brittany Marasheski, Lansdale, PA

this cannot become a bigger issue than it already is! FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

—Karly, North Wales, PA

We need to find a way to incent ISPs to increase access speeds and invest in our national internet infrastructure as an issue of national competitiveness in the upcoming Information Age. Keep innovation alive and prevent ISPs from discriminating against threats to their parents' other businesses (Netflix, etc) or for giving advantages to giant companies with deep pockets over young and scrappy startups driving US economic growth in the 21st century.

—Bruce Krysiak, Venice, CA

Right now what you're doing is NOT Net Neutrality.

—Barrett, Park Ridge, IL

Do not hand over our internet to big business. It is free press and it works best that way for everyone.

—Mary Ann Maggio, Medford, NY

Abandoning Net Neutrality is the tool that ruthless corporate interests will utilize to stifle freedom of expression and the free marketplace of ideas. The recession and unstable employment have destroyed freedom of speech for many. Restore Net Neutrality so that the diverse community of Americans can communicate unfettered.

—Margaret Thomas, Chatsworth, GA

It sounds like having some tough dude coming around periodically to collect a "protection fee"!

—Lee Jennings, Norman, OK

The principles of any-to-any communication and treating all traffic as equal have been important drivers in making the internet the hotbed of innovation it has become. Allowing telecoms to pick and choose which traffic they prioritize and place profit before openness would be a huge mistake for both the consumer and the economy.

—Alex Marschner, Eden Prairie, MN

In the 21st C., a free and open internet is synonymous with democracy. No matter what pressures you may be under to rule against this, please remember that neither you or anyone close to you may have arrived at your current influential positions if America were not a democracy when you were children. Now it is your turn to keep the original vision alive for future generations.

—Laurie Goodhart, Albany, NY

Please don't let the internet become just another way to deliver selective content from cable monopolies. The internet is more than TV.

—Peter Eddy, Boston, MA

Save small startup businesses from UTILITY ISPs crushing them before they are born. Net Neutrality MUST BE SAVED!!!!

—Ryan Diebel, Littleton, CO

Just since the recent court ruling in Verizon's favor we have seen Verizon and Comcast throttling Netflix. I live in an area with no other broadband providers so I'm forced to have Comcast. Without net neutrality, the usefulness of my Internet connection will continue to decline.

—Kevin Lynn, Frederick, MD

Please restore net neutrality. The internet deserves to be open.

—Adam Malleo, New Brunswick, NJ

Yeah, this aint gonna happen on my watch.

—Carl, ,

This mistake is going to be torn down sooner or later, regardless of what you do, but I'd prefer if y didn't do your best to ruin people's lives for the sake of a little more corporate overhead and contribute to the rapid collapse of the U.S. as a single sovereign power. Regardless of how much you hate the idea of an open and stable society, and like populace, please actually do the right thing by siding with the people's interests over a handful of share holders.

—Adam Peters, Rising Sun, MD

Our dignity as participants in a democracy depend on net neutrality!

—Susan Heitner, Brooklyn, NY

The internet is a brilliant mass communications media and must be kept open and unfettered or the death knoll of true democracy will be rung. Since accessing the internet I have had the ability to access information from many sources and my knowledge has increased exponentially. The internet can be used for relaxation but can also be used for the pursuit of higher education and, as such, is a valuable resource which must not be constrained. If separate pricing structures are allowed to be set up then this valuable tool will be hampered and young and old alike will suffer the consequences.

—Roslyn J Mac, Agoura Hills, CA

I have been an internet user for nearly 22 years. Most of my life. I feel very strongly for net neutrality. Don't let them take control.

—Clay Baum, Lake Dallas, TX

All internet providers should be considered common carriers.

—George Bajuscik, Tenafly, NJ

Please let information and ideas flow freely. Don't allow corporations to further control free speech.

—Adam Fernandez, Florida, NY

THE INTERNET IS FREE, DO NOT TAKE THE INTERNET AWAY. STOP DICTATING.

—Dillon Ventura, Warwick, RI

Please do not make the internet a subscription based service.

—Sean Meyer, Minneapolis, MN

FCC, please fix this ruling. Prove to us that it's not the FCC that needs the fixing!

—Nicole Lilly, Koloa, HI

The net neutrality act is a large part of internet freedom and liberty. Like it or not, striking this down is something you helped and now YOU must fix. Money isn't everything.

—Jack King, Irvine, CA

Net Neutrality is a Human Right Here's to democracy, free speech, free information, take the Empire down please, it's choking Us all.

—Mary Lou Anderson, Las Vegas, NV

Get your stuff together because we as citizens only recourse against organizations which wish to undermine the very necessary free and open nature of the internet as a communication medium is to take away our business from them. Unfortunately that's not a viable strategy for we the citizenry because the concept of true competition in a free market isn't present within the internet telecommunication realm. You actually have the power to do what is needed as long as you use the correct language to do so.

—David L Severance, Littleton, CO

As a former Verizon employee, I am aware of the intentions of the executives, and how they regard the consumer. I believe if they are not held to tight standards and forced to hold to a certain code of conduct, they will make every attempt to exploit the non-competitive nature of broadband in the US to maximize their profit margins. Their interests lie, not with the consumer, but with their shareholders.

—Chris Wagster, Edmonds, WA

This is good for America.

—Joel Hornsby, Oakland, CA

Change is a forever flowing river, those who stand against it will always be swept away by the current.

—Daniel L. Martyn, Richmond, VA

Take action please

—Jacob Luther, Sylvania, OH

I work for a CLEC (Competitive Local Exchange Carrier), so from my experience it does not make sense to me to classify the internet as an "information service". There are multiple telecommunications technologies that rely on the same technology used to provide internet. I guess we should classify those services as "information services" too...

—Franco Parico, Staten Island, NY

Restore Net Neutrality rules - keep all of the Internet available to everyone.

—Michael Mainz, East Lyme, CT

Please keep fighting the good fight for equal internet to all so that internet packages wont become like television packages where you have to upgrade a certain package for what you want to use your internet / watch on your TV. Thanks from alot of people in Denmark

—Dana Maralason, Hayward, CA

Please, enough already. We want to be able to look upon our government with pride once again

—Gordon Oxendine, Seattle, WA

Access should be for everything, not just what verizon selects.

—Laura Lewis, Long Beach, CA

All the work and effort put into creating the online network, the online world, all the billions of people that made it what it is today, can be destroyed without protection. The internet in its current form could be ripped apart beyond recognition by the very few who have consolidated absurd amounts of power. You are the last line of defense against these vultures licking their lips in anticipation when you would turn the other way. Stand strong and take action not for yourselves but for you sons and daughters and all the world.

—Emmanuel Leal, Glenwood, IL

I am a freelance artist that works from home. This will affect my business in horrible ways. It could force me to reduce my advertising, or take away my business all together if sites I generate business from are blocked.

—Carmen Torres, Kent, WA

This is setting an unsettling precedent in the world and has immense potential to ruin lives, all in the name of padding corporate wallets. Disgusting.

—Hannah Chick, ,

Leave the internet alone. It's where we go to escape the crappy world we live in, and now that same crappy world is trying to invade our space. Piss off, and restore net neutrality.

—, Bayonne, NJ

Leave the internet alone, you dumbass old people.

—Teejay Martin, Staten Island, NY

There is no way I can afford different tiered internet packages beyond bandwidth and as a student its about all I have. Don't take this from us. The internet is a communications service and we would be paying to have content unblocked, not paying to have it made available.

—David C. Villemaire, Seffner, FL

This affects everybody in the world. Stop trying to take away our international freedom and impose capitalism over it.

—Neşet, ,

Restore Net Neutrality! Verizon needs to learn that they are nothing more than a "Carrier" and that they should not be trying to control the internet.

—Rocknrobert06@hotmailcom, Anchorage, AK

This is in response to a dirty move made by those that want more money, simple as that. More annoyingly, they want more than they don't need.

—Martin Bodger, ,

Leave the internet alone.

—Ashley, Apopka, FL

My comics are FREE for everyone with internet access to read. I do not charge people to read them, I don't want some greedy corporation muscling in and charging the American portion of my audience in my stead.

—Lilly kitten, , you made a mistake once on this matter do not make it again.

—Michael Fontecchio, Boca Raton, FL

when ISPs offer competing broadcast services and control the pipe you end up with throttling, like the numerous Netflix slowdown incidents. Common carrier status is the only way. Good luck trying to wade through the ISP lobby minefield!

—Harry Manesiotis, Alamosa, CO

Enforce Net Neutrality! No one uses copper phone lines from the 50's anymore for it's original and waste of bandwidth analog phone services! Bell got free easement for installing those lines across the US, just as railroads got free easement for their rails across the US. The public should have a say in how these copper lines that Bell was allowed to put on ugly poles across the nation which have now mainly been retasked for digital data, as very few are still used for their analog origins and now carry digital data which wasn't even a consideration as it didn't exist in the 50's! Update the rules for the modern day! Telcos have been taking advantage of inaction by the FCC for 20 years now and making millions off the free infrastructure they have held all these years to carry digital data. Either enforce net neutrality, or give the same rights of free easement, allowing other companies to invest without unrealistic costs to install fiber exactly where those copper lines already run, killing monopolies by many carriers that now run all digital data on the original Bell copper lines which they were allowed to install with free easement! Fix it! And allow others to build infrastructure all will benefit from, and level the playing field for all who want to improve the nations data infrastructure with their own investment at a cost equal to what Bell received long ago to install their pay telephone services without competition.

As a former United States Marine, I feel extreme disgust about this blatant removal of our internet freedoms. This is unconstitutional and goes against everything this Country is meant to stand for.

—Lance Corporal Matthew Farmer, Bristol, CT

This is not acceptable. The internet should not be regulated. Information should be accessible by anyone, regardless of income level, and I don't want to see ISPs become gatekeepers.

—Ashley Melsert, Ballston Lake, NY

The internet should be a basic human right. Stop with this crap.

—Kim Trioreau-Adams, Marietta, GA

This is greed at its worst, and frankly disgusting. The internet is the only media of this world to offer equal opportunity to all users of any income.

—Brecken Andreev, Asbury Park, NJ

DON'T DO THIS

—Cassandra Justo, Fort Pierce, FL

This is not what the internet was created for. It is supposed to be a free form base of communication and information sharing, not a 'pay for the privilege' money gathering scheme.

—Ella Smith, Seaford, NY

Restore Net Neutrality to benefit people and not corporations, please!

—Judy Budreau, Excelsior, MN

I pay for internet- it's not up to the government to tell me how to use it.

—Kelsey Vogel, Woodstock, GA

I don't know if you fellows have ever had someone (or something) you can't live without, but if you have then you will understand why net neutrality is important for a lot of people. For me, as a non-US citizen, I have gained a lot of US-citizen friends. With the cost of international calling, the amount of online networking we do, and the amount we need each other for support when no one is on our side, the internet is the easiest, cheapest, and most convenient option. We are already overloaded with bills, debt, and various other life factors that cause an immense amount of stress. We need to be able to communicate with one another without interference of worrying even more about how to make ends meet so that we can continue interacting. My best friend is a US-citizen and I couldn't make it in life without her. Where most people have family to fall back on when times get rough, I have her. She is my rock, and I need her country to work the net neutrality so that I don't feel at risk of losing her to the pockets of already successful corporations.

—Jennifer, ,

Absolutely disgusting. Greedy little scumbags

—Megan Mahon, ,

Please take notice.

—, Pierre, SD

Thanks to the verdict on Net Neutrality service providers have free reign to throttle any content they want. I have started seeing the ramifications of this in significantly reduced quality of service from my service provider, Comcast, which has apparently started throttling Netflix and other content such that the service I pay for is nearly unusable. Please reclassify all Internet Service Providers as Utility companies as soon as possible. I have always considered Internet access to be a utility and it should be treated as such by the FCC.

—Sean McConnell, Fishers, IN what the actual fuck

—Lana Peric, ,

Fuck that.

—Taylor, Wesley Chapel, FL

I am already noticing a slowdown on Comcast of streaming music and video in Boston and it can't be an accident that coincident with that decision I get an offer to "guarantee my speed" for an additional $90 per month. Disgusting. Please do something about it or we will do something about you. Regard, James Ryan

—James Ryan, Boston, MA

It is criminal to allow communication companies to essentially establish universal parental controls for their users. We are adults fully capable of deciding what content we choose to view on the internet, and to deny that is bordering on eliminating freedom of speech. It is most certainly eliminating freedom of choice. Furthermore, by allowing corporations to create tiered pricing structures and slow service at will, the FCC is only helping to enlarge the rift between rich and poor. Let's face it--internet is essential in daily life. Many jobs can only be applied to online, and slow service can disrupt or even halt the application process. Please consider why the internet was created! It was not made to benefit the wealthy alone, and certainly not created for corporate profit!

—Heather Jewell, Berea, OH

The internet is collective consciousness. Consciousness and thought and sharing are free and must always be.

—Mason Mitcham, Young Harris, GA

you suck

—Anna Eisenhart, Olathe, KS

Fuck this! This is absolute horse shit

—Kelly Jodat, Phoenix, AZ

Paying for internet access in tiers is the same thing as censoring information along an income spectrum, supporting the veiled aristocracy of the United States. I do not consent to the stripping of a resource previously made available to all that limits my ability to communicate and assemble virtually. Will you actually allow the U.S. to join the ranks of internet-censoring countries like China? The uber-wealthy here have too much power, and now they want to subdue the sociopolitical dissent by restricting access to communication and squeezing the lifeblood out of lower-income people. The creators of this generation and the next will be stifled because there would be less access to research and reference material to inspire and support the innovation needed to keep the world running and improving.

—Jennifer Cabiya, Austin, TX

Please don't take away our internet.

—Mara, Stephens City, VA

Net Neutrality is needed. There are so many online businesses and things that will cause people to literally go bankrupt or even starve because they cannot feed themselves because people won't pay for the access to their sites. It's crap.

The internet is the last bastion of American freedom. It does wonder for innovation, connection, creativity, and commerce. Let's keep it neutral for the benefit of mankind!

—Miles, Missoula, MT

Please understand that this doesn't just affect personal use, it will also affect everyone who does any kind of business online! Any new start up websites, new social media sites, they may never get a chance because no one will see them. Taking away Net Neutrality will create more barriers to entry to the one place there shouldn't be; the Internet. Net Neutrality needs to be protected and enforced!

—Erica R Dohmen, Mansfield, CT

This is both pointless and counterproductive. Obviously, this is about money, but with so many people poor, they won't be able to pay for the certain websites that are being charged. And then what happens to websites that have products or ads to sell? No one will know or see them because of this freedom-restricting bill.

—Ivoriania Phillips, State University, AR

This is absurd. Bring Net Neutrality Back.

—Emily Franzusan, ,

In a country and economy that is already hurting, killing your customers to make more money is NOT RIGHT!!!! If Verizon has problems making money maybe they should consider LOWERING the price of their CELL PHONE plans so people don't have to work ten jobs just to pay their bill

—Asher Kubizna, Chesapeake, VA

Why would you do this? No one will support this and this makes me upset. Many people rely on the internet for a lot. Some have friends that live far away and the internet is the only way to contact. Those friends may be one of the only thing stopping a person from suicide or depression. Also many artists use the internet to make money and promote themselves and many people see the internet as a type of freedom Monopolies on internet use and services are destroying this technology for good, hard-working people and giving the power to a handful of wealthy conglomerates. You can stop this. You can stand up for The People. Please do the right thing.

—David Bradford Butler, Port Orange, FL

Killing Net Neutrality is not only ridiculous, but harmful. People who depend on certain websites to make a living or access vital information will be severely restricted in what they can do. This will not help our country. An inexpensive, open Internet is vital to the way our society operates and to how the individual citizens of our country function on a daily basis. The restoration of Net Neutrality is a necessary action, and until it happens, we're all in trouble.

—Patrick Smith, Tampa, FL

The idea that internet providers are somehow being ripped off because website hosts don't pay them when their customers access their website is a stawman argument. The FACTS are - I PAY my provider to provide me with internet service which allows me to access the these sites. Websites and content creators also PAY THEIR providers for the internet service in order to display their content. One way or another, all parties involved are already paying for access to the internet. All these companies want to do is double dip on the fees which could be harmful for small business that has before now been able to thrive through the internet. For the protection of consumers and small entrepreneurs, please regulate this critical communication vehicle.

The Internet is the free exchange and spread of ideas. It gives innovation a free reign, and lets anyone throw anything up on the web. It's hte property of the human race, and should and will stay free.
—Alexander Sorensen, Alexandria, VA

We are foolishly giving away access to information that all members of society need access to if we allow this happen. The internet only works as free speech if we can reach any site for the same cost. Otherwise you are going to not allow many websites to remain online if they have to jump through hoops.

—Gabriella Marshall, San Antonio, TX

Seriously? You literally charge us for everything else. Leave the internet alone.

—Bianca Taylor, Akron, OH

This is bullshit. I shouldn't have to fucking pay to go on certain sites.

—Palmer Reynolds, Cincinnati, OH

This is detrimental to non-profits and freelance artists who use the internet and its vast global connections to earn income. :(

—Jessica Wicksel, Raleigh, NC

Damn it government guys, quit screwing everyone over.

—Nathan Pabon, Opa Locka, FL

As an artist, the internet is extremely important to both my art, selling my art, and getting my art out into the world outside my own county. Myself, and thousands other will suffer if Net Neutrality is not restored. I do not see any one benefiting from the demolition of Net neutrality, aside from big businesses, whom already take advantage of our people and our political system. This is really disgusting.

—Kristen Nesbitt, denton, TX

This not only is ignorant, but you are literally stripping us of freedoms. Just because the government made a mistake and is now being watched constantly with our NSA-snafu doesn't mean to take it out on the rest of the country. Fuck you, Congress. You're literally making this the worst place, when once we used to be so free and liberated.

—Savannah Deal, Dexter, MO

For the love of all things holy- I'm a college student! I DON'T HAVE THE FUNDS TO PAY FOR INTERNET THAT I NEED FOR MY CLASSES

—Natalie Watson, ,

You call America the land of the free?
—Jay K lawson, ,

Give us the freedom of the internet.
—Ferdinand O'neal Villar, Providence, RI

Do not charge the people for browsing specific websites, it is inhumane for business owners and corporates.
—Alexie Jongco, Chula Vista, CA

pls dont
—Ophelia, Branford, CT

Nooo this is not cool.

—Ethan, Almo, KY

Stop it FCC. You've already ruined a great deal of things.

—Skye Fleming, Pryor, OK

Ya'll thought you could get around us somehow, huh. Well nah ya can't. Don't think you can take this stuff away from us, cuz we won't let you. mmmmmhm.

—Alissa, Raleigh, NC

This is wrong. The removal of Net Neutrality is a major hit to the culture of the United States, and the rights of its citizens. Allowing an ISP to limit what sites one can visit without paying a premium fee? How is that right, by any standard? This is literally giving corporations a very major portion of control over my every day life.

—Jeffrey Alexander Montgomery, Danville, KY stop frickin with the internet idu let us do internet things

—Jennifer, ,

The Internet is essential for me to keep in touch with people I otherwise would not be able to speak to. If I pay for access, it should not depend on the website. There are simply too many ways for me as a consumer and as a citizen to be exploited for me to allow this to stand.

—Shane Warren, Houston, TX

no.

—Adam Glimm, Champlin, MN

"This affects me both personally and my business as a freelance artist. In the economy here, cash is already strapped as it is. You bet your ass companies would suck the ever living life out of misc. art sites. I don't want it to ever come down to me choosing between groceries or purchasing a new tier package via comcast to be able to access tumblr or DeviantArt (let alone not guaranteeing I'll even be seen by my customer base since they may not want to pay out their asses either). It doesn't seem important to most, but I do 90% of my business online entirely."

—Lara Sheridan, Loganville, GA

Please stop this from happening! You gotta keep this the internet free!

—Levelle Brown JR, Matteson, IL

ugh what the hell is you guys' problem this sucks on ice

—Alice Fernandes Garambone, ,

Taking Net Neutrality from us is an absolutely disgusting thing to do. The Internet is meant to be free space for anyone, and we already pay some for it. Having to pay for every website we want to visit is ridiculous. This will impact students in schools who want to use online textbooks, people who barely live at all that need Internet to sell things, and any citizen. This is only good for corporations. Bring back Net Neutrality. I'm 13 years old and I know you are stupid.

—Alyssa Sumstad, Magnolia, TX

Give back Net Nutrality

—Megan, Portland, TX

What the hell, the government is supposed to HELP us not HARM us in favor of conglomerations.

—Samantha Booker, Gloucester, VA

WHY IS THIS EVEN HAPPENING

—Declan, ,

Nope nope nope this is not happening.

—Denise Kuban, Sandy Hook, CT

Finally!

—Aireнна Greenleaf, Garland, TX

No. No, this is not good this is taking somethinga way from the general public that was supposed to be free and twisting it to make more money that you DO NOT EVEN NEED.

—Brandie Marston, Cincinnati, OH

nope

—Sam, Schenectady, NY

There are so many people who can't afford this! Why make the people of the internet pay so much money? Do you honestly believe that this is "good" for business? I bet you anything that a lot of people will abandon the websites they loved so much because they can't afford it. Isn't our government already in debt? Is this really the solution for that?

—Kate, Harker Heights, TX

WHAT IN THE SHIT?! This is unconstitutional. That's it. I'm moving to Canada. They have marriage equality and net neutrality.... See y'all bitches in Hell :)

—Annabella Javert, Chapel Hill, NC

—Abby, Boones Mill, VA

why

—Mark Clifford, ,

The internet is a place for fans to express their love for shows/books/movies/and bands and without net neutrality that won't be possible

—Mae, Schenectady, NY

The internet was made to be a open place, a way now used as a means to communicate with those across the world and discover. The internet should not be used as some paid service to access certain functions "faster". People at home with internet, ALREADY pay for access to the internet and for me, I pay $63 a month to have high speed internet. I do not wish to pay more money out of my pocket to access some site at a better speed when I'm already paying for my speed. The internet needs to remain classified as a telecommunications service and not treated as some new paid service to access the simplest websites. Please bring back net neutrality, it's not right to force people to pay more.

—Citlaly Saucedo, Phoenix, AZ

The internet is the only place I can share my art easily.

—Diane Bradley, Provo, UT

Please re-instate internet neutrality, without it companies will become even more corrupt.

—Victoria Olmos, Lewisville, TX

I use the internet to connect with probably the best friends I've ever had. Honestly, they're the only reason why I'm still alive now to type these words... please don't take them from me like this...

—Kyra Kepheart, Braintree, MA

Don't do this. Please.

—, Detroit, MI

This is an awful thing so please do not do this.

—Jamison Waters, Hampton, VA

This is just going to screw you over in the end. We don't need to go on youtube or tumblr or google if it costs money. We'll go where it's free. And when it's not anymore, we won't go there either. I won't like it, but i won't give away my money to help you line your pockets. As much as i love watching dorks play video games and people talk about tv shows. I DON'T NEED IT

—Hope Harper, Akron, OH

Hahaha no you cannot

—Selene Smith, ,

As someone who has for a long time dreamed of earning income through an Internet-run business, I am appalled that the freedom to do this, to leave my services open for everyone equally, would be stripped away this suddenly. Appalled, and disheartened. I need my life to go somewhere. And this is the first step.

—Erika Gritton, Orem, UT

Paying to veiw anything will creat a monopoly, if one website gets better reviews for something that others do, they get more powerful as other. I.E. they get more money for more of whatever they make you pay for, they get better servers/website design, and more company's wanting ad-space on that page. More power for the powerful, less power for the less powerful

—Jeremy Griffin, Independence, KY

This shouldn't happen. Not only is it wrong but it's also unfair.

—Raine kokoro, Columbia, SC

Please don't do this!! You are causing a lot of freelancers to lose the only source of income they have!

—Adam Edwards, Murphy, NC

This is infringing upon our rights as American Citizens

—Shayla Aguila, Warner Robins, GA

Having ISP's control the Net in other country's has been great, It has cut down on piracy and allowed the people to share ideas and maintain liberty's while working towards a better world for all... Oh wait. No, No it has not! The only reason to remove neutrality is to in-slave ideas and pinch penny's from the poor to feed the rich.

—Ryan Salway, Rio Rancho, NM

Comcast has taken complete control of my internet. I am forced to pay them so much money for horrible internet because there really is no competition around here. Now they are slowing down my Netflix so that I can't watch the movies I PAY Netflix to see, and expecting me to pay even more for an upgraded service that I can not afford. It is criminal. It is just as bad as the mafia telling you that you either pay more for their protection or they will take everything away. America right now is in a horrible positions where big massive companies can pay their way out of any crime, and it should NOT be like this. Force these massive companies to cough up money for their crimes instead of letting the companies bribe off the government so they can keep doing it.

—Sarah, Paducah, KY

This is so irrelevant and will make companies even more pretentious honestly this needs to stop goodbye

—Jackie Dawson, Turlock, CA

FUCK NO

—Rebekah Evans, Tacoma, WA

I'm in the military, a federally funded group, and I've seen officials overseas while we were deployed explicitly allowed to buy, support, and take back to the states, ILLEGALLY PIRATED MOVIES. This is all from the locals of the country and our government allowed it. End your fucking hypocrisy.

—Marcel Luis Munoa, Fairchild Air Force Base, WA

Fuck this.

—Melissa Lynn Lynn, Orlando, FL

Can everyone stop making bad decisions please? That would be wonderful.

—Channing Gurrola, Brea, CA

We shouldn't be limited to the sites access and have to pay an additional charge to access them.

—Sara, Westminster, CA

In a pay-to-play world, the entrepreneurs, non-profits, and public media sources will all suffer, while the corporate entities control the flow and content of information. It is imperative to keep the internet open and free from throttling and unfair speed manipulations.

—John Cumings, Silver Spring, MD

This is complete and utter, excuse my language, bullshit. I am a freelance artist and net neutrality would kill every little chance I had at business.

—Alexandra Lanham, Nampa, ID

The internet is free means of communications, it keeps people connected. Let it stay that way!

—Kayd Balstir, Modesto, CA

The United States doesn't own the Internet... The whole world uses it. It is called the WORLDWIDE WEB for a reason..

No. Internet must stay free.

—Alyx, Surprise, AZ

this is getting ridiculous. every few weeks the same thing. another bill to capitalize on limiting free speech. and i'm sick of it. everyone's sick of it. leave the internet alone, america.

—Rebecca, Stony Point, NY

NO NO NO NO NO

—Autumn, Royersford, PA

This is a merely way to limit information and the spread of education and communication. Up the ads and the internet bills but do not take away net neutrality. I trust you to fix this before it gets out of hand.

—Bethany Leigh Sutcliffe, Newburgh, NY

Go eat some toast.

—Nina Norse, Los Angeles, CA

Seriously?! Does everything need changing...? Does everything have to be about money?

—Mariah Stewart, Parkville, MD

The fact that this is even an issue at this point is ridiculous. Not having net neutrality is an invasion of our first amendment. If this is not deemed under the first amendment, than perhaps actions should be made to create a new amendment.

—Anthony, Saint Charles, MO

Please dont

—Sparta, ,

No. Just, no. Internet should be equal and free to everyone and we should have equal policies. This is becoming too much, too separate, but not equal enough. Haven't we learned anything from history? SEPARATE BUT EQUAL DOES NOT WORK AND THIS IS SEPARATING ALL OF US FROM EQUAL ACCESS.

—Renee Rouleau, Parkville, MD

This is just ridiculous that we even thought about this! We already pay for Internet and wifi! If this happens I will stop using it all together, I shit you not.

—Taylor Brown, Chepachet, RI

This eliminates the purpose of the web. There is a reason people use the internet so much and this will destroy it if not rectified.

—Olivia Powers, Hartwick, NY

PEOPLE ARE ALREADY POOR AND THE INTERNET CAN BE A BIG PART OF THEIR BUSINESSES DO NOT MAKE PEOPLE PAY FOR THIS STUFF

—Elizabeth, ,

I have to pay extra now to keep kids out of trouble? If the internet keeps kids quiet and not screeching I'm happy. I guess I can kiss sleeping goodbye, I don't have the money to pay extra for the websites kids like. No one does! The FCC needs to understand that rich people are a minority. Most people can't break even!

—, Elkridge, MD

The Internet, along with its entertainment value, has always been a great tool for the exchange of knowledge and expansion of human achievement. By further commercializing the Internet by allowing for bandwidth favoritism and giving priority of domains based on the highest bidder, we are corrupting that information and making this tool less powerful. There is no way this action can have positive long-term ramifications for anyone.

—Aaron Osmer, San Antonio, TX

You will ruin the rights of all of the people that take moments out of their life to see the internet. Please, have mercy.

—Mae Jasper, Ninety Six, SC

PLEASE DO NOT DO THIS TO ME.

—Kelsey, Lynn, MA

This is truthfully a shame to have occurred here in the land of freedom and oportunity. For the love of god please reconsider.

—Blake Barto, Austin, TX

PLEASE

—Ananya, Chantilly, VA

This is completely unacceptable! To allow such a decision to take place, why, it would mean the end to another one of our freedom's! The government already controls a major portion of our lives, and now they want to control this! I am outraged, and quite frankly, seriously wondering what kind of world my children will be growing up in!

—Rosaly Rosario, Bergenfield, NJ

Who the hell thought this was a wise idea??

—Bryan Furgal, Warren, MI

I feel like the Internet is under attack.

—Genocider Syo, Dorr, MI

this is bullshit

—Yanina Fallad Fallad, ,

This is absolutely unacceptable.

—Hannah Church, Owasso, OK

—Rose, Wilmington, NC

Save the Internet! Don't make it into a commodity more than it already has!

—Shirleen, San Marino, CA

I want the government to see how much wrong they're doing and the pain they're causing by trying to control the Internet. No one should have to fucking pay to use their computers. For people like me, the Internet is the only way I can communicate with friends who are so far away from me. Without them, I would truly be nothing. Get Net Neutrality back and let's hope the government KEEPS THE GODDAMN INTERNET FREE.

—Isabella, Pipersville, PA

The internet has become a huge part of our culture. It is an incredible asset that anyone who can get to a library can harness. Access to the internet is also essential for many people's jobs. Please restore net neutrality.

—Margot Bruce, Westport, CT

Really? Really?? How could this happen. Seriously.

—Samantha L Brown, San Antonio, TX

How about no.

—Kiara, Deland, FL

America the FREE? More like America the GREED.

—Carly, Dayton, TN

This is outrageous. So many people will be complaining and outraged to boot, this is so stupid.

—Annabelle Gatehouse, ,

Why would you charge for internet. Why.

—, Atwater, CA

Stop trying to change and limit the internet! Doing so would be awful to anyone who uses it. At least let us have our freedom here.

—Emily Hadley, North Chelmsford, MA

This ruling is horrible for us, in Chicago we only have two choices for cable. Because of my ISP ATT I can't watch amazon or other streams. I am forced to go to ATT, Comcast (for an isp) or direct tv who's prices are outrageous. Chicago does not allow competition in it's corrupt state. I cannot wait to leave but where is there fairness, customer service? Or Customer's rights? Where? Certainly not in Chicago or on the internet.

—Karen Lang, Chicago, IL

This is unacceptable. You need to reverse the nonsense you have wrought.

—Jessica Linger, Germantown, MD

This is just really dumb. The Internet is free, and it should remain so. I mean, don't people already pay enough for wi-fi??

—Anna B, Chittenango, NY

Completely unrealistic, and unfair to pretty much every single internet user.

—Amber Borges, Worcester, MA

Restore it.

—Yair Madar, ,

WHAT THE FUCK THEY CANT DO THIS TO US

—Olivia, Port Matilda, PA

I thought this was the land of the free not the land of the greedy

—Steven Eric Lowe, New Port Richey, FL

Many people depend on the internet for whatever income they get and it is also a place for many to learn and grow as people. Don't let your greed destroy one of the last things the average American has left.

—Kaytlyn Nevil, Ponca City, OK

This is beyond unacceptable and it must not happen.

—Jessalyn Gurgone, Park Ridge, IL

Can you like, not

—Caleb Taylor, Mesa, AZ

Funny how people love to cry about the erasure of our countries freedoms until they seek to profit from it.

—Julia Lorbeer, Reno, NV

TV is dying and it's last breath is going to kill us all. The only thing stopping neutrality serves to do is put unnecessary hard earned dollars in fat cat's pockets. Keep the internet open.

—Eric Scott Schroyer, Coldwater, MI

Net Neutrality is needed to have free information.

—Hunter Wray Milgrim, Sun Prairie, WI

This is a disappointment to us citizens of america. We have to pay for taxes already and now they're finding a new way to take every dime and penny we have.

—Nancy Saechao, Sacramento, CA

Who said this was okay

—Emmie, ,

Commercialization of the sections of the internet will most likely result in the decline of sales seeing as certain sites would be exclusive and not many people could afford to pay extra for sets of websites, and most that could, would not in an act of protest.

—Matt, New Port Richey, FL

The end of Net Neutrality not only harms my freedoms to do as I please on the web, it also harms businesses that use the internet as well.

Freelance artists and other internet-based businesses are in serious danger, and could spell disaster for their income. Please, help us keep Net Neutrality.

—Bailey Worthen, Monticello, AR

If you guys do this, you will fuck the economy even more. Trust me.

—Stefani Hayne, Cleveland, OH

Net Neutrality belongs in place! This is a place for people to express themselves and limiting sites and services based on provider decision and large corporations' ideas of what should and should not be the way it is....is a direct blow to our communication freedoms!

—Te Miller, North Richland Hills, TX

Net Neutrality must go on!

—Christian Ochoa, Saucier, MS

Stop being such control freaks.

—Ruth Palumbo, Fort Myers, FL

yo. not cool man. not cool.

—Heather Paul, Vienna, VA

I'm a student taking online classes. Although it seems unlikely that my classes would be blocked or discriminated against, I'm not taking any chances. The Internet needs to be an open space. Period.

—Leighann Morlan, Mc Louth, KS

I can't believe we lost this in the first place. We can't let them do this!!

—Ebony Madrid, Phoenix, AZ

The government should stop targeting the non harmful ways of the internet and focus on bigger problems.

—Candice, Fredericksburg, VA

This is pretty dumb. What the hell.
—Aaron Mullins, Lawrenceburg, IN Really?

—Chloe Dockter, Beale AFB, CA

What the FCC is doing is makin' the internet like tv. with 'channels' and paying to get to specific websites and things. Net neutrality = not doing that. Fix this.
—Bill Durms, Boston, MA

The internet is a place for freedom and it should stay that way; it's open to anyone and that's what makes it so great. Don't take that away.
—Kaylee Stillman, Cedar City, UT

Are you guys stupid, the internet is a place where we can express ourselves, dont get fucking power and money horny.

—Sommer, Brockton, MA

This is bullshit.
—Delaney Lytle, Hanover, NH

I know it's the government and the government will do whatever the hell it wants despite what the people want but this is ridiculous. Make money some other way, and stop spending it on ridiculous crap.
—Alex C Flaugh, Fort Wayne, IN taking away Net Neutrality will hurt more people than it helps. You take away many people main income, many companies income as well if people can't freely browse. You take away the students ability to do good research for schools or collages. Bring back Net Neutrality.

—Valerie, Elyria, OH

The internet is a completely different thing from television and should not be treated as though it is part of the same category. The internet is not just something to watch for entertainment or information, it is something that supplies knowledge, something that helps us communicate; it is a tool that helps us and is nearly impossible to live without in today's society where nearly everything from college and job applications to interviews and resumes are done online. Long distance calls can be annoying and expensive, but certain tools on the internet give us the power to communicate with loved ones in far away places. The internet is not just entertainment- it is composed of real, living human beings and businesses and should be treated as such.
—Jh, Springfield, MA

This is wrong. Ever read 1984? In case you were wondering, it's NOT an instruction manual.

NET NEUTRALITY IS HORRIBLE

—Hikaella Abiki, ,

Wow this at all this freedom we don't have. The internet isn't just yours! Its everyones! Stop trying to change it into something so shitty!

—Breanna, Caldwell, ID

This is tyranny!!!

—Joshua, Sarasota, FL

"This is a outrage."

—Kyle Rudolph, Leesburg, FL

It is vital to keep the internet free flowing. The right to a free Internet is the right to knowledge. By killing net neutrality America admits it is a society dedicated to brainwashing and keeping it's people happy and stupid. Does America really want to become the horrific Oceania Party depicted in 1984? Because that's where America seems to be headed. Not to mention the rampant fascism through corporations and businesses. Internet Neutrality was America's one saving grace through all of its disgusting policies and misdeeds. RESTORE NET NEUTRALITY!

—Ash Mayzler, North Brunswick, NJ

—Tommy Parrish, Edmonds, WA

Net neutrality is the best! A non neutral internet is sickening

—Michelle, Burlingame, CA

This is horrible. Please, PLEASE, represent the people and abolish this monstrosity.

—Madeline Thomey, Fayetteville, AR

What the heck are you doing, do you have any idea how many people are cash strapped as it is? You'd take away someplace where anyone, no matter income level, can access information, contact those they care for, and freely express themselves, due to your own greed?

—Jackie Walden, Scranton, PA

I am an artist who functions offline. This kills me.

—Ac, Berwick, ME

Yeah how about you let internet users decide what websites they want to use. This is as ludicrous as middle aged white men deciding what a woman should do with her body.

—Gross Nicole Trash, Fort Mohave, AZ

Stop this madness.

—Kaylah Lee-McAlpine, ,

Net neutrality is a need, why must we pay for someone else's greed?

—Brandon Stevens, San Antonio, TX

This isn't right. I just want you to know that.

—Livie Tompkins, Oakland, CA

This is a really, really bad idea. Do not do it.

—Emily, ,

Dear Federal Communications Commission: Please consider the importance of internet access.

—Stephanie Wang, Middlebury, VT

Why should we have to pay for access to information?

—Heather Craig, Dickson, TN

The land of the free cannot be built on taking away freedom. Net Neutrality isn't a luxury, it is a right.

—Dexter Souther, ,

net neutrality is important, being able to access all sites equally is part of what makes the internet beautiful

—Adelle Hixenbaugh, Meadville, PA

The Internet is a place for media and personal growth, destroying Net Neutrality is disabling our ability to grow as people and in kind, stoping us from growing into a better country.

—Lloyd Burgess, Dallas, TX

No. Just no.

—Gemma Fasciano, Port Washington, NY

I hope this doesn't end up like the riot over at Argentina.

—Quoc Luong, ,

The internet is for everyone!

—Danielle George, Southport, NC

Yes, because what we need is to block poor people from communicating over long distances. Would be a real shame if they had access to information not given to them.

—Echo Anderson, Medford, OR

Big brother, you need to slow down.

—Diana, Tucson, AZ

This is no good at all. This is an outrage.

—Jonthan Rasmussen, Huntersville, NC

Don't gauge us with ridiculous fees for a service that should be inherently available to EVERYONE

—Jenni, Duluth, GA

While we pay for service via ISPs, the internet has been a relatively free space where everyone, no matter their income level, is able to connect, access a wealth of information, and express themselves. The Internet has become a major part of our culture as human beings and the notion that ISPs might be able to limit what sites I can access unless I pay them more is utterly unjust.

—Delia Lopez, Whittier, CA

Doing away with net neutrality is unconstitutional. Please help to restore it. Thank you.

—Josiah, Odenville, AL

This should not even be something that ever happens, why is the FCC so dumb

—Maria Ellis, York, PA

Are you serious are you serious this is the worlds stupidest thing this is worse than Bush holy crap

—Ian, Cincinnati, OH

I'm sick of everything being about money. I'm utterly sick of it.

—Amanda, ,

Please don't do this! Please don't ever do this! The internet has a vast wealth of knowledge that should be available to the public, just as a public library is. It's a way for people to communicate and interact, just like public venues, but on a different platform. :(

—Elasia Hamilton, Mililani, HI

Don't get rid of net neutrality! Why would you do that?!

—Dani Lemay, Cottage Grove, WI

I am a student studying to become a computer programmer and hopeful content creator through designing video games and helping people with making tools to also create their own works. Please, for the sake of me, my future, and the future of the millions of others like me, who have grown watching the internet be a place for commerce and business and creativity, restore what we once knew and what we hold dear. This decision will not only hurt the poorer internet users, it will also make content creators suffer, and the economy with it. Please, let free trade rule on the Internet, and prevent monopolizing companies from destroying the last bastion of true free and independent business. Please restore net neutrality.

—Addison Hunter, Cambridge City, IN

Please start treating broadband like a communications service, and to restore its Net Neutrality rules.

—RJ Sutberry, Charlotte, MI

This is an encroachment on our rights as human beings.

—Maggie, Rock Hill, SC

I've been using the Internet since practically the beginning of public use. I have seen it evolve in amazing ways. I have always found it incredible that I can use it to communicate with people around the world and that is far more important to me than sitting on the couch watching television. Please do whatever it takes to ensure that the Internet is classified as a communications service, not an entertainment service or any other kind of service. It's the Information Superhighway first and foremost, regardless of what any user chooses to do with their website or which websites a user chooses to visit. The choice is yours. Please make the right choice for the users.

i will die if this happens

—Sarah, Tiverton, RI

I don't think this is what people meant when they said we should take a few hints from other countries. Can Government STOP being a gigantic Corporation, please? I'm getting sick of constantly hearing about the NEXT stupid idea our politicians came up with ever 3 days.

—Dayton Thomason, Grapevine, TX

There is so little freedom in the world don't take that away. Even haters need a place to vent.

—Gabrielle Lapierre, ,

Taking the Internet away from us is the surest way to rouse the American People into actually doing something.

—Vance Longobardi, Bradenton, FL

This is so important. With businesses growing more and more online, the online marketplace would end up like real world business - large corporations taking over and swallowing small business. We can't let this happen.

—Melissa, Durham, NC

Wow.

—Sara Murray, Meeker, CO

How is it possibly not classified as telecommunications already? Ridiculous. Disappointing.

—Daniel Decker, Fair Lawn, NJ

This is communism. No two ways about it. I will not stand for this. At. All. Any educated human being can tell that this is oppression in one of its purest forms. Which bring about the question of the intelligence of the men and women in congress, and what they think of freedom.

—Madeleine Ryan, Toms River, NJ

The internet is one of the last great mediums that does not show favoritism towards someone over another and is something that should not be changed especially with the ability to have the knowledge of the world at your fingertips.

—Kyle Syracuse, Randolph, NJ

Are they even listening to what the people want anymore?

—Anneliese h, Atlanta, GA

I do not like the idea of my ISP censoring what I view online. If Verizon were to begin doing so, I would have to leave and find a new provider. It is not their job to play nanny to a grown adult who fully understands what he wants to see and read on the internet.

—James, Scotch Plains, NJ

Net Neutrality will help me promote my artwork.

—Katelyn Snider, Tulsa, OK

THIS IS FUCKING STUPID LIKE PLEASE STOP ARE YOU KIDDING ME

—Brooke, Covington, LA

Don't make us pay for emotional outlets and entertainments. focus on more important things

—Amanda, Chino, CA

stop taking away net neutrality like really you did this to television don't do it to the web. if you do this i'm going to quit the earth and live on mars because i literally need the internet to try and keep myself alive and you don't want one of your precious people who will pay for your freaking welfare to die would you

—Doge, Menifee, CA

The internet is a tool that should be accessible without additional fees. It not only enables fast and easy communication, but provides unimaginable amounts of information and recreational material. It is also the main vessel for ads and online shopping. Setting limits and making people pay extra would not only hinder the majority's abilities and rights, it would negatively affect marketing, commercial business, and other's of the like, as well. Be intelligent human beings, and restore Net Neutrality.

—Mirela, Boise, ID

I may not have a business online, but I do have friends that have stores online and taking away net neutrality could potentially take away their customers. Most of them need the extra money to get by and they'd be deeply affected. The same goes for relationships that are long-distance whether it be two lovers, two friends, or two family members that don't live close enough for physical interactions. They wouldn't be able to communicate with the people that matter to them.

—Dave Welch, Arlington, TX

Net Neutrality is vital to Americans everywhere, to stand by and do nothing is dangerously irresponsible. I would ask our elected officials to stand by the constituents they are sworn to serve and protect in this matter.

—Alex, Wisconsin Rapids, WI

This is bullshit. Simple as that. Why the hell should we have to pay thousands of dollars for a damn website visitation right? My family would never go for that. Which means, I would lose /all/ access to my best friend because we wouldn't be able to pay for this. You make me lose her and I'll go fucking loco. I'll fucking come down there myself. We don't deserve this. You think you get to have all the freedom you want just because you're at the top of the line? You think you get to push us around and make us suffer more than we already do? If that's the case... then go to hell.

—Nova Noble, ,

Please don't do this! Restore neutrality!

—Elisabeth Telep, North Royalton, OH

The internet is a gift of knowledge and communication, and it is up to the people to ensure it stay that way

—Phoenix Kahlo, Madison, WI

I don't want to have to pay to use my websites. I don't want to have to pay to contact my online friends. The Internet is not yours to exploit. We will not allow you to do this. Leave us alone.

—Matthew the X, Chatsworth, CA

Let my write you a haiku: No no no no no No no no no no Oh fucking hell no.

—Hillary Rentfrow, Jenison, MI

What a silly, communistic way of trying to suck more money from citizens. Absurd.

—Gene Colin, Soddy Daisy, TN

Keep the internet open for everyone, regardless of wealth! Modern life is rapidly becoming more and more intrinsically linked to the web and allowing monetary restrictions to be placed upon it will have consequences for communication, education, and the many people whose jobs rely on an open internet.

—Sabina Fickenwirth, Hingham, MA

If we allow companies to discriminate against websites before they're even off the ground, many will never make it. We have to give them a chance.

—Calvin Sartin, Thornton, AR

SAVE THE INTERNET SO I CAN LOOK AT COOL STUFF

—Lloyd Pyes, Pelham, NY

This is both discrimination and a huge hassle. Artists and others who do most of their work online will have a huge chunk of business taken away because people can't pay to go on to their site. Please overturn this and make the Internet 'free' again.

—Caitlin White, Springfield, VA

Net Neutrality is an important aspect of the internet! It's the backbone of the free and open environment that's been an essential part of the advent of the Internet, allowing people to create and share with people all over the world. Restore Net Neutrality!

—Jon Dick, Port Washington, WI

The internet should stay the way it is. We are already forced to see ads on every site and pay for stuff we enjoy.

—Amber Helmantoler, Antioch, CA

Please restore net neutrality!

—Alyson Hensley, Clinton, TN

I can already hardly afford most the things in my life, don't make us pay for the internet too.

—Leikko, Boise, ID

they want to make the internet like tv. with channels and paying to get to specific websites and things. net neutrality = not doing that

—Jocelyn, Elk Grove, CA

I refuse to pay more just to access certain "channels" of the Internet. This isn't a goddamn television.

—Jessica Youngblood, Oklahoma City, OK

:(

—Chase, Elgin, IL

Limiting people's access to information, no matter what that information may be is wrong.

—Sean Holmes, Portland, OR

To remove net neutrality is to remove the freedom of press. The internet is held together by many people freely sharing information. By treating the internet like TV channels, you are removing many people's ability to freely express opinions and learn other people's point of view. The internet has opened many people's eyes and will report about things that may not end up on TV/in Newspapers. Let's keep the internet the way it was: Where ALL websites are treated equally!

—Jess Wilson, Pinon Hills, CA

This would affect all internet users, many people who use the internet couldn't pay to go to extra websites. Please restore net neutrality.

—Lauren Atwell, Saint Marys, PA

THIS IS EXTREMELY DANGEROUS, for people, for the spread of critical information, for the ECONOMY, for news and for personal usage, do you not care about the people at all, do you know how RECKLESS THIS VERDICT IS??

—Felicia Lohidajat, West Chester, PA

Restore Net Neutrality!

—A Rivera-Segundo, Lititz, PA

We have every right to go to whatever site we want to go on. We don't want any restrictions from the Government. This is very unconstitutional

—Seth Bailey, Charlestown, RI

The internet is much more sacred to some who find it an escape in ways so keep it open and free for website. You don't expect us to discriminate so don't in any form. Leave it be before this entire country loses its way even farther.

—Bailee Davis, Stockton, CA

Dude I ain't payin to access sites

—Ananda, ,

Net Neutrality is important.

—Klm, Ithaca, NY

Why possibly do this? This is kind of fucked up I mean if someone pays for an internet connection why should they not be able to go to what they want? This feels like kind of a bullshit false scarcity for the sake of companies that very much don't need the help

—Daniel Flannery, Towson, MD

Bringing back net neutrality will open the internet back up to its greatest potentials. Information should not be limited, no matter what medium it uses to travel through, and the people need to remain as informed as free as ever in these trying times. An act like this only screams that you're afraid of what the people might learn.

—Joshua Mabry, Augusta, GA

Net Neutrality has been what has enabled the growth of the internet to what it is today. It has spawned new businesses, industries, means of contact and a world wide sharing of data! With out it? We face the possibilities of this continued and sustained growth to be slowed. With out Net Neutrality we face the real danger of protectionism happening in cyber space that will benefit ONLY the private firms and telecomms. The playing field will be unfairly tilted even more to the mega rich and anyone looking to try and create the next facebook, tumblr, myspace, youtube, google, etc... They will face an impossible uphill struggle. Restore the fair playing field. Do not give into false promises of telecomms who wish to only restore the monopolies they once had.

—Jason Guy, Culpeper, VA

Give us back net neutrality. Now.

—Emily, Savannah, GA

Net neutrality is so important. Getting rid of it will hurt independent artists and business-people who do their business online, not to mention that making people pay for a cultural resource is beyond insanity.

—Elizabeth Anderson, Saint Paul, MN

The internet is a resource for students and businesses, taking away net neutrality will only widen the gap between the wealthy and the middle class giving them access to the entirety of the web while the poorer families can access little.

—Jessy Flow, Conover, NC

Pay for websites? I don't think so.

Honestly the internet is the right of the people; it has become a staple in our lives, our intake of unbiased news, and our free speech. Net neutrality is a must —Brandon Breland, Cleveland, TN

This idea is atrocious and evil.
—Jake Ducharme, Newton, NH

I need you to understand that the internet is not a non-renewable resource. I don't mind paying for gasoline because I know that you can't just pull fossil fuels out of your pocket, but what is your reason for wanting to make us pay for websites? You have none. This is shameful, and I can't believe I have to sign a petition to stop you from doing this.
—Natalia, Yuma, AZ

freeeeeeeedom thank —Anna Catherine Singleton, ,

I don't want to pay a ton of money just to chat with my friends who are all the way across the country everyday. This is ridiculous. Why would you even think of doing this.
—Elizer, Silverton, OR

THIS IS AN OUTRAGE. You say America is "the land of the free" but why does that freedom come with conditions?
—Jevonne Thompson, Acworth, GA

—Diana Thomas, Charlottesville, VA

Lots of websites are hosted in the U.S. Limiting how people access them can cause relations with users from other countries and their internet providers to drop swiftly negative.

—Brandon Rose, Bellefontaine, OH

This is gonna be impacting a lot of us art freelancers on the internet. Mainly those who are connected to production teams that are also in a connection with a major business in another country. If Net Neutrality dies, we're gonna be stranded and having to pay a bill every month just for a website is gonna cause major economic problems for us artists for we rely heavily on commissions.

—Stephen Pilolla, Stanwood, WA

This is a terrible idea, this was not what the internet was made for, this essentially means that if a company doesn't want you to know about them burning forests to build factories they can slow your internet speed down on any sites talking about it. this will destroy free press. This will destroy free speech, and this will destroy what makes america awesome.

—Meghan Dawson, Murrieta, CA

FUCKING SHIT. Why DO YOU KEEP RUINING THINGS, GOVERNMENT??? The internet is everyones escape from the shitty reality we live in. People stop thinking about depression, suicide, self harm, and other fucking shitty things like that because we have free internet. Now you have to FUCKING take that away and risk people's mentalities? SORry for my foul language but JESUS FUCKING CHRIST why do you keep passing these fucking laws?? One day you will get overthrown because of all these shitty decisions you make. Instead of making money off of the internet stop FUCKING WASTING OUR TAX MONEY ON ARTILLERY AND OTHER WAR MACHINES.

—Elizabeth Bajjalieh, Palatine, IL

This is so not cool.

—Jennifer, Eureka, CA

If you don't think the Internet isn't a communications service, you are dead wrong... A lot of people use the Internet to stay in contact with friends and family, along with conducting business. I'm one who uses it to stay close with the friends and family that are scattered across the country. If you think ISPs like Verizon or Comcast or Midcontinent aren't going to inflate prices for the best speeds just because they said they aren't...well, that's just plain naïve. They will find a way to get more money out of the customers who want the fastest broadband. This could leave those living below the poverty line being cut off from yet another resource that could potentially raise their financial standing. And the ISPs have NO RIGHT to censor what an Internet user can and cannot see. I hear the Chinese and North Korean governments censor what their citizens can access while online... Do we really want the US to be lumped in with them? Granted it wouldn't be the government doing the censoring, but they'd be the ones allowing it to happen... Please bring back Net Neutrality!

—Julie Manders, Rapid City, SD

The end of Net Neutrality has far-reaching consequences well beyond issues of freedom of access to information. Freelance artists (and other freelance professionals of all stripes) like myself have come to rely on the internet as a crucial and indispensable vehicle for promotion of our work and business. With ISPs limiting access to who can and can't see certain websites, it deals a huge blow to the independent contractor or small businessperson trying to reach a wider client base for their work.

—Micah Epstein, Columbus, OH

Why would you try and to that to us? WHY?!?!?

—Caylynn Sprigg, Henderson, NV

Leave the Internet alone

—Marie Moorman, Miami, FL

The internet is the one place where we all have equality no matter how rich or poor, disabled or abled, color or creed. You begin installing tiers to usage to satisfy NON-PEOPLE entities like corporations over REAL PEOPLE you are no longer serving the people but an oligarchy. This is not a radical statement. This is mere truth. Restore net neutrality please.

—Brittany Frechette, Chicago, IL

This bill is horrific for people like me who are already poor. This is nothing but pure greed!

—Abby, ,

Net neutrality is incredibly important for a lot of people and there is literally no need for ISPs to charge extra for different websites. They are not struggling because they don't. They should not take away our freedom of communication to put a few extra coins in their pockets.

—Asher Mitchell, Boynton Beach, FL

No. This is not right and breaks the fundamentals of the internet and what makes it what it is.

—Alex Derrington, Portland, OR

This is not cool. As a teenager, I DO NOT HAVE THE ABILITY to buy websites I want. I would be locked out of all my favorite sites because my parents wouldn't pay for them. This. Is. WRONG. Not to mention lots of people wouldn't be able to buy their way into things anyway, so sites would see less traffic and the people who own the sites would make less money... This whole thing is stupid, are you TRYING to kill the economy more?

—Katie, Downingtown, PA

Not that anyone in the courts or the FCC or ISPs or whatever are going to see this but whose brilliant freaking idea is this? The internet is currently a place for the free exchange of information. By allowing ISPs to rule content and thereby charging people to access certain services (the logical application of this ruling) what you're doing is choking the free access of information. I'm a writer of fantasy and science fiction, and a graduate student in Criminology. If Comcast - my current ISP - decides to block my access to sites, my ability to do research will be dramatically limited. Though the older generation may cry "too frikken bad" as I'll need to go "back to books," what about the academic journals my school archives online? What about the free access I currently have to the Metropolitan Museum for information on medieval furnishings, which I can't just "go see" as I have no money for an impromptu trip to New York? What about the next time I try to access a documentary? What minds will you stifle by letting ISPs run the internet? Rewrite the damn Open Internet Order. Let the American web remain the free and open information service that it is. Don't stifle the rising generation's access to information - you've done enough to screw us over already.

—Heidi Ewing, East Lansing, MI

I would have never known about this if I didn't come across it on tumblr. Thank you for opening the door to preventative action and restore what should rightfully belong to everyone

—Manny Ramos, Lompoc, CA

Please, please, please! We need to have net neutrality! The foundation of the internet is so that ideas and information can be shared freely to others, and that it may be accessible by all! It would defeat the purpose of a public library if they charged extra fees for certain books, or disallowed me from reading certain books altogether...!

—Kelli Gordon, Beaverton, OR

No.

—Lauren, ,

Why would anyone think this is okay?

—Nadia Luis, Houston, TX

Taking away net neutrality is another capitalist venture that shouldn't be allowed. The internet shouldn't belong to anyone like this. It shouldn't be like television. This is ridiculous.

—Megan Strong-Cruz, Bristol, PA

What has happened to net neutrality is absolutely monstrous, a slap in the face to all of humanity, a piss in the eye of the poor and less fortunate. Restore net neutrality. Don't think even for an instant that the 99% are okay with this.

—Morgan Chaput, ,

This will incite rebellion.

—Daniel Slavney, Madison, WI

The internet belongs to the public, not greedy corporations!

—Taylor Purvis, Orlando, FL

The internet is a place of global communication. You throttle that communication and things will go south in a bad way. Nobody wants that.

—Zach Gough, ,

It's hard enough to get heard in this world as it is. Don't let the giant corporations take over this too.

—Amanda, Colorado Springs, CO

Don't take my internet away from me man

—Joel Hashem, Brooklyn, NY

The internet is so important to me, and if it suddenly becomes something I can no longer use because I don't make enough money, I might just literally die. The internet has saved my life in the past on multiple occasions, and if that gets taken away it will be removing the only thing left in my life that feels right.

—Hannah Lindof, Nashua, NH

The internet is just fine! Leave it be and focus on IMPORTANT THINGS LIKE THE ECONOMY OR THE EDUCATIONAL SYSTEMS YOU NITWITS.

—Dayne, Everett, WA

I will not stand by and let companies tell me what sites are worth traffic, time, and bandwidth.

—Nicholas Quek, Houston, TX

The future of knowledge does not depend upon the lining of big business's pockets, but the openness of creativity and the space to share it!

Keep Net Neutrality. The decision to limit the websites I can view depending on how much I or parents pay threatens my rights as an American citizen and damages my hope for the coming generation. *Land of the controlled and home of the government.

—Carl, Colstrip, MT

Please, don't let this happen.

—Melissa Kinney, Deer Park, WA

This is disgusting - bring back net neutrality!

—Erin Timberlake, Leesburg, VA

This is complete Bull Shit.

—Kelsey, Arab, AL

just no.

—Flinn, ,

I find this sick.

—Paul M Haggerty, Minneapolis, MN

Restricting access to information is wrong and just one step closer to complete government control of the population.

—Alisa Parham, Battle Creek, MI

This is disgusting and greedy!

—Lily Scott, ,

This is not right

—Angelica Diaz, ,

The internet is for everyone. We must protect it or else we will lose it.

—Thomas Harper, ,

The Internet was supposed to be a place where I can access every corner of the world. A universe that sits on my lap. Not something a conglomerate can strong hold me into giving them even more money. This is an outrage. I don't want to pay more to be able to share my artwork. I don't want to pay more so I can watch a streaming service I already pay for. And I sure as hell don't want to have to choose between groceries and the internet. This. Is. Not. Ok.

—Caitlin Killen, Auburndale, FL

This is unbelievable. Restore net neutrality and make internet usage fair for EVERYONE, not only the wealthy.

—Jacob Lemire, Salem, OR

For an open internet

—Cole Stewart, Hot Springs National Park, AR

—Steven, Tuscaloosa, AL

Are you kidding me? Stop being greedy shit is not cool.

—Richard Abner, Brentwood, NY

Paying for sites which already make money from ads and from selling products is just wrong. Net Neutrality is wrong.

—Gaacha, ,

Please.

—Casey, Lafayette, CA

This is bullshit that it passed.

—Jeremy Plant, Albuquerque, NM

I don't understand why anyone would think giving ISPs the right to decide what websites we use, or even to charge us more for certain websites. That is simply going to make those who are already strapped for cash have to either lose out on the internet, or buckle down even more. And what about the free lance artists who use the internet as a means of communication to get their art seen and sold? The internet is here for us to communicate and limiting the way we do that is an absurd idea; we are here to broaden our horizons, not shoot them down at the first sight of green.

—Justin Sweat, Blackshear, GA

This is ridiculous.

—Meghann Spangler, Idaho Falls, ID

This is so illegal and unfair. The internet was created to be share, free with EVERYONE. And now you are taking away people's rights for your own personal gain? That is just fucking unreal.

—Whitney Peterson, Sacramento, CA

Net Neutrality is our best line of defense against ISPs limiting, slowing, and blocking content and/or specific users. We need to defend the three rules of Open Internet: transparency, no blocking, and no unreasonable discrimination.

—Kelly Steinhaus, Columbia, MO

It's the full stupidity of our government in one act! We should probably go ahead and get rid of this...

—Mark Celones, San Diego, CA

DOWN WITH THIS CRUD

—Amanda Harmon, Orem, UT

Restore Net Neutrality.

—Hunter, Henderson, NV

This is stupid man. Why the heck would someone even think this up....?

—Lilian, ,

Killing net neutrality was a mistake, tampering with the free and open internet, allowing ISPs to slow, censor, or completely block any websites they see fit. The internet is not a service along the lines of television, it is a form of speech, a way for people to come together and freely expand their horizons, meeting with people all over the world. To limit this is to limit free speech, and I will not stand idly by while my rights are limited.

—Sarah Wells, Charlotte, MI

Why should an American Legislation affect my internet rights? I do not live in America yet no net neutrality would affect me. Australia doesn't make rules like this, England doesn't make rules like this, and I don't particularly believe that any other democratic country that believes in the Freedom of Information and Speech make such rules.

—Kerryn Ross, ,

DONT EVEN THINK ABOUT DOING THIS

—Aundrea, Tampa, FL

Whoa, wait, what!? You mean net neutrality isn't something that isn't COMMON SENSE and THE OBVIOUS CHOICE? Wow. Just... wow. Please, don't be like that... keep net neutrality alive.

Lets not let the Neutrality of the internet be ruined by money hungry corporations

—Victoria Denker, Twinsburg, OH

Why. Just why.

—Sara Shah, ,

The internet should be an all or nothing thing. No tiers of payment restricting speed or access to certain sites. I beg of you, reclassify broadband internet access as telecommunications. Don't allow a few corporations to make quick bucks off of something like this, keep broadband networks open, free and affordable for everyone, not some quick lane privilege that comes in little bundles like an overblown TV station. Prove to the people of the internet that America is more than a land of a few fat cats in cushy chairs sitting on top of a drooling populace. Prove to them that freedom still does exist, that the American dream isn't just a dream of a bygone era.

—James Westbrook, Canton, GA

—Sonya Muhammad, Pomona, CA

The beauty of the internet is that it allows the free exchange of ideas. For all of its piracy, all of its flaws, I would hate to see that taken away. This is a global world, and I shouldn't have to pay to interact with it.

—Lauren Moran, Poland, ME

please don't do this please

—Kathryn Boehnke, Berlin, PA

This is an injustice that needs to be corrected, bring back net neutrality so that we can keep the net free for everyone again!

The Internet is an equal opportunities place for all people. It is our last true American Freedom. Destroy this and you breed the seeds of anarchy.

—Breanna-rose Lamb, Brockton, MA

The internet should remain free, not us having to pay for shit we already paid for. Greed is strong here, and it's disgusting.

—Juan Lebron, Goose Creek, SC

Many people have their business online, I do not want customers not being able to shop online just because they have to pay for sites. I also do not want to choose between paying for websites and buying food. I have friends and a business on here I do not want to risk. Please. STOP THIS AND LET US HAVE OUT ORIGINAL NET NEUTRALITY RULES.

—Sierra Howard, Tucson, AZ

Taking away Net Neutrality has got to be one of the stupidest decisions that has ever been made.

—Sophia Bilbao, ,

The internet is a place where everyone can connect, whether they have a lot off money, or very little. Most people would not be able to afford having to pay for individual websites. It is seemingly unconstitutional that FCC is trying to limit what we can see, and when. We are not a soviet community, and this is just another freedom that some "higher up" is trying to take away.

—Elizabeth Mitchell, Reserve, LA

Another worthless vote to our money grubbing politicians...

—Chris Gauss, Ann Arbor, MI

—John Freeman, Tuckerton, NJ

Restore net neutrality!!!

—Max Duvall, Louisville, KY

Stop this

—Connor Newman, Burlington, NJ

How is this, in any way, helping anyone but the big companies? Internet, now available to most is a way for everyone to interact and for kids to be kids, these days the media is the only parenting they will find and through their own buddy programs or making art or even sharing videos, we are growing up. Taking this away will make for less improvements in the art society since parents will think it's a waste of time instead of something good. America should know that we strive on the arts, everything else, not exactly our strong suit, how are we to lead if we have nothing?

—Alejandra Pedraglio, Sarasota, FL

Doesn't the government already have enough money as it is? Greedy bastards.

—Taylor, ,

You will not take our internet away!

—Grant Warren, Hico, TX

This kind of legislation is passed by people who have no idea how the Internet actually works. The Internet is not meant to function like television, and thus should not be treated as such. It is a separate entity entirely, and should be treated as one. Furthermore, this is the United States of America, not China. Censorship is not, nor should it ever be, how the free people of the world operate.

—Ben Hardee, Bessemer City, NC

What happened to "Home of the Free?"

—Jaedi Gambatese, Princeton Junction, NJ

Most of us all ready have TV in our homes. WE DON'T NEED A SECOND ONE! the economy and government is bad enough as it is! stop this already!

—Karelyn Paulino, Bronx, NY

At what point will we stop letting big corporations have their way with the way we live our lives, communicate with each other and entertain ourselves? The internet is not a medium that only spews forth its bounty. It is a tool, one used to collect information for project we as people and students are assigned/assign ourselves and correlate with others, contacting over long distances in a way that communicating by phone simply cannot do. In today's world the internet isn't a luxury either, like cable TV, it is essential, for not just social communication but our very jobs as well. How can we continue to do any of that when our company has the option to cut up the internet how they feel and serve it to us a la carte by their discretion.

—Javier Suarez, Newark, NJ

It's terrible that this could actually happen. This takes away basic freedoms like artistry and writing from everyday people.

—Kennedy Shaffer, Danbury, CT

Handing over control of the internet to companies who have an active interest in throttling sites (streaming, competitor's sites, lobbying groups against them, etc.) seems like a horrible idea. Competition won't even it out because there is virtually no competition in many parts of the country.

—Andrew Young, Bloomington, IN

The original intent of the internet was to provide fair access to information. That it is treated as a commodity these days cannot be helped, but it should NOT become a tool exclusive to the privileged and the wealthy.

—Michael O'Brien, Tempe, AZ

PLEASE RESTORE NET NEUTRALITY RULES. Thank you.

—, West Des Moines, IA

Quit commercializing everything!!

—Cede Littlejohn, Charlotte, NC

Stop giving corporations more power. This kind of decision only gives to people who have money, and takes from those who don't.

—Emily Simpson, Tampa, FL

This really needs to be fixed. A lot of people rely on the internet to keep living, and this would effectively kill that.

—Matt Litchfield, Paducah, KY

It's not only an unfair law, but it's going to impact the whole world! That's not right.

—Chelsey B., ,

Once people used the US postal service, they used telegrams, they circled jobs in the news paper. Now they use email, they use messaging systems, they seach the internet for jobs. They get their school lessons from the internet, they find out of their schools are closed on the internet. People are wired up every day of their lives, for almost every waking hour--it has transended newspapers, television, phone, radio, and mailing services, because all of them are ON the internet.

—Rachel Lindenberg, New York, NY

This is a ridiculous restriction and will only end up stiffling communication and creative output. Please restore net neutrality.

—Anne Salazar, Sioux Falls, SD

Internet neutrality must be maintained. Broadband internet access is and always will be a telecommunications service. Please do not allow access to the wealth of knowledge the web offers to be stratified by income.

—Aaron M Huberty, Milwaukee, WI

Net Neutrality is essential.

—Raccoon, ,

This is fucking bullshit. The Internet is not something you sadistic assholes can just run in and take over like the annoying fuckers you FCC are.

—Christina Hames, Sykesville, MD

—Sylwia Wasilewska, ,

The only freedom I have is on the internet, and that's the way it is for so many others as well. Are you really going to make us pay out the ass for something that's been virtually free for so long? I know several people who would have to choose between buying groceries and paying this. What happened to the land of the free?

—Monique Grigsby, San Antonio, TX

This is so ridiculous. Websites aren't products and clubs that we should have to pay for.

—Elizabeth, Conroe, TX

don't want this

—Maja, ,

Don't do this to the creators. Don't do this to the artists. The world is hard enough already. Don't make it harder.

—Amanda, Morton, IL

This is going to put independant companies and artisans out of business and we can barely afford stuff anyways. We don't need to have more fees than necessary. No one can afford that.

—Megan Hein, Stockbridge, GA

The internet is one of the few places where Americans and others around the world can express themselves, do business, and create and spread art and ideas without the excessive interference of big business. However crazy it can be, it's a true expression of American ideals of democracy, freedom of communication, and individual initiative. Believe in our democracy? Then please, please keep the internet neutral.

—Rachael Hargrove, Dade City, FL

This is going to have a very negative effect on many people who use the internet for many things: communicating with far friends and family, and anyone with business. No one would ever want to have to pay extra to use different websites along with the cost there is to pay for internet providers. And think about places that use "free wifi" they use that solely as a business rouse to attract people to stay, and while they stay they may also buy food from them. You are making an outrageously irrational action by taking Net Neutrality away. Some of us need the internet, not for addictive needs, but some of us have no other way of contacting long distance friends and family, family that's been in Ukraine with the riots (don't you dare ignore that there's been problems there as well as heavy violence) and then I have friends who are in places like Great Britain and Canada, I use Skype to speak with them all the time. We are so close thanks to the internet and it's Net Neutrality. Not everyone can afford to go online and pay just to use a certain website. Please, do not do this!

—Emily Kaiser, Summit Point, WV

Could you please not? To some web is only true income - to be charged more to earn the necessary funds is just plain wrong. Sides, imagine the rates on suicides for all the net-addicts.

—Jeppe Koskinen, ,

What the tits, man.

—Faye Liddy, Talent, OR

This is ridiculous and it needs to be stopped don't let the internet be the next kind of television

—Yvette Cordero, ,

FUCK YOU YOU PIECE OF SHIT

—Przemek Sendeki, ,

Without freedom on the internet, our country will fall behind the rest of the world in too many ways to list, please don't let this happen.

—Brendan Christensen, Harrisburg, PA

Please don't one of the only free things this country has left. What ever happened to "America, Land of the Free"? Because it certainly doesn't exist anymore.

—Ariana Carruthers, Santa Cruz, CA

Internet providers have enough money as it is. Paying money just to get access to one website just sounds ridiculous. Some people on the internet are already having trouble paying their bills, and the ISP wants even more money out of their costumers? This maybe just my opinion, but I think the IPS' are getting greedy at this point if they're killing Net neutrality.

—William Lynn, Monrovia, MD

Honestly, how greedy can the American government get? We are A NATION OF THE FREE. Let us be free. We did not found this country to become another totalitarian society tell its citizens what they can and cannot do based on money.

—Jill Kameron Fate, Dearing, GA

America is the land of the free, so why have these so called freedoms started costing so much.

—Lina Tanassi, ,

Really omfg why can't these guys just leave the damn internet alone. Its fine like it is jesus christ

—Breanna HArnett, Westmoreland, NY

ummmm how about no.

—Kacie Hendrixson, Newark, DE

access to information is a right that we shouldn't be oppressed from. By killing net neutrality, you take away some people's access to knowledge and freedom of expression.

—Aurelia Peridot, ,

I do not see how it is even legal for the United States to take over the /Worldwide/ Web. Unless, of course, the US is stating that it is more important than the rest of the world; I wouldn't doubt it if it did say that. This is also in violation of the First Amendment; if I have to pay more to say what I want, that is not /freedom/ of speech, even if I am writing and not physically talking. This is ridiculous.

—Jennifer Miller, Houston, TX

you think I have money for this?

—Emma TEYSSÉDOU, ,

Seriously? Come on. Come ooon.

—Jennifer Sarrantonio, Brooklyn, NY

STOP TOUCHING THE INTERNET PEOPLE! YOU HAVE OTHER THINGS TO WORRY ABOUT!

—, Tustin, CA

Please for the love of whatever you love, dont let the internet become a controlled media, where people have to pay extra to greedy third party companies just cus they have bought somekinda "rights" and where huge companies can take advantage the success of smaller companies trying to make it big. This will destroy alot of the best things about the internet. The things that make the internet "The internet" Dont let allready rich people come and ruin this place of freedom for us, just because they dont care about or understand it at all. All they do is try to find new ways to bill as many people as posible to get even more money. Dont let the internet die

—Alexander Kornmaaler, ,

The internet is a critical tool for education, business, and globalization. There are people who already struggle getting paid services. Don't hurt more people than you have with other monetary rulings....

—Shannan, ,

The Internet should stay free! FOR EVERYONE!

Please, please, please, for the love of god, fix this, don't kill the internet.

—Mr. Aric Boshoven, Hobart, IN

I'm sorry, someone thought this was vaguely okay and just? It's bad enough that television, and even the once free radio have been damned to such a fate. With the one place left where everyone is free to have some control over their own space being our beloved internet.. This shit has got to NOT happen!

—Michael Davis, Denham Springs, LA

As a taxing paying citizen of this nation, I disagree with this ruling.

—Brianne Gauthier, Liverpool, NY

Stop this now, restore net neutrality. Many, many of us don't have enough money as it is, don't take even more from us.

—Lucy Hall, ,

Fucking knock it off, government.

—Kristen Landrum, Waco, TX

The fact that the neutrality of the internet is even in question is sickening. The promise of the Internet lies not in the connections that it makes alone, but also in its capacity for democratic production of and access to content. Many arguments against net neutrality suggest that competition between ISPs will create a better environment for users, but a quick look at the business environment created by most ISPs, such as the merger between Time Warner and Comcast, demonstrate that this is clearly not the case. Most Internet users have no choice in their internet service provider, and to trust companies like Verizon or Comcast with their well-being is like trusting rabid dogs to take care of one's child.

—Samuel Stewart, Gurnee, IL

NET NEUTRALITY

—Kia Pichon, Houston, TX

The internet should be free for everyone! It's how we stay connected across the globe.

—Sara Johnson O'Brien, Duluth, MN

While we pay for service via ISPs, the internet has been a relatively free space where everyone, no matter their income level, is able to connect, access a wealth of information, and express themselves. The Internet has become a major part of our culture as human beings and the notion that ISPs might be able to limit what sites I can access unless I pay them more is utterly sickening. A lot of us are cash strapped as is, and I'd rather not be limited even more by someone else's greed. Net Neutrality is essential and I hope you guys will understand why it needs to remain. I don't want my family to have to choose either groceries or internet. We have already paid for our computers and wifi, let us use the internet as we please rather than making everything at a dollar sign (For those who are for the payment of websites)!!!

—Sophia Bruce, San Francisco, CA

This is creepy and disgusting. I would say that I cannot believe my government would do something as sleazy as this, but I can. I can believe it. And it's sickening to know that you all felt it was okay to do this.

—Emily Cook, Escondido, CA

I can't come up with the words I feel about our government. But I can say this... It's not great.

—Breanna, Tuscola, IL

ISP should have no right to block or affect information that should be accessible to every person.

—John Courville, Uncasville, CT

Save Net Neutrality!

—Summer Haynes, Greenville, IN

The focus for protection should be on the consumer and not business.

—Adam Morgan, Pleasanton, CA

No. Just... no. The internet is not television. Literally the last thing we need is more capitalism in our lives. Especially in THIS part of our lives.

—Cassie Jacobs, Haverford, PA

This is an affront to every principle of free enterprise and discrimination against the democratization of the creators of content.

—Liam Feld, Chicago, IL

Schools are broke as it is. Do you want them to have to pay extra for internet, with us as taxpayers taking on the financial burden? How about hospitals and police departments? This is utterly ridiculous, bad for businesses, and even worse for the economy.

—Sarah Harper, Benton, AR

Don't let the last bastion of free and equal communication down

—Michael Hall, Los Angeles, CA

Please, please, please, this action will simply work to widen the gap between those with everything and those with so little. Come on guys, behave like human beings. Restore Net Neutrality.

—Kimberley A Brown, Huntsville, AL

Would you just stop that, you're not helping anyone but yourselves. How greedy is that?

—Brianna Whitcomb, Franklin, VA

Correct this mistake and save the internet as we know it!

—TechNijui, ,

Comcast just won its court case to charge by the bit. Now it wants to take over Time Warner Cable. We all know this will end with restricted internet access and higher prices for consumers.

This is not, nor has it nor will it ever be an acceptable means of functionality in the internet. FCC needs to reverse this decision. It's despicable.

—Michael McMahon, San Jose, CA

The Internet should be free and available to EVERYONE!

—Brenna K MacInnis, ,

This is dumb, restore net neutrality.

—Kate, West Palm Beach, FL

The Internet is a huge part of the culture, not just here but all over the world. It's used for many things, some bad and some not. It isn't just kids who need it: businesses need it, too. Taking away net neutrality for a few extra bucks is not okay and can cost thousands, if not millions, of people their jobs. Not all businesses are rich, but a large majority if not all of them run through the internet. It's how people get business. Advertising and social networking sites help not only big businesses but businesses they've never heard of through things like Amazon as well as self-employed writers and artists. Students also use the internet to do research.

—Emily, Elk Grove Village, IL

Sweden has already made the internet a basic human right, just like food water and air. This is a terrible idea

This goes directly against peoples' rights.

—Jacob Jones, Waterloo, NE

Please restore net neutrality! If you don't, who knows how long before we won't be able to hear about important news, perhaps political news, simply because a certain person doesn't want us to?

—David Guyadeen, Thousand Oaks, CA

The connections to the internet are controlled by few enough parties as it is - it needs to remain an open forum, as cutting people off or restricting their access to sites can only hurt the economy, especially and independent artists and new and local businesses.

—Jake Inkrote, Apex, NC

Last time I checked, the USA couldn't pass laws that affect the whole world? Freest country in the world my ass.

—Quincy, ,

This is a truly serious issue that could have far reaching consequences, not just for the US, but for the rest of the world. If ISPs successfully tier pricing structures, other ISPs will follow America's example. The internet is a free, beautiful space for all. Killing Net Neutrality will undermine that.

—Dave Dixon, ,

Why is this a good idea for literally anyone but those who own the companies?

—Amber Gerdes, Allen, TX

wtf seriously, the people of the D.C. circuit's are just too crazy... (in a bad way)

—Ana, ,

I hate the idea that companies think they can limit and restrict the internet like that. They want to squeeze every possible penny out of this open communication system.

As a small business owner, any additional obstacles to the free flow of business on the internet to hard on my company financially. After the recession of the last 5 years, additional charges to make my website viewable by people could lead to lay-offs. I can't afford to pay ISPs to let their customers see my website.

—Jill Patterson, Colorado Springs, CO

As a young voter, I will never vote for anyone who votes against net neutrality.

—Christian Damon Akins, Salado, TX

Please restore neutrality and improve competition for better service to consumers

—Sam, ,

The Internet rallied against SOPA, PIPA, ACTA, and all other bills and acts that have tried to be instituted to limit our net freedom. What makes you think this will be any different?

—Patience Stewart, South Saint Paul, MN

This effects my whole life!!!! NOOOOOO!!!!

—Mary Moody, South Hadley, MA

I want to try to make some money as a webcomic artist, but I don't want to have to pay for net providers to provide access to my own site that may not be seen by other viewers that don't want to pay more just to read a comic. This is entirely unfair to small businesses that were hoping to catch maybe even a small break via. the internet. This is proof that the government is NOT doing it's job of representing the people.

—Casey Callahan, Ormond Beach, FL

The fact that the Internet is so open is a huge reason why so many people use it. If you were hoping to gain money from this, you would fail; people would use the internet much less, the users aren't as addicted as people suppose the are: sites that had to be paid for would simply not be used. Furthermore, this is what I like to call a DICK MOVE.

—Erin McDonough, ,

This is a communication's service! Get it together and stop trying to make everything miserable.

BALANCE. We need it.

—Callistor Titan, Voorhees, NJ

This isn't just about ISPs charging more for Netflix and Hulu. Without Net Neutrality, an ISP can treat sites the company's leadership disagrees with (Fox News, Amnesty International, CNN) differently than sites that they support -- by pushing them down the bandwidth queue so the sites run more slowly, by making them part of more expensive packages, or by refusing to handle them at all. Striking down net neutrality could have a huge impact on free speech, political actions, freedom of the press -- not just on corporations' bottom line. The purpose of government is to protect the people from those who would oppress them -- including those from within.

—JoAnn Davidson, El Cajon, CA

Why would anybody do this? Some people can barely afford the internet and now you want to take that away from them too?

—Heavenly Zheng, Rockville, MD

Don't turn the internet into the garbage television has become! Internet providers should not be allowed to pick and choose what can and cannot be seen!

—Christopher George, Raleigh, NC

Just stop. The internet is fine just the way it is. Not everything needs to be meddled with.

—Vienna Russillo, High Point, NC

Net Neutrality seems really unnecessary.

—Mike D, Hopedale, MA

This should not be a thing that is legal. One big corporate bully should not be able to grasp a concept like the internet anymore than they can tax us of intangible ideas like happiness or love. This is ridiculous, an outrage, and you have no idea the amount of people you have just turned on yourselves. I hope you will reverse this decision soon, before something happens that makes you reconsider. Believe me, I've been on the internet for a while, and I know what the people are like. You take that away from us, than your just as much filthy corporate scum.

I was homeless for a year and a half before I enlisted in the US Navy, and having open access to internet allowed me to locate resources that I needed to survive, such as soup kitchens, shelters, and paying work. Many places where I used free internet access would not pay more for increased access if the ISP they used decided to make it necessary to pay to access certain sites, and I would not have been able to pay to access a wider spectrum of the internet. Do not let Internet Service Providers take resources and knowledge away from the poor, working class, and homeless populations. Do not let them censor the Internet for their own profit.

—USN HN (FMF) Brian D Pait, Long Beach, CA

Why. Why would you do this.

—Tasha Phelan, Groton, CT

Net Neutrality is incredibly important towards individuals' ability to communicate freely in a time where internet access is becoming more and more essential and the gap between economic classes is becoming more and more wide. Please protect net neutrality from corporations, and protect free speech and communication on the internet!

—Katherine Zhu, Gaithersburg, MD

People across the world have told the government time and time again to leave the internet alone, please take the hint and stop tampering with it. We do not want this policy, or any other policy that restricts the openness of the Internet and all of its websites.

—Liana Manning, Boca Raton, FL

This shouldn't have to be something that needs done.

—Gwen Emler, Zanesville, OH

The internet is not here to be controlled by the US government or ANYONE. Millions and billions of people use the internet daily, for fun, work and education purposes. Your STUPID decision to take away neutrality and force people to possibly pay for things they use on a daily basis and already pay for, is just that: Stupid. The internet allows people on low income to access a sea of facts, learn, grow and succeed in life. By letting go of net neutrality, you're going to eliminate that from them. Most people pay enough to ISPs to have internet, and now you're telling these people to pay more? You're dooming the internet and your people. As well, you're making a decision that has consequence in the rest of the world, which you have NO right to do. It's not up to you how the rest of the world works, stop acting like it. Give back Net Neutrality.

—Matty Dakota Willigar, ,

Internet access should be protected from restrictions based on financial need. Too many services rely on the internet to start regulating it in such a way, and such regulation could also severely hamper online entrepreneurs who are able to reach a broad clientele base thanks to the ease of access to the internet. Killing net neutrality will kill innovation and create an unnecessary class barrier for internet users.

—Lydia Nguyen, Essex Junction, VT

This is not constitutional!

—Shannon Hoyle, Edmond, OK

This just isn't fair? The internet is supposed to be a place where people can share knowledge freely, you're taking that away.

—Megan Dellinger, Allen, TX

The death of net neutrality would ruin the internet irrevocably. It's been one of the guiding principals of the internet since the beginning, and it's absence would alter the world as we've come to know it.

—Robert Stolle, Philadelphia, PA

Seriously, the Internet shouldn't be blocked like this. A lot of business owners will loose a lot of money and a lot of people who depend on the Internet for income will be affected.

—Mary, Wixom, MI

Making the internet like this will be very bad for people who are underprivileged and don't have a ton of money but have internet access and can make money through the internet in order to support themselves. The internet is not perfect, but its better how it is now than it will be without net neutrality.

—Lauren Gaber, Dearborn, MI

The internet is something people use to pay bills, apply for jobs (each company has its own website that people might not be able to access anymore!), and take political actions (like registering a changed address for voting)! This is a TERRIBLY LIFE CHANGING PRECEDENT that is not only unfair but DANGEROUS for our lives as we know it!

The Internet is invaluable for communication all over the world. It's extremely important that businesses not be allowed to become gatekeepers of communication.

—Elizabeth Strawn, APO, NY

I don't plan on waiting around for the FCC's response to this. It's unacceptable. So I'm going to start my own ISP to serve Ventura County and Los Angeles county, with clearly stated rights to the users.

—Chandon Harris, Thousand Oaks, CA

Restore Net Neutrality. We already pay for the 'privilege' of internet access. ISP's shouldn't be able to charge us even more to sites they deem 'more expensive'.

—Heather, Manchester, PA

KEEP THE NET FREE!!!!

—Timothy Lyu, Los Angeles, CA

Bring back an open internet. I pay my internet provider for the broadband not for what particular websites I utilize for business or entertainment.

—, Reynoldsburg, OH

This is disgusting.

—Alexander, Endicott, NY

I love the internet.. Don't take it away..

—Tim, Schenectady, NY

I shouldn't have to explain why this is awful, if this continues you're only taking away the freedom that people need.

—Joshua Rudolph, Peckville, PA

The lack of net neutrality could destroy the careers and livelihoods of freelance writers and artist who rely on the internet to run their business, and may not be able to afford constant upgrades in plans to access web pages, Likewise, their clients may not be able or willing to pay to access these necessary web pages as well.

—Meghan Tucker, Marietta, GA

—Paige Goldberg, Elkins Park, PA

Net Neutrality is imperative to the economic health of these united states. Please re-impose it. Now. While I'm at it, why do I have to pay for the NFL. I have no interest in football yet am forced to pay exhorbitant cable rates for channels I have no interest in. Please allow the purchase of cable a la carte.

I use my internet connection for everything from cooking to keeping in touch with my family. It's the only way I can see my grandmother, who is too old and frail to travel, and the only way she can see my son (her first great-grandchild). Please don't take that away.

—Rachel, Alpharetta, GA

I make my money through the internet but we aren't well off people in my house. We can't afford the chance our internet will not only cost more, but also that we have to pay to access certain websites. Our connection is pretty bad the way it is and anything better is either not available to us or costs more than we can pay for.

—Sarah Gannon, Philadelphia, PA

I've seen so many amazing things happen and projects get done using the internet by individuals who, under this new policy, I sincerely doubt would be able to continue doing the good work they do due to pricing. Please don't do this.

—Colin Curry, Swannanoa, NC

This is actually going against our rights in the Constitution, where the government or higher power would not tax everything we do. The Boston Tea Party was a riot against tea taxes. And if needed be, we will have a riot against this. We already pay for INTERNET. We don't need to pay for accessing sites. Good day sir!

—Alissa Sikora, Painesville, OH

LET OUR PEOPLE GO!

—Melissa Clark, Springdale, AR

Please keep the web free.

—Baxter Lowe, Arlington, TX

the internet doesn't need to be a companies play thing. it's the last thing we people have that is not owned and can not be entirely purchases. companies, even separate, act only in their own self interest and bias. Net Neutrality prevents the internet from being anything but entirely genuine.

—Kade Johnson, San Antonio, TX

Please do us some justice by correcting this, too many people like myself have a hard time paying bills and such let alone for websites that may help my children do homework, or job searches, this is getting a little out of hand, Mr. Wheeler please help us right this wrong.

—Emily, Las Vegas, NV

The internet is designed to be a free place where you can learn, taking this away would be a blow to anyone wanting to experience the world and learn via the internet. the possibility of that being taken away should be seen as a form of Monopoly because many people use this to research, find an article for a college paper, and so many other uses that would be lost because a major company wants to control it and charge people for wanting to experience culture and knowledge on the world wide web

—Josiah Ortega, Richland, WA

Taking away everything that Americans with very little can use now are we? What has become of this country.

—Remi Akindele, Wexford, PA

this is so stupid seriously im 16 i dont have money to buy the freaking internet.

Please restore Net Neutrality.

—Sareena Toothaker, Orono, ME

Hell no. Who's Idea was this?

—Adrian Carter, Delta, CO

This decision could easily be used to discriminate against websites that the internet provider disagrees with and limit free speech. This is just one of many problems that could arise from this decision. This is one of the dumbest decisions I've ever seen! It almost seems like the companies payed off the FCC.

—Declan, Holland, MI

Jesus, why would you even THINK of doing this? The internet is not tv and should remain as so. What's next, buying a house and having to pay to get in certain rooms?

—Alex, Buffalo, NY

this story makes me sick, i hope this gets resolved asap

—Cassie, Bethel Park, PA

Do not let this come to pass. The Internet is a free space across the globe- it should not be monopolized.

Jesus, why would you even THINK of doing this? The internet is not tv and should remain as so. What's next, buying a house and having to pay to get in certain rooms?

—Alex, Buffalo, NY

I was considering Verizon because of their prices and good plans for net and television. However with this new update, I wouldn't consider them at all and would rather take my service from another provider. Please, don't take away what we have. FCC if you could please not allow this to happen, so many people would be happy. Many artists I know rely on online work to draw for others and make a living online. If both customer and artist have to pay more just to uphold a gallery and make purchases, things would collapse for them. That's just one factor of how many things could go wrong if this really happens to us. FCC you may be our last hope. Don't let us down.

—Michael A. Gutierrez, Bronx, NY

Jesus, why would you even THINK of doing this? The internet is not tv and should remain as so. What's next, buying a house and having to pay to get in certain rooms?

—Alex, Buffalo, NY

Please help restore net neutrality. No one wants a web where people have to pay to access certain websites; this isn't television. The internet is a wide, wide digital landscape where anyone can run a business, express themselves, stay in touch with family, etc. For many of us, the internet is our life. Our LIFE. Don't take that away from us.

—Ryan Shrewsbury, Gordon, GA

I refuse to have to pay more money to access sites that ISPs feel they should charge more for. Do something.

—Michael Wall, Cocoa, FL

The internet is our land, owned by the people (being that we basically pay for it any how) for the people. You've restricted my voice off the web, so my words will sewn in it, because as an American, these are my basic rights. I shouldn't have to have a certain income on order to exercise my rights.

—Nia Smalls, Modena, NY

Who is paying you to make these decisions?! Have you forgotten it is the American people who put you in your seat of power?!

—Jordan Hamilton, Muskegon, MI

Fuck that

—Tyler Wright, Rome, GA

This is disgusting, you money-grubbing government.

—Dani, Fort Smith, AR

There is a growing contingent of the population that makes their money through online business, and relies on it to pay rent and buy groceries. Without Net Neutrality, they run the risk of losing their customers, either by potentially losing access to vital sites due to not being able to pay the prices needed, or from their customers losing access to those sites for the same reason. In the current economy, it's vital we preserve these pockets of industry! Additionally, the internet is becoming more and more vital to schooling at all levels, and there's already problems with people not being able to afford it at home, making it difficult for kids to finish assignments. Restoring Net Neutrality would not fix this, but would prevent the gap becoming even worse. Please help Net Neutrality be restored. Thank you.

—Catherine Caro, Providence, RI

This is basically an act of censorship.

—Lindsey, Longmont, CO

The internet is an amazing resource that should not be limited by money any further than it is now. Please keep net neutrality.

—Abigail Severson, Monroe, WA

If I have to pay for things separately I will not have internet. I will have my phone and tell the internet companies to suck my giant toe. :)

Thank you for trying to ruin our country even more.

—Timothy Francis Martinson, Salem, MA

Thanks for being dicks, America. You really are one of the worst countries ever.

—Albert Park, Levittown, NY

The internet is the most common form of communication in the modern world. That it wouldn't be classified as a "telecommunication service" is beyond me. I hope this mistake will be corrected. It would be a shame to think that the FCC is under corporate control.

—Talwyn Scudi, ,

Don't you ever dare to mess with net neutrality. You already are screwing up our rights. Stop. Fucking. With. Us.

The Internet is completely dependent on open and unrestricted access to information. It has allowed every significant thing that we use to rise from effectively nothing - Google Search, Youtube, Facebook - as a replacement for the many inferior products before it - AskJeeves, Google Video, MySpace. It's absolutely critical that we don't create a world in which a new Facebook can't exist, or current mainstays are never forced to improve because of new and better alternatives, or (worst of all) access to information is made inaccessible to most. That is what price controls on these services will mean. The Internet is the most important thing in the world today, and I personally owe it almost everything that I am. Restore net neutrality.

—Michael Bonner, Starkville, MS

Leave our internet alone!

—Kay Madison, Canton, MI

Keep the final frontier a frontier.

—Aaron, Ashburn, VA

This is ridiculous. Broadband is a communications service, not something that should be restricted based on how much money you can afford to throw at Verizon. The idea that tiered pricing will allow ISPs to discriminate against websites, to slow down some clients' web speed in favor of others -- this infringes strongly on the free access to information that the internet is all about. This is completely absurd. Please take steps to restore Net Neutrality. The internet is where the under-served go to spark discussion and to find others like themselves: it is the tool that allowed for the Arab Spring. If companies can take that away, make that more difficult, how soon will those decisions become political? How soon will discrimination against consumers become something like the Internet in China, restricted for all those who can't afford to pay for a back-door way out? This is ridiculous. Please, I beg of you -- restore Net Neutrality!

—Alisa Beer, Brooklyn, NY

When you have Net Neutrality gone, people who are looking for work will be unable to apply for jobs because they are being CHARGED for doing that much. Would you wish to pay to put a job application in just to be disqualified? And before you say that on line job applications does not exist, I will tell you that 99 out of 100 businesses DEMAND that you apply on line.

STOP YOUR INSANITY. LIMIT YOUR GREED FOR ALL THAT IS HOLY AND BLUE. SERIOUSLY HOW MUCH MORE DO YOU FAT PENGUINS NEED SERIOUSLY. LEAVE THE INTERNET ALONE IT DOESN'T LIKE YOU

—Saraah Hossain, Richmond, TX

This will crush startups and artists. Way to screw people over in an already ruined economy

—Casey, ,

This is a really stupid move. Why the fuck do you guys keep trying to deregulate this shit? We can't pay for anything because the wealthiest people are not taxed, not because industries have very much needed regulation

—Brendan Collins, Denver, CO

I'm getting ready to start college and money is going to be tight as it is. I really, really do not need unnecessary extra fees because companies are greedy.

—Caleb Ach, Norwalk, OH

This is not what the internet was intended for. Please don't ruin what freedom we have left on the internet. It's supposed to be a safe haven for us, not something we pay for pleasure.

—Chrystal, Battle Creek, MI

The great thing about the Internet is that it is a relatively free library which everyone can learn from it is not fair to make for someone to pay for a library so don't make us pay for the Internet.

Restore Net Neutrality!

—Rachel Lanning, Cypress, CA

So basically, now under U.S. law, you only see what your ISPs want you to see. This is NOT freedom. There is NO way this can be construed as the "freedom" that America touts so proudly. It's B.S. I don't think I can consider the U.S. a free country any longer. Come to think of it, I don't think I have for a long time. This is absolutely disgusting, greedy, and unacceptable. Restore net neutrality immediately.

—Monica, San Diego, CA

fuck u guys

—No, Hanford, CA

This is totally disgusting. The purpose of the internet is for people to freely express themselves no matter their income. I refuse to pay out the as for something that has been and should forever more be available without cost.

—Erika Lentz, Southborough, MA

Being a freelance artist, if you were to make me pay for access to certain websites, I would definitely not make it. School and living costs are already pushing me to my limits, and to push them even further would wind up destroying the economy and the lives of so many people in my situation.

—Kimberly Cantu, Edinburg, TX

I'm not about to claim that destroying net neutrality is un-American. Only fools think that our founding fathers thought this far ahead, or had any universal plan. However, what I will say is that a case like net neutrality can set the tone for much more to come. If those in power continue to ignore the people, "American" will take on a new definition-- one that I can not say that I would be proud to be a part of. Honor the spirit of democracy. Honor the ideals that we have fought to maintain. Most importantly, honor justice. If you truly care for the integrity of our country, you'll know that in our courts, a common man should be seen as no less than a CEO. Our courts have failed, and you're the final line of defense. Make America a name that people will stay proud to support.

Taking away Net Neutrality would be a big blow to many people and companies like Verizon wouldn't make money, but lose it due to a lot of people not having much money in the first place. We need Net Neutrality to keep many small businesses afloat, so they can help pay the Government; if you take away the Net Neutrality there's going to be less people paying for the internet and what sites they want to use. Net Neutrality is something important to a lot of people because it allows free access to the sites we often want to get to. The FCC will pick up the slack because they know that the people don't have the money for companies owning the internet for a profit; we have a right to have public, but also private, interactions on the internet. Now the FCC knows what it's supposed to do for the people to have a good, happy time on the internet. They'll pull through with what we need with a new set of Net Neutrality rules.

—Elizabeth Foland, Everett, WA

We already have enough dictators in this world, we do not need any more dictating what we can and can not browse to on the internet. We live on what should be a FREE WORLD, we have civil liberties that protect us from being controlled. The internet is the last free place to be and it's slowly being taken away from us. It needs to be stopped now

—Jezz Bentham, Wakefield, CA

How is this even okay or legal

—McKayla Lewis, Spokane, WA

That so cute, your trying to get away with censoring an incredibly fast, international information center and expect no title wave of backlash.

Thats cute.

I will always stand by freedom of the internet.

—Nick Mayp, Chandler, AZ

Please, please do not let this happen. Please. This is absolutely terrifying. Many of the websites this is most likely to effect are extremely important to me and hundreds if not thousands of others. For many people the World Wide Web is one of if not the only access to important friends or people of other relationships who they cannot easily get in touch with without it. To restrict the internet is to divide the world.

Please, sir(s) Madam(s) or what ever else you may prefer... if a 15 year old can see that this is wrong, can't you?

Many people use the Internet as their primary source of income. What would a negation of net neutrality do to their sector of the economy? What does this say about the government's commitment to first amendment rights? If I have to pay to speak out, if anyone has to pay more to speak out, this crushes one of the central pillars of democracy in this country. The Internet is the newspaper of this century. What you have done with stopping net neutrality reminds me greatly of the Stamp Act that led to the Revolutionary War. Look what happened to the British.

While we pay for service via ISPs, the internet has been a relatively free space where everyone, no matter their income level, is able to connect, access a wealth of information, and express themselves. The Internet has become a major part of our culture as human beings and the notion that ISPs might be able to limit what sites I can access unless I pay them more is utterly sickening. A lot of us are cash strapped as is, and I'd rather not be limited even more by someone else's greed. I deserve to be able to access the knowledge I require to grow and learn as a human being regardless of my income.

Internet is a global resource that allows knowledge , answers and ideas to be spread from country to country, and, what's more, is a place where people unite over commonalities. to take away that freedom, rather than to extend it to nations who don't have free and easy internet access, is to discriminate against all that do not have the money to pay for something that has become integral to human life.

—Livne Ore, Auckland,

FCC, it is of utmost importance for the American people that we protect the ability to access any and all information on the internet reliably and affordably, and without obstruction, slow-down, or tiered payment plans determined solely by the corporate bodies who currently provide broadband access to American consumers. By not preserving net neutrality, ISPs will be able to limit access to information on the web at their own discretion. As someone whose primary venue for news and interpersonal communication is broadband, I have so much to lose from the revoking of net neutrality. I cannot afford to return to school or pay for costly subscriptions as one of many chronically un- and underemployed young people in today's economy. I rely on the internet to continue building my skills and my knowledge. I do not want Verizon or any ISP to be able to unilaterally restrict my access to free and low-cost education on the web, and the end of net neutrality threatens to allow just that. Please consider this a priority for our nation. This is a huge blow to freedom of speech and freedom of press. Corporate interests have no business determining what should and shouldn't be readily and affordably accessible for Americans who rely on broadband for crucial information.

—Emi Noguchi, Wayne, NJ

You must try to come up with some way to keep an open internet. Allowing the telecom companies to charge more or less for different 'packages' or 'tiers' of internet hurts everyone but the upper classes. You think previous recessions were bad? If Net Neutrality is allowed to die off, the big companies out there that control America's airwaves and telecom networks are going to run rampant with their new power, taking away our internet freedoms right and left. The digital economy will plummet, because you can only get access to Amazon and Ebay if you pay extra per month. Entrepreneurial startups will wither and die because no one will be able to pay the extra fees it takes to access youtube, kickstarter, etc. You must act now - ensure net neutrality and you will ensure the growth and stability of the USA for decades to come.

I've been online since late 98, playing games and exploring the wider world of knowledge. I've seen what teired and limited access to media does. The net is not TV, and TV is so far behind and archaic with its tiered levels and over priced packages. I don't want to see my internet turn into a multi leveled 'you don't have the premium package' mess that the ISP companies already turned TV into. The internet is for everyone, not for Verizon and AT&T to fill their already bulging pockets of cash.

—Andrew James Mileo, Laurel, MD

The internet is a Neutral zone. Charging different prices for different sites is just asking Anonymous to target you. Remember the CIA fiasco?

This ruling affects the entire economy, and I get the feeling it was made by a judge a bit removed the full effects this will have. We already pay for different speeds based on what service is even available in our location. Do we really need to allow companies--already in a monopoly in many regions--demanded we pay more to access certain sites? (The answer is no.) That's like a taxi driver making you pay more to go to the bank than to the airport, regardless of the distance. NO ADDITIONAL FEES. The internet is a telecommunications SERVICE.

As a young ambitious computer science student, I am successful today largely because of the learning I was able to achieve through this wonderful and innovative creation we perceive as the Internet. I'm a Verizon Fios and Verizon Wireless custom and I'll never forget the day when I was in middle school how much it meant to me to see the linemen running fiber cables in front of my house. It changed my life, it allowed me to become connected with society. I was not just involved with social media, I learned to build my first computer from the Internet, and I expanded my technological knowledge far beyond anyone my age. When I turned 16 I bought my first car from over the Internet, and since then I've used the Internet countless times to figure out how to fix it. The Internet is an amazing tool that can be used for entertainment, but more importantly for learning. When I graduate from college I hope to become one of America's next great innovators, I hope to build software and technology that will change the world. The idea of innovation and America is truly a powerful and inspiring concept that moves me in so many ways. Verizon is a true technological leader and innovator, they inspire me and the world in so many ways. They literally changed and influenced my life. It truly saddens me to see a company I believed so strongly in, being run by corporate greed and caring more about money than what they do for the world and for their customers. I also am losing faith in my country because the government running it is siding with a company that is trying to limit learning and innovation because of money that they are not in need of. I'm from a lower middle class family and I have great value in the littlest things, I know it might be hard for the board of directors of Verizon, or the officials and politicians associated with the FCC to understand that my family doesn't have the money to pay for an Internet service that is unbiased and provides free and speedy service. We only have enough money to pay for the lowest level service that is biased and slow, it's just not right and it's definitely not fair. Network Neutrality is a huge issue that could potentially hurt not only me and my family but also many who will follow in my footsteps. I don't want to lose faith in my government, my country, or my Internet. I hope you will help society by remembering the "Government of the people, by the people, for the people, (Even those people of the lower classes) shall not perish from this Earth. This pro-Verizon, anti-citizen decision is a free speech issue. I am a librarian. Public libraries and the citizens we serve will be negatively impacted if the courts continue to rule in favor of for-profit corporations on this issue. This is bedrock for the American people and the free flow of REAL information via the Internet (which was, by the way, NOT invented by the corporations who are currently scrambling to co-opt it.) Once the Internet is rendered a pay-to-play game, all public and school libraries, as well as many college libraries, will be relegated to the sidelines as they attempt to provide their users with timely, accurate information for their use.

—Jean Elliott, Chicago, IL

We need net neutrality for a better future. Please take action and restore the sanctity of our internet freedom, for the good of commerce and fair competition online!
—Max Baily, Moscow, ID

Libraries are open to the public, and a library is simply a large database of information stored in print form. The Internet is something similar, allowing access to a massive database of information stored in online journals, videos, pictures, even games - to turn such a large source of information into a capitalist venture would be a violation of our right to information, would set up a monopolistic structure for internet use (which America has long since decided is a bad structure), and only seeks to serve the interests of the company.
—Alex Lee, San Jose, CA

Please restore net neutrality. We cannot allow Verizon nor Google to control the internet. We must have you reclassify broadband internet access as a telecommunications service (that's exactly what it is). We do not need Verizon nor Google (an NSA sub-agency) being able to control who does or does not see certain websites and who does or does not connect to the internet at faster speeds. Verizon is worse than any mafia family - they are slimy and underhanded - they lie, cheat, and steal. Verizon has been on my "s*i* list" for many years after they blatantly lied to me over and over on the phone and in person at one of their stores. I let every customer in the store know how crappy Verizon was and how much they lied and all of the customers left. I wouldn't use cell phones if Verizon was the only service available - I'd just do without a cell phone. We cannot allow Verizon and Google to get away with this. If they do this, they will then start charging anyone and everyone to use the internet (we already pay our ISP as well as in some cases MSN for our email service) - that's quite enough to be paying for the internet (something that should be totally free to every household in the U.S.).

—Martha Cifuentes, Lakewood, WA

Free, non discriminatory internet access is vital to education, health, and personal freedoms. People of all income levels deserve the ability to research politics or for school, use WebMD, or simply watch a movie without having to pay more to get a good connection. —Ms. Mimi Shapiro, Lancaster, PA

This merger cannot happen , very bad for comsumers and competition . Please do not allow this the happen.

—Dana Jablonski, Marsing, ID

Don't approve the merger!

—Alfred Bacon, Houston, TX

Quit trying to rule the freaking internet. Seriously

—Elvis, Chicago, IL

If the FCC is not bought and paid for by thr international telecommunications corporations, then you will do the right thing. Otherwise, we will know that the FCC is an arm of the matrix.

—J Wheeler, Beverly Hills, CA

I had Comcast for two years. During that period, Comcast out-and-out lied to me about service disruptions that were clearly due to their own equipment. A Comcast employee admitted privately that service outages were usually due to old and poorly maintained equipment. When confronted with this news, the Comcast "help" services kept passing me from one person to another hoping I would simply go away. Thankfully I was able to get decent service from a local provider.

—Mark Rogers, Fort Collins, CO

WE DEMAND NEUTRAL ACCESS AND ANTI-TRUST ACTION AGAINST COMMUNICATIONS MONOPOLOIES

—Mr. Michael Sidoric, Austin, TX

Stop taking away our freedoms you pricks

—Joshua, Oklahoma City, OK

I cannot believe we even have to do these things

—Ally James, Tacoma, WA

Lately have noticed poor quality on verizon fios and netflix. Could this be what comes from lack of net neutrality?

—Andrew Rein, Silver Spring, MD

These sorts of protections against barriers to entry, barriers to exit, and implicit collusion, among others, have been necessary since the days of telegraph. The telephone industry continued the behaviors which make it obvious that regulation against corporate biasing of communications is absolutely necessary.

—Mark Walker, Albuquerque, NM

This and Comcast & Time Warner merger both hurt customers. Please stand up for customers, stop this and do the right thing! Thank you.

—Bruce Clatterbuck, Lithia, FL

Net Neutrality is a necessity in a world that is becoming more and more reliant upon the internet.

—Benjamin Lorin, Woodbury, NY

Um, no.

—Haley Nason, Clackamas, OR

Net neutrality NOW!!!

—Arthur Smith, Moncks Corner, SC

Comcast nearly got away with my death. As a disabled person, with a bundled phone, I was never told, especially as a very ill and low income person, that if I could not pay my bill, access to 911 would be disconnected. I pleaded with Comcast NOT to disconnect my 911 and they agreed. However, a few days later they sent a linesperson out and disabled 911 access. I live extremely rurally, on an island. In the middle of the night, a few days later, I had a serious accident while falling, and cut a vein open. I am on bloodthinners and could not staunch the bleeding. I kept it bandaged as tightly as I could, left tons of water for my dog and cats, tons of food, left my door open, and went to bed. I was found 3 days later, accidentally, nearly bled out, my home an absolute bloody horror show as I rushed around trying to keep my animals alive if I should not live. Comcast's legal response that an internet protocol phone did not carry the same rights such as pay phones, regular telephone service, and even cell phone service. I did not have a cell phone. Comcast refused to pay my medical bills which were very significant, nor help with the expensive clean up of blood from my home. The more power we give giant entities like this, the less power and freedom we have to access information, news, and television, stations, and even emergency services. Anti-Trust laws were written for a reason. Comcast is too big. Their prices do not reflect the reality of the plight of poor people, shut-ins, the homebound, disabled, ill and elderly to access content to help give meaning to otherwise bleak lives. Please stop this unnatural mating. You, the FCC, who did not fight for me, owe Americans. Your organization stands between the unheard and uninformed, and power and money of a nearly unimaginable size. Do your job and protect Americans from a conglomerate that will soon dictate nearly every aspect of our information, and even create a new class of poor, elderly and or disabled who have nothing left to do in their lives except lie in bed in deafening silence, sit in our wheelchairs with nothing to watch except the world go by our windows.

—Christine Manfredi, Vashon, WA

The internet is one place where access should not be controlled by corporate interests, namely greed!

—Angela P, Kailua, HI

The Internet was not created to be a method for Verizon to gain profit. It was created to unite people across the globe via the share of information, experiences, and ideas.

—Bri, Spartanburg, SC

The internet should be free for all. The internet belongs to the people, not to companies motivated by money.

—Lillian Byce, Atlanta, GA

For some people, the internet is their world. They create, thrive, and succeed purely because of the freedom that only the internet can offer. By taking away that freedom, not only would businesses suffer, but artistic expression, knowledge, and even mental health can suffer. The internet is more than just cat pictures and porn. It is a way for those of whom without funds, without connections, and without a place to find what they need. It is a place for people in a crisis to express their needs and concerns in a healthy manner instead of resorting to suicide. It is a place to learn. It is a place to teach. It is a place to share, to make new friends from all over the world, and reach a better understanding of how to appreciate and respect everyone and the world we live in. By giving that power to internet providers you take away all of that. Businesses will die, arts will stop getting funds, and knowledge of the world, other cultures, and other beliefs all stop. Do not let that happen.

—Caitlin Cash, Atlanta, GA

I only wish I could do more, but, this is what I can do for now. ... For now.

HELL NO, BRING NET NEUTRALITY BACK.

—, Fontana, CA

please don't take away my free porn!

—Dennis Carr, Chicago, IL

The worldwide web was created to be a place of free exchange and information for all, not just those who can pay for unlimited acces. We already pay for access to the net and no one should have to pay to navigate freely--and for free-- once on the net. Paid access to selected "channels" will inhibit education, for example, and allow providers to steer users to selected sites of the provider's choosing, thereby controlling what may be learned and what may not be learned. That's way too much power in the provider's control. All knowledge should be accessed for free on the net. It's not just for porn and consumers.

—Bonnie Bayardi, Closter, NJ

This is rather pathetic!!!

—Murugan Elu, Westwood, NJ

This is something that shouldn't be controlled by people it doesn't apply to, such as people who don't give half of a care about the internet
—Dylan Clark, Tallahassee, FL

The internet is one of the most important, utilized resources of this era. By taking away net neutrality, you are limiting thousands of connections, work, and social lives that take place over the web. According to www.census.gov, in 2011, around 75.6% of the US population owned computers, and 71.7% had and used internet at home. That's roughly 225,461,738 people using the internet in the United States alone. And without net neutrality, that number will most likely decrease. People use the internet because it's like freedom. They are allowed to browse independently, doing whatever they please whenever they wish. Whether it's research, blogging, watching YouTube videos, or connecting with people, the internet is something people rely and depend on for their everyday lives. By taking away net neutrality, you're taking away work, friend, and family connections from thousands. Restore net neutrality, and restore the connections and lives of all of those people.

Net Neutrality is essential to America's Democracy and infrastructure! YOU ARE STRIPPING OUR RIGHTS AWAY SLOWLY, BUT THIS IS NOT ONE YOU WILL TAKE AWAY SO EASILY. THIS COUNTRY IS RUN BY THE PEOPLE!!! Destroying Net Neutrality is unacceptable!!!!
—Michael Rinella, Cuyahoga Falls, OH

The Federal Communications Commission exists for the express purpose of ensuring that communications services are provided with adherence to fair and democratic process. The FCC's own 2006-2011 Strategic Plan states the following goals: 1) "All Americans should have affordable access to robust and reliable broadband products and services. Regulatory policies must promote technological neutrality, competition, investment, and innovation to ensure that broadband service providers have sufficient incentives to develop and offer such products and services." 2) "Competition in the provision of communication services, both domestically and overseas, supports the Nation's economy. The competitive framework for communications services should foster innovation and offer consumers reliable, meaningful choice in affordable services." Verizon's interference with the data stream rate of competing cloud providers is in direct violation of the standards outlined in these goals, also in the next two out of the six goals specified in the Strategic Plan, as well as the Telecommunications Act of 1996. This Presents real and serious threats to the ability of internet users across the board, from corporate to educational to community level, to carry on their business against Verizon's sabotage. This despicable tactic is nothing short of an attack on American values. The FCC must take action to remove this impediment to fair and reasonable access to internet services according to the standards of American Democracy.

—Claudia Rullman, Leverett, MA

This is our country. Go away corporate criminals. Everyone should get the internet. Free.

—D Bass, McKinney, TX

Why

—Mariah Cofer, Coraopolis, PA

The internet is about freedom of information. You don't need to capitalize on every single fucking thing. That's the beauty of the internet--you can use it to teach, learn, amaze, entertain, inspire, create, share, bond, and save. It's wonderful and powerful. Hell, if it wasn't for the internet being the way it is (this vast microcosm of everything that makes us human stored in 1s and 0s) , I might not even be here right now. Without the freedom the internet had for me, I might have lost sight of what mattered and ended it all before I met anyone who could have helped. You fuckers already tried taking it away with SOPA, PIPA, and ACTA. If you're really a government founded by the people for the people to represent and protect the people, you would know this isn't how you show it. These bills and laws aren't far from the laws China or North Korea imprison their people with; these laws directly go against what this nation was founded upon--freedom.

RE-CLASSIFY BROADBAND AS COMMON CARRIER SERVICE

—Heidi Leigh Chesney, Alameda, CA

Honestly I'm not sure how you would even be able to regulate and enforce these rules. It seems like a pain in the butt to set up and manage. Its really not worth the time or effort and no one actually wants it besides big bussiness. They already make enough money off us with the money we pay for the internet as is. And for some people where they can only have one internet service provider it eliminates any sort of market competition at all.

—Kara Daniel, Chesapeake, VA

Save Net Neutrality so everyone will have equal access to knowledge!!!

—Javier Gutierrez, Bronx, NY

The idea of losing net neutrality sickens me.

—Allee, Kirkland, WA

Please Keep the Internet free and open. Do not let Internet Carriers decide what I get to see. It will be the same as China if you do not protect Net Neutrality, only the Corporations (and just a few of them) will get to decide what information is allowed to the public

—Robert Posey, Marlborough, MA

I HATE Comcast! Their prices are out of sight and their service is the lowest of any company with whom I do business. If I had ANY CHOICE at all, I would use a different cable/ISP provider. I am 65, disabled, and live on SS disability. Prior to bankruptcy this year, I had "turned off" my cable, telephone, magazine and newspaper subscriptions, among many other services. I kept my internet because it is the only way I communicate, get the news, and do most of my shopping. However, the cost keeps rising; I am paying almost $100 per month for this service, which I think is almost a crime. If the FCC allows Comcast to buy TimesWarner cable, that will DECREASE competition and lead to higher prices. I beg you to take into consideration how difficult it is for individuals on fixed incomes to afford Internet, much less Cable.

Sincerely, A.J. Hardy

—Alice Hardy, Hamilton, WA

Because there's people where "I don't want it to ever come down to me choosing between groceries or purchasing a new tier package via comcast to be able to access tumblr or DeviantArt (let alone not guaranteeing I'll even be seen by my customer base since they may not want to pay out their asses either). It doesn't seem important to most, but I do 90% of my business online entirely." is a real problem from this, and it shouldn't have to be.

Net Neutrality should be a foundation for the flow of information and knowledge in the United States. Beyond that it doesn't allow for the free market to set the price and availability of these services. It allows providers to unfairly effect the manner in which these products and services and associated products and services are obtained by consumers.

Currently the USA has one of the slowest internet speeds of the develop world...taking net neutrality away will increase consumer pricing and will be a big deterrent for future business development....it will be like putting the wolfs to take care of the sheeps
—Ramon A Carabeo, Miami, FL

Net Neutrality is the benchmark of equal internet provisions, and is the only reason so many small businesses can make a living through the internet nowadays. The very IDEA that AT&T or Comcast could deny to link to those websites is awful, and would put hundreds if not tens of THOUSANDS out of the job, and that'd be only counting the people who exclusively use the internet for business, not the people who host online stores and such. Internet Neutrality is close enough to a human right that several European countries treat it as a basic human right. To cork that off without any real reason beyond putting it behind a paywall is terrible, and sometimes inhumane. Do what you can.
—Joshua Marshall, Wichita, KS

I stand by Net Neutrality. Please preserve it.
—Jeff Mattingly, Wichita, KS

The Internet should be free. For every single corporate decision that is being made, the closer we get to an orwellian future. While during the cold war the clock was two minutes to midnight, we should now look at the date - as moguls are dangerously near to flipping it back 30 years.

Reclassify broadband Internet action as a telecommunications service!

—Priscilla, East Stroudsburg, PA

Please, please, please restore Net Neutrality. The Internet is basically information, and it would be unfair to allow any sort of restriction to that access be decided by for-profit companies. I cannot say it is un-American, because our country can be disgustingly discriminatory, especially against the underprivileged, but it goes against, I feel, the ideal of America, as conceived by our forefathers, and as was taught to me as a child in my classroom.

—Karin Chang, Spring, TX

How much did the judge receive to kill freedom this time? Are rich corporations able to create fascism in all instances where people want freedom of expression? It appears the mentality of the Bush administration has cloned and spread like the virus it is. REMEMBER: Stupidity has no limit - neither does greed!! (Can we prevent their ability to reproduce?)

You have tributed a ton for everyone and the internet overall! Can you make sure the legal requirements are done correctly.

—Stefan Velev, ,

Please learn from the past actions and inactions of your agency and other regulating authorities of our government which have resulted in well-known damage to our American rights and freedoms. Act decisively now, before it's too late. Thank you. From a concerned American and disabled veteran who relies heavily on the internet as an important part of my social and business life.

—Richard P. Worden, Fitchburg, MA

In trying to find affordable, truly high speed internet services, as a vital step toward reducing my dependence on cable TV, I've learned just how much a handful of major corporations have already come to control access to the internet. FCC needs to move to increase competition and lessen content control by a few large corporations, if citizens of the USA are to have equitable internet access in a world increasingly dependent on that access for education and free speech.

—Alice Malicki, Bloomingdale, IL

The FCC's new announcement that they plan to do an end run around the recent court ruling in Verizon Wireless v. FCC striking down the Federal Communications Commission's Open Internet Order and just reinstate the rules using the same approach IS UNACCEPTABLE. The new Open Internet rules proposed (as Chairman Wheeler admits to the press would not prohibit ISP discrimination outright) and while keeping Title II on the table for future is not viable. We need reclassification now. Either the FCC must reclassify its definition of broadband to be a common carrier Title II telecommunications service to restore its legal authority or it cannot protect the open internet. You cannot have it both ways. The courts have said so now twice in Comcast v. FCC and now Verizon Wireless v. FCC. Either reclassify and you can protect the Open Internet or you don't. If the agency is serious about protecting the Open Internet and I hope so they need to reclassify now.

I respectfully request that the FCC act to reclassify broadband as a telecommunications service under Title II.

—Terry Hayes, Santa Monica, CA

I am amazed you are not doing the right thing. What gives? Broadband is not an information service it IS telecommunications.

—Jim Allyn, Newtown, CT

Our society is far too reliant on the internet to allow it to be controlled by a handful of private companies. Why is it so difficult to just claim that the internet is a telecommunications tool? That is, in all reality, what it is.

—Courtney Davey, Oxford, OH

It needs to be reclassified now!

—Jason Hering, Lawrence, KS

Imagine if the phone company got to decide who you could call, or when, or how good the connection was not based on the technology of the system but based on who was at the other end. That's what the internet is like without Net Neutrality.

—Kent Green, Beaverton, OR

Broadband internet service is a telecommunications service. Private corporations are trying to kill the internet as a means for people to communicate with one another economically. As the prices demanded of internet users by ISPs continue to climb and as the quality of their services continues to decline, The internet will become merely another in the array of tools of the rich and the dishonest. You are guilty of throwing away the most promising communications development in history if you don't stand up for the human right to communicate on a footing equal to that of the most powerful and wealthy. Quit letting unscrupulous, private money grubbers wreck the free internet.

—Mr. David Ibbotson, Portland, OR

This is important! Restore Net Neutrality!

—Tracy Johnson, Lisle, IL

What a load of crap!!! We pay them to in turn impose their bloody " values" upon us?

—C, Las Cruces, NM

Removing Net Neutrality is akin to demolishing the freedom of the press; without a free internet you restrict the potential of people to gain information to make them more informed and contributing citizens. The government needs to show that it's primary concern is making this nation great by making its people great; not making it easier for giant corporations to make even more money than they already do.

—Alissa Breach, Sanford, NC

The 'remedies' named by Chairman Wheeler don't actually have the power to keep the internet open; only reclassification as telecommunications will achieve that. This is one of the most important and far-reaching decisions you will make, please have courage to do the right thing for internet users and for an open democracy.

—Valerie Schmit, Aurora, IL

The FCC has some explaining to do. How is it that complete control of the telecommunications infrastructure known as the Internet (the same structure that was developed and expanded with our tax dollars - i.e.: DARPA-net and development at public universities) is being handed over to companies that didn't even exist when it was created and only in the past few years have become gate keepers to data flow? The FCC is beholden to the public, not the corporations who fill the pockets of politicians. Will the providers slap a fee on using 911 services going forward? The Internet is communications infrastructure, paid for by taxpayers. If Verizon and others want to offer additional services for money, then by all means innovate. But hands off slowing down service in a pay-for-play/tiered manner. It's a telecommunications service. You are setting a dangerous precedent by not acting appropriately.

—Joel Bennett, West Henrietta, NY

There is no question the Internet, the entire technology of which was developed by the taxpayer, must be neutral in how data is treated. It is the FCC's job to ensure that communications technologies are both free and fair for all. To allow an Internet Service Provider to throttle or block content that does not pay it graft first subverts the purpose of the FCC and free speech and press.

PLEASE just re-classify broadband as a telecommunications service under Title II of the Telecommunications Act rather than pandering to everyone so that everyone is happy by mincing words by saying that the FCC "...keep Title II authority on the table." Of course, the telecommunications companies rejoice at such declarations, but by trying to please everyone, particularly the Telco companies who just MIGHT be lining the pockets of FCC members or the political and/or economic powers behind these FCC members, the FCC is skirting the REAL issues and thereby NOT DOING ITS JOB IN ANY WAY other than to submit press releases--meaningless press releases regarding Net Neutrality but REMARKABLY and FRIGHTENINGLY open to allowing control of the Internet by the few companies who simply wish to usurp this tool of unlimited opportunity simply for greed, namely the astronomical profits that would be made possible if they were to have even partial control of the flow of traffic on the Internet. The Internet is the ONLY outlet for the average person that is still RELATIVELY free. Certainly, broadband service, especially the so-called unlimited broadband service (which is only rarely truly unlimited due the Acceptable Use Policies in the fine print of broadband contracts, which is just a smaller way in which the companies providing broadband limit user access), is hardly cheap and not universally accessible in nearly every home as television is. The government PAID to let people have free access to TV because TV has been viewed by government, including the U.S. Supreme Court in its decisions regarding the television medium, as CRITICAL for the free dissemination of information, particularly so that voters can make informed decisions. Thus, the conclusion is that government wants free speech to reach the public. However, television is hardly free. First, it is owned and operated by just a few companies, most of whom have discarded their responsibilities as the guardians for the public (basically, in practice, as a proxy for the Federal Government) of the airwaves that the PUBLIC OWNS. by engaging in prior restraint, generally considered to be the worst form of censorship, and shaping the public's sense of reality by presenting only the viewpoints that are acceptable to the miniscule number of owners of TV and radio stations. Thus, TV and radio are NOT giving the public access the free speech. Moreover, if the average Jane or John Doe wishes to be on television, he or she cannot simply appear on the air on some major network. This person has to have hundreds of thousands or millions of spare dollars to appear in just a very short commercial, let alone a real show. (Yes, public access TV exists, but do people really watch it very much? Obviously, the answer is no, so it is not a viable option for speaking freely.) No, people do NOT have equal access to TV and radio. However, despite the cost of broadband Internet, which makes the lower middle class and the poor ONCE AGAIN disenfranchised and thus unlawfully treated (an argument in itself but one that is not germane to the issue at hand at this moment), the MAJORITY of people, either by purchasing broadband Internet service or by using public access to broadband Internet. CAN voice opinions, learn from the almost truly free flow of information (at least as close as we are going to get to the free flow of information with the tools and infrastructure currently available), become educated, learn about the issues on which one will vote, actually take political action, and, yes, even make a living. Perhaps it will be those small companies or sole proprietors who desperately rely on the free flow of traffic for e-commerce who "en masse" will pressure the FCC to do its duty to keep the Internet reasonably free and to put enough political and social pressure the companies like Verizon and Comcast, however they accomplish it, to cease and desist in their efforts to make blocking or slowing Internet traffic a forgone conclusion. Perhaps placing what has become a trite but very powerful mechanism of social action on the notion that blocking, slowing, or interfering with the flow of traffic in ANY way is wrong. That label, if accepted by the general public, without regard to whether or not they really believe in their endorsement, is to say that such interference by these filthy rich companies to control everyone for even more profit is "NOT POLITICALLY CORRECT." Indeed, people regularly make fun of "PC," but rarely do people, at least in the presence of people who are not members of their own close circle of significant others, violate the truly important rules of what is considered to be "PC." For example, most people will not publicly use racial epithets, at least in proper company, or, say, in front of their bosses. Clearly, even whispered such utterances in a private setting that later become public have ended political careers because the "PC Movement" is so powerful. Another example is that people EXPECT to have free speech as a First Amendment right. I suspect that simply going viral with the notion that large companies' interference with free speech is viciously politically incorrect over a time would make such a notion just another expectation of the public at large, and the public at large can cause huge political upheaval and unrest by pressuring their elected officials to take action on some issue. If people think BIG TELCO is limiting their right to free speech--and they are shown tangible examples of what they take for granted that will no longer exist when these companies are allowed to limit access to the Internet--the political pressure on politicians will be unstoppable. Ironically, an idea like "PC" that admittedly protects outgroups but also has been used to the point of becoming nearly meaningless might be a major defense of the intellectually elite province of the quality Internet. Even more ironically, it is more likely that the people whose sole or primary income comes from doing business on the Internet, which absolutely relies on unrestricted traffic in the Internet, will be the ones to put pressure on the politicians to pressure the FCC to do its job and to protect Net Neutrality. What is it that is so ironic about the latter? It will be greed, albeit greed to a much lesser degree, that could save the Internet from the greed of these huge but few companies who want absolute control of Internet traffic and thus the entire Internet. Well, however Net Neutrality gets accomplished, I am in favor of it, and rarely do I take positions that endorse the notion that the "ends justify the means." However, Net Neutrality is so infinitely critical to enforce, to restore (since interference already happens regularly), and to maintain, that I will take it almost no matter in how ugly, mangled, or dirty a fashion it is accomplished. NOW, ALL THAT DISCUSSION ASIDE, PLEASE, MEMBERS OF THE FCC, DO WHAT YOU KNOW TO BE ETHICAL AND CRITICAL TO THE INTEGRITY OF A DEMOCRACY AND ITS INHERENT FREE SPEECH: DECLARE BROADBAND A TELECOMMUNICATIONS ENTITY AS OPPOSED TO AN INFORMATION SERVICE (WHICH CLEARLY IT IS IN ITS ENTIRETY NOT), AND MAKE NET NEUTRALITY A FACT THAT BECOMES PART OF THE BEDROCK OF SOCIETY AND IS THUS ASSUMED TO BE A RIGHT OF INDIVIDUALS IN A FREE SOCIETY. PLEASE do not sell out to the companies like Verizon. Yes, that path would be easier, but you have the opportunity to establish a right and a freedom that is almost as important (or perhaps equally important) as our Founding Fathers did when they wrote the Bill of Rights. Net Neutrality has the potential to affect every single one of the ten rights established in the Bill of Rights, at least indirectly, not simply First Amendment rights. Enforcing such neutrality will make you a group of people who will be seen as CRITICAL in HISTORY and as the HEROES who ensured that the vision of those Founding Fathers remained intact. You, and only you, have an incredible opportunity at your feet. PLEASE use your hands to pick up that responsibility and shape it into a form of which our Founding Fathers--and all of us who hold the possibility of true Net Neutrality as a sacred right to be protected at nearly all costs--would be exceptionally proud. Thank you so much for your time and consideration.

Please please please please keep net neutrality going, it's been net neutral for 20 years since its conception! People can't afford to pay premiums for web service, we are already paying for access to the web! We don't need extra fees, we don't need censors, we don't need another hand in our pockets draining our wallets and another voice in our ears controlling what we are told that we can or cannot do. We are already told by mainstream media all of the propaganda that we need, we don't need to read about it / have our isp's censor our websites and information for us on the world wide web as well! This not only affects your country but every country. USA is still seen as a leader on the world stage and if you let net neutrality die it will set a precedent for all other countries to follow. I won't want to live in that world!

I am 67 years old retired science teacher, an Extra Class Amateur Radio operator KC1XG - that volunteered with Disaster Services of the American Red Cross for 11 years. I now volunteer as an audio engineer and program host at a low power independent community radio station... I have filed applications for the station with the FCC... I have been involved in communications for many years and am deeply concerned at what I see happening with what I believe to be a huge amount of pressure placed on the FCC by big money corporate interests. It seems that this country is being bought up and controlled by these large corporations and the hell with the majority of the people. We need the FCC, no matter what the Commissioners' backgrounds, to stand up for the people of this country, not to cave in to the corporations. The FCC is supposed to preserve our rights in all forms of communication... please live up to your responsibility.

I am a Brazilian citizen and politicians in my country are being bought by telecommunication companies so that net neutrality fails here too. If NN is broken in EU, it will be a huge reason to support these companies false complaints here, which started to grow when they saw the decision in favor of Verizon in USA. These companies are already being paid by costumers for their services, that is, internet access. We have a speed (mine is 15 mbps) and usually there is some data cap (like 100 gb for free). So, what we do with these is our choice. These company can't be allowed to decide for me just because they do not like the competiton and/or have their own services. This is discrimination plain and simple. I am not talking only about netflix or you tube, which are alredy being targeted by Verizon in USA, not even a month after the federal court order. 1. Will universities be obliged to pay ISPs so that the public can access their sites with a decent speed to get to their researches, videos, lectures, etc? 2. Will public libraries have to pay so that their digital repositories can be available? 3. Will the ISPs be able to demand money from hospitals, as VOD-like consultations become common? 4. Will website talking bad about these companies be unavailable due to poor internet connection? 5. Will my bank or governments sites be put in "certain packets", which will be optional to the costumer? 6. Will we go back to dial-up? Killing NN will endager major services, but also small ones, which use the net as their mean to express their beliefs, culture or else. It is clear that these companies want to arrange internet sites in packets such as we see today in the paid tv and/or be paid twice by the consumers and sites owners around the world. Please, given the public use of internet, which is similar to the water and electricity use nowadays, I urge you and your colleagues to defend net neutrality. Best regards, Imagine this, you get online to check your email, but your internet service provider decided it wanted you to use, say AOL email instead of gmail, because AOL was paying them to funnel people. You wait, a few minutes, maybe an hour for it to load. Is this dialup? No, Facebook loads just fine. Is this just the website being slow? No, a friend who uses a different internet company says his is working fine. You call the email provider to ask, and they inform you . . . that your internet service provider has throttled your use of your email providers website, because they are making more money by funneling people to AOL. Doesn't that sound terrible? This is why we need Net Neutrality. To prevent companies from telling us what websites we get at dialup speeds, if at all, and what sites we can use freely that we might not want to use. I don't want to have to go back to using AOL email because they're willing to pay a service provider to throttle Google.

—Eileen DeMonte, Tacoma, WA

—Mr. Justin Schmidt, St. Louis, MO

As an Internet developer, I feel this decision needs to be reversed immediately! The current actions of Comcast with regards to Time Warner and Netflix is exactly what many of us have been concerned about and it has me gravely concerned. Their move was swift and decisive and the court ruling was all that was needed to get this nightmare started. This ruling is yet another impediment to US competitiveness and startup entrepreneurs. It also creates an unfair advantage to other content providers. It is critical to keep the delivery platform disconnected form the content being delivered. Please work quickly to correct this disastrous ruling.

—Jacquelyn Frizzelle, Chapel Hill, NC

Not only does keeping Net Neutrality in effect mean everything to my personal life-keeping the internet's quality up and access as free as possible is what lets me connect with my friends and family and live my daily life as easy as possible-but it affects my professional life as well. In college, I study Network Communications Technology and have realized that the only reason our internet of today is run so well is due to competition between the middlemen (the overarching ISPs that connect the regional ISPs connecting customers to the companies asking their site to be hosted and run through to regional ISPs) like Cogent, CenturyLink and Level 3 Communications. Without this competition, regional ISPs like Verizon, Comcast, AT&T, Charter, etc will continue to grow beyond controllable levels and will invoke higher pricing structures or tiered pricing that many people won't be able to afford. Less people will be able to connect to their families and less small businesses will be able to host their sites and apps at reasonable speeds due to ISPs throttling access speeds to companies unable to pay for "highest tier" access. The internet we have all become so accustomed to will be put to seat hat an alarmingly fast rate.

—Mark Arrington, Fredericktown, OH

The internet is a public utility and needs regulation. Privatizing it is like selling your favorite city park to the Koch brothers and of course they would charge an hourly rate for admission to half of the park, while drilling or fracking in the other half! wth

—Nita Erwin, Phoenix, AZ

The only people who want to see Net Neutrality dead are people who directly profit from its demise Striking it down would harm consumers egregiously

—Petros Kostaras, Danielson, CT

You people are gutless puppets. Live free or NOT.

—David Warsow, Fenton, MI

Stop allowing companies to run roughshod over our infrastructure. Net Neutrality is critical to our country.

—Anthony J Sanguino, Flanders, NJ

Please restore Net Neutrality. This will KILL startups, creativity, and progress.

—Nick Ferguson, Colorado Springs, CO

Do not allow the censorship of internet information!

—Carol Walters, Monroe, WA

We already pay for the bandwidth we use. They ISPs show have no say in how I use it or what content gets priority.

—Marcus G David, Chicago, IL

—MaryCatherine Siatta, Crystal Lake, IL with newspapers going outta business - and corporate news censoring the news - without net neutrality - many people will not be able to have an alternative view point

—James K Hagen, Raton, NM

Protect the consumer not the monopolies.

—Esain Banola, Scottsdale, AZ

It is absolutely critical that large private companies that are unaccountable to the public not hold the infrastructure in their hands that allows the free flow of information on the Internet. Not only does net neutrality ensure that companies such as Comcast or Verizon cannot arbitrarily degrade service to their Internet customers to command bargaining power over a competitor or negotiator or customer - but it also ensures that anyone can cheaply position themselves on the Internet and potentially reach a large audience and thus encourage the free interchange of ideas that is vital for a democratic society.

—Mr. John Weathers, Atlanta, GA

The internet must be viewed as the best tool we have to assure the future of our country. Children around the world are learning more than I could have imagined at their ages. They, like American children, take to this source of knowledge naturally. If the internet goes the route of cable (even C-SPAN is not available to those without cable) or the press and radio (control now in very few hands) we are certain to fall behind even further. This is the time to protect access to this wonderful resource and really support our democracy and our future.

—Ms. Jami Hotsinpillar, Bernalillo, NM

Make it free.

—Keith Kappler, Woodstock, IL

Those companies benefited from common carrier presumptions for a long time. They DO owe us.

—Jane Fleming, Austin, TX

Corrupt money interests can restrict the freedom of unbiased information which is already happening with the broadcast airwaves. We must not go down that blackhole with internet access. Democracy is on the ropes already--don't make it lose the fight.

—Jerry Chan, Bothell, WA

Keep the internet open and free as it is now.

—Carolyn Wilkes, Lynn Haven, FL

Net Neutrality - democracy depends on it, we demand it, and yes, Verizon and Comcast are "telecomms" . The Court decision seems bought off, fake. It's the same problem as saying the ocean is "wet" (information service), while it is also "a body of water" (telecomm). Don't let private enterprise control the very key of communication we all share. Tom Wheeler should excuse himself from the process considering his background. Bias and prejudice abound due to his fealty to very large corporations. Thank you.

—Mike Feeney, Los Angeles, CA

If we allow this to hold, in a few years, we will pay for Internet access exactly like you pay for CABLE - by the web site - (channel). The cables, radio frequencies, wires.... all pass through PUBLIC access by the PUBLIC's permission. The INTERNET IS NOT PRIVATE PROPERTY.

—Lily, Woodinville, WA

This is ridiculous. LEAVE US ALONE!

—, Corning, NY

Keep the Internet neutral and level. Save the Internet and you'll save your country. It's really that simple. Unless you have some other country staked out for you to flee to. Well, do you?

—David Steele, Signal Hill, CA

Please, keep the Internet free and open!

—Ashley Ellison, Medora, ND

Corporate hegemony is encroaching on every aspect of American's lives. Freedom of information is one of the few places where the playing field can be kept level. And since the airwaves belong to the PEOPLE, NOT Corporations, we need the FCC to stand up for us.

—Geraldine Adams, Gig Harbor, WA

Why?

—Victoria Pham, Mount Pleasant, SC

Keep Net Neutral.

—Hannah, ,

Preserve an open Internet. Reclassify the internet as a telecommunications service now!

—Linda Stosalovich, Tacoma, WA

An internet without net neutrality is another nail in coffin of democracy.

—Chris Croke, Baltimore, MD

Your crusade against ISPs that block or discriminate against websites, applications, services offers a voice for us (who are largely unheard) - small business owners, budding innovators, families (consumers). Thank you for keeping our interests in mind (against behemoth rich-corporations). Thank you for representing us!

—Kelly Chiang, Somerville, MA

This creation of an internet style plantation with a few masters must end now. People need open flowing information that is not regulated or policed.

—T Rogers, Germantown, MD

It falls to the FCC to protect free speech, 1st amendment and the bandwidth commons.

—Patrick Gill, Fort Collins, CO

The Internet was created with US taxpayer money and the US taxpayer should reap the benefits. We are forced to go through ISPs since our government, unlike those in Europe and Asia, does not provide Internet access to its citizens. Verizon was handed the Internet for free, made with our money. Why can it now prevent us free access?

—Daryl Isbell, Tijeras, NM

The FCC and Comcast are so incestuously intertwined there's no chance it will do any good to complain, but I just want to have it on the record that I am not happy seeing our net neutrality, our Commons, our entire US of A Democracy go to hell in a handbasket.

—Joyce pence, Clark Fork, ID

The loss of internet neutrality is one more strike against the American people in favor of wealthy corporate interests.

—Curt Lyons, Fort Collins, CO

You can do it! Fight the power!

—Ryan Hawkins, Union, KY

The internet is a necessity in our global society and needs to be protected from rampant capitalism like any other utility.

—Mr. Dan Huynh, Pinellas Park, FL

To whom it may concern. The internet is a utility and should be treated as such, there is zero meaningful competition to provide that utility to Americans, all internet providers should be treated equally, and the FCC is doing a miserably ineffective job.

—Dylan Parker, San Francisco, CA

This is a clear and direct attack against all internet users in the United States. In order to progress as a a nation and set an international example for other countries to follow and allow them to further develop, we must institute "net neutrality" and show large ISP's that they aren't allowed to continue with their practices.

—Samuel Lewin, Goffstown, NH

Tom Wheeler, have you read this? <http://www.theverge.com/2014/2/25/5431382/the-internet-is-fucked> What are you doing about this.
—Badri Shirgur, Ellicott City, MD

AW HECK NO NONONO YOU DID NOT JUST DO THAT —Jennifer Briggs, Three Rivers, MI

The internet is like a utility and needs competition. This merger won't do this. More competition and EQUAL treatment for all providers is absolutely necessary. The FCC must provide strong regulation in the PUBLIC interest.
—Tony Henderson, Ithaca, NY

The Internet is a commonground where anyone with a great idea and the initiative to launch it can achieve their own version of the American Dream without having to worry about having all the money and resources of a brick-and-mortar business. By removing Net Neutrality, the cable providers who can bottleneck traffic and data flow will kill new startups and cost those who want to get ahead a fortune. This is NOT the way to encourage growth in the Digital Age.
—Francisco Resende, Cranston, RI

I will support executive action (orders) to reclassify ISP's as the common carriers that they are. The FCC must reestablish their authority over greedy corporations, or the American people will revolt.
—David Bibl, ,

Our nation wisely broke up massive monopolies several decades ago - STOP ALLOWING THE CORPORATE TAKE OVER OF OUR NATION!!!
—Georgia Griffin, Corpus Christi, TX

Net Neutrality is essential to the exchange of information, and a vital part to the economy of America.
—Bradley Ray Crain, fairfield, OH

Stop hurting average citizens and making rich companies richer
—James D'Amico, Jupiter, FL

An open Internet is essential to support intellectual growth and learning and creativity. The US cannot stay intellectually competitive in the World today without open and equal access to content on the World Wide Web.
—Rebecca Scudder, Potsdam, NY

Please take action!
—Chris DeMeo, Phoenixville, PA

The effects of the death of net neutrality are already clearly visible, please restore net neutrality and help stop the United States being a third rate internet service provider.
—Travis, Veradale, WA

net neutrality is fundamental to democracy in the 21st century
—Doug, Medford, MA

I own a small Information Technology business. If I am to grow my business, I need the advantages of a truly open Internet, not one where only Netflix and Google can afford to pay the Comcast troll to travel over the ISP bridge. You know as well as I, that Internet service provided by ISPs is a Telecommunications Service, as defined by the Act. The charade of calling Internet Connection an "Information Service" harms innovation by small businesses--the ones that generate jobs. Big businesses seeking payoffs from some, while merging with others does stifle real economic growth. Your failure to adequately protect an fair and open Internet doesn't not promote innovation, it promotes stagnation.

—Jonathan Dagle, Alexandria, VA

Stop this nonsense, we know you hate us all ready and are determined to screw over the regular people. Just leave our damned internet alone all ready.

—Michael Jordan, Bel Air, MD

This could cause serious harm to the economy. Capitalism runs on business, and Business runs on the consumers buying the producers products. Many transactions occur online hourly. If the consumer has to PAY to go to a website to PAY further they most likely will not do it, and eventually the economy involving the internet will slowly collapse.

—Curtis Phillips, Downey, CA

Restore net neutrality now!

—Martha Hunt, Apache Junction, AZ

No more!

—Jerreau, ,

The FCC needs to start treating broadband like a communications service, and to restore its Net Neutrality rules. This has got to stop. If it doesn't, people will stop paying for cable and internet, no one will get paid. I refuse to pay extra for faster internet and be told where I can go or deal with even slower internet blocking my websites, applications. I am not going to waste my time with slow internet, blocking my path, and only being able to go certain sites.

—Stacy, Rancho Cucamonga, CA

The FCC is an independent agency that is tasked with serving the public interest. But this independent agency has become captive to the industry that is supposed to be regulating. Now is the time to return the power back to the consumer by providing options and stop monopolistic activities of the ISPs and cable providers that do not pass along supposed savings brought about by the economies of scale that are being proposed as benefits to the consumer. The internet is a utility. It is time to treat it as such.

—Leonard Wong, Northridge, CA

Stopping Net Neutrality is only a benefit of big business and by no way is it good for the people. Bring it back stronger than ever!

—Eric Snyder, Green Bay, WI do what is right for the people, do your job

—Travis Doyle, Florence, NJ

Large corporations shouldn't be the one's in charge of the Internet. It is the people that should decide the fate of the Internet. The FCC should restore their former glory and restrict these corporations from controlling the web.

—Jay Tan, Lincoln, NE

This is so important, and you could make a positive mark on history by putting your foot down. We are ALREADY starting to see the shift with Netflix buying the rights not to be slowed down by Comcast...

—Nicholas Joyce, Tucson, AZ

The FCC must work for the people, not strictly for the benefit of corporations.

—James Parks, Port Crane, NY

Protect consumers, please!

—Dan Brown, West Jordan, UT

The net neutrality fight was going so well until this decision. I was very happy when the FCC adopted strong Net Neutrality rules in 2010 and I hope that the agency can make a neutral, fair, competitive internet a reality.

—Kevin Brown, Satellite Beach, FL

TIME TO WAKE UP!

—Robert A Kaplan, Orinda, CA

At this point in time, access to the internet is a necessity for success in the job market. The US has fallen far behind other developed countries in terms of internet speed, infrastructure, and availability. This needs to change. We as a nation have seen the result of granting regional monopoly power to a few corporate internet service providers and it is not a desirable one. They have performed just as predicted by basic entry level economics and have captured the most profit for the lowest costs. They have not innovated, because they have not had to compete. Instead they have used price discrimination (a tool Verizon's CEO has recently said is the just course of action) to extract the highest profits in the world, while providing the lowest quality service possible. I am asking you to please take action. If we value a free market then stop these regional monopolies from being anti-competitive. Restore net neutrality. Do not let a few greedy people stop the entire country from advancing. Do not let them irrevocably harm the opportunities of millions of people. Net neutrality was recently destroyed. Please restore it before any more damage can be done.

—James Billard, Henrico, VA

The Internet is the mother of all common carriers. Allowing the cable companies to throttle or block whichever users they choose will hold back Internet innovation by creating a false lower demand on the infrastructure and stifle programing creativity, technological advancements and free speech. This rationing of or denial of bandwidth will allow the cable companies to pick winners and losers in almost every industry known to mankind. Most companies cannot exist without some reliable internet presence. Cable companies cannot have it both ways. If they are in the programing business, they should not be in the business of blocking their competitors or those with whom they may disagree with politically. We rely on the Internet to deliver not only telephone service but data that covers almost every single aspect of our lives. If phone companies are common carriers (and they are) Internet providers are super carriers and should be required to treat all users equally.

—Gerald Kenney, Port Orange, FL

I implore you to take action. FCC: please re-classify the Internet so that you can enforce Net Neutrality once more. Thank you for hearing our voices, please take them into consideration now.

—Kathryn Tipton, Plattsburgh, NY

Comcast is a monopoly and has been robbing us for years by charging more for internet and cable TV than other countries.

—E L. Elfstrom, Mount Vernon, WA

Net neutrality is essential to our democracy. When corporations decide what can get priority over the internet's network free speech will no longer be free. We need to protect this public resource from corporate greed and interference.

—Kevin Wildermuth, Seattle, WA

Net neutrality is one of the most important issues we have before us. If the net becomes totally commercial it will destroy one of the last places for free speech and freedom of information in this country.

—Robert Crawford, Longmont, CO

The internet is vital for communication and commerce these days, moreso than the telephone industry was at its height. We need strict protections to guarantee the freedom from abuses of ISP's, which they have demonstrated on multiple occasions.

—Jonathan Hibberd, Spokane, WA

Bring back Net Neutrality, All people have an equal right to be heard and treated fairly on the internet.

—Travis Clark, Roy, UT

PITIFUL!!!

—Erick V Underhill, Louisville, KY

Broadband is a common carrier service and it is time to regulate it as such. Net Neutrality is a necessity if we are to have a free press and freedom of speech in the USA. It is time to regulate broadband carriers as the common carriers that they are.

—William H Ayre, Seattle, WA

Communication is what will ultimately bring this world together. If you let them control our communication and profit from that control it will cause nothing but resentment and anger. Please do the right thing.

—Robert Schicke, Denville, NJ

I pay for a flat bandwidth speed not a variable speed. If I pay for X speed it should apply to what ever site I want to look at.

—Taylor Imes, Victoria, TX

We're already seeing how Net Neutrality being struck down is adversely affecting internet users (which at this point, is virtually everyone) Something needs to be done, now, Thank you.

—Emery Brown, Tujunga, CA

net neutrality, restore it.

—Ann Buxbaum, buffalo grove, IL

The current trend toward monopoly is alarming, and must be addressed. Internet access has become a basic service in our lives, similar to the rise of electricity and telephones in earlier eras. It is time to classify and regulate internet access in the same manner as other utilities.

—Sue M, Warren, ME

without net neutrality the internet is dead, you are killing what is the information super highway, communication, social business alike will be affected, i run a small business and it is mainly through online and social sites that i advertise and sell, you are threatening my chances of surviving and making money to support my family with these rules. Stop think about what you are doing, don't be money hungry we already pay so much for internet, its a basic need now in this time, do not try to capitalize on every tiny snippet of what the internet is because you want to be greedy, not everyone int he world has the money or resources to pay for every little thing if you do this and the isp start charging for access to whatever they decide. Please i beg you there are more things to put your time to keep the net neutral don't kill it and the freedoms we have as people on it.

—Venessa Villarreal, North Tonawanda, NY

Please start treating broadband like a communications service again and restore the neutrality to the internet! I really do not want my internet to function like my cable where the cable provider determines what TV networks I can access. I want to determine what I want to see on the internet and not have to pay additional fees to access all parts of the internet!

—Barbara Shaw, Issaquah, WA

This is very important to me as an Internet Radio Station Disc Jockey! Not only that but, as an Internet user I think there is way too much the Government is doing corruptly to destroy all that is good in this world. Somehow, some way the every day average Human Being has to have some kind of value in the world. The people of Power are too corrupted and the people without power have been too ignorant or too scared to do something about it! I do not know what else to say.

—Randy D. Roley, Pricedale, PA

Net Neutrality benefits everyone but the internet providers. Don't let them take away such a vital protection to make more money. The loss of Net Neutrality hurts individuals and small businesses owners and small startups.

—Meera Sathyadas, Parkville, MD

Furthermore, my supplemental income depends on my online presence. This could ruin me, and I'm already barely making ends meet. I know hundreds of people in the same situation.

—Mitchell Hall, Beaverton, OR

This isn't right! This is essentially giving big companies monopoly over fast and efficient sites. This is not how the internet should work!

Keep the internet free.

—Mr. Nathan Winslow, San Diego, CA

If the internet isn't net neutrality, then what is the internet? If the internet hasn't marked the 21st century, with it's radical changes in the ways we communicate and change the world, then we haven't taken a single step forward in centuries- this is what we've fought for, and we will fight for again, as it is a simple right for all, a pool to which we are all drawn in an increasingly arid, censored and limited world- it's like a Declaration of INDEPENDENCE was put up yesterday, only to be taken down today by a new commonwealth, a dominion with a finger on the trigger that will execute the single idea, intangible right that we have been born with as free and evolving human beings. The internet stays as it is.

—Natalia Torres, Elmhurst, NY

I shouldn't have to explain why net neutrality needs to be restored. just make it so.

—Mr. Jonathan Mandelbaum, Brighton, MA

The death of Net Neutrality will shackle American development and economic progress for a century to come if we let it. Please, reconsider this decision.

—Sarah Meador, Luling, TX

It is wrong to be denied information critical to business and the free market. WE are witnessing the power of money to pay for political outcomes that favor a small percent of the American population. This cannot withstand the will of the masses and it should not withstand the will of our own government as we are all inhabitants of the United States of America.

—Reda Carr, shawnee, KS

My Internet provider already provides my Internet service at way lower speeds than I'm supposed to be getting and was promised a permanent price as part of Verizon selling us off, but the price continually increases and the speed keeps going to almost nothing, limiting access to various sites, & more while increasing rates. The internet should be available to all like the interstate highway system. 3rd world developing countries have faster better service for way lower consumer costs than we do in the US.

As a student, limited internet could be debilitating to my learning experience. Without full access to the wealth of knowledge and potential the internet provides, I would not be able to continue learning at a heightened pace. Furthermore, at the age of 16, I am becoming increasingly frustrated with the freedoms being stripped away. If freedom is what defines America and draws immigrants to this country, why should we began to condone the removal of these precious rights? I say allow people to decide what content they would like to view without the input of companies.

This is a travesty in a country that is supposed to be a bastion and example of freedom for the rest of the world, in all we are and do. Net Neutrality must be reinstated or the social and financial impact will be irreversible. Innovation will yet again be stifled for profit and big business. —Lauretta Hackett, Scottsdale, AZ

Net neutrality will ruin the economy of the United States. Small businesses who are trying to create an effective startup business will not be able to compete against their larger competitors. This will be just like when we allowed big corporations to take all of the factory jobs out of the United States. We now have jobs being lost left and right. This will have the same effect.

—Ben Myslenski, Sand Lake, MI

It sickens me how there is so much wealth inequality in this world. For these companies to be taking an advantage of a place where citizens can achieve their 'American Dream' is not morally right. The selfishness of a certain few will ruin the lives of thousands. America did not come this far and make a name for itself just to be crumpled down in a few quick strokes of those who don't care about the middle class.

—Jingles Verma, Bloomfield Hills, MI

The internet needs to be free, open, and equal for all users. Controlling it is something we can never let happen.

—Tyler Grizzle, Virginia Beach, VA

Net Neutrality is a crucial factor in our modern lives. —Phillips Dowell, Tacoma, WA

With the ever narrowing distanced between our national government and the officers of national media outlets citizens, (viz-a-viz marriage or familial relationships), along with the narrow federal definition of a journalist, citizens are left with word of mouth and the internet to gain access to information. If net neutrality is eliminated, then the internet as a media source, rather than an information source, our nation will no longer have a free press as described in the U.S. Constitution. The internet will evolve into nothing more than a government censored and approved series of political soundbytes, with the tone set in accordance with the dominate party in power. Restore net neutrality and redefine ISP's as common carriers.

—Sam Biers, ,

I support an open, neutral internet unequivocally, It is vital for a free press, but when Net Neutrality is adopted as a permanent national and global policy, it will no longer matter. Why? Because the world will be conflict-free.

—Peter Hansen, SUNNYVALE, CA

Political and capitalist agendas should NEVER come before the people who define and grant the government's power.

—Kevin, San Bruno, CA

In theory, my website should be as available as any other website. It is information regardless of content and should not be censored by money. Money is NOT the same as speech. By allowing ISPs to pick and choose what gets made available we would be limiting the rights of individual citizens for the sake of profit. That is immoral. More than any content that may be objectionable, more than any opinion that may not be line with current mainstream thinking. The reality of losing Net Neutrality takes the megaphone out of the hands of ordinary citizens and puts it in the hands of the few. It will help to create a one way media stream like television: a place where diversity of thought is not celebrated and consumerism and conformity is.

—Keith Gaustad, Milwaukee, WI

Net Neutrality is extremely important to me, it is the principal that makes the internet what is it. Keep the internet a tool for freedom not a tool for control, please

—James Atin-Godden, ,

Hey Tom, Do us a solid and fix this boondoggle.

—James Kershaw, Lompoc, CA

Restore and safeguard net neutrality! It is the birthright of the internet.

—Heinz Scheuehstuhl, Novato, CA

Our freedom is being violated and it's not for sale!!

—Eric ratliff, Madisonville, KY

Stop the reverse Robin Hood, already. Corporations are destroying the middle class. So much for democracy.

—Sandra White, Fayetteville, GA

Our cable company's are crooks already, don't let them have more power over us.

—Janice Duran, North Bend, WA

The economic hardship this court decision could cause in particular for the education of our youth, who are singularly and increasingly reliant on free internet to advance their education, a national goal for 21st century economic global competitiveness advocated by the current administration is more than an overwhelming reason to maintain NET NEUTRALITY!!

—Terry Taylor, New York, NY

The internet is the greatest cultural utility in the history of humanity. Don't destroy it just so a few can make more profits. Please stand up for the citizenry and the innovation that makes America great.

—Thomas Franken, Spokane, WA

THIS IS IMPORTANT

—Fred Athorp, Ketchikan, AK

I'm a student, I rely on net neutrality for my education purposes.

—Tamera Knight, Buffalo, NY

If they think we're just going to keep sitting still while they act so openly and blatantly traitorous to the public's best interests, they are delusional. They must be drinking their own Kool-Aid. You know, that stuff they keep pushing at us, and imagine we're actually taking. Everyone's had just about enough at this point. With all this fuel and oxygen already mixed, all we need is one good spark, and we're all going to be in it up to our ears.

—Robert-Gregory: Gregory Lombard, Gilroy, CA

America is built on innovation and ideas, and the internet is a needed tool to compete with the rest of the world. To throttle it back not only stifles innovation, but it is against everything this country stands for.

—Sarah Steever, Gold Bar, WA

Not fair that we the american people built the internet and now a corporation will control it. Shame on us if we let this happen.

—Remal Salim, Newark, NJ

I would for the FCC start treating broadband like a communications service, and to restore its Net Neutrality rules.

—Jeffrey Usher, Brooklyn, NY

Don't let the Ecp-Nazis control the Internet!

—Ross Whitney, Fountain Valley, CA

Verizon's rep claimed this helps "net neutrality" by making those who use more broadband pay more. That is going to lead to a have and have-not/ tier system. There is not a shortage on bandwidth. Verizon has a competing streaming service and wants to make it difficult for competition. Internet access should be treated as a UTILITY like telephone service, electricity. Period.

—Miranda Scott, Cranston, RI

Restore Net Neutrality
—Mayo Martinez, Sacramento, CA

The internet should be freely available without restrictions!
—David Cordero, Fairview, NJ

Stop the abuse of power.
—William Moreno, Little Ferry, NJ

This is our last true form of freedom in our country.

Leave shit the way it was in 2000!
—Lee Nieto, Weehawken, NJ

Keep internet open and free.
—Jim, Kent, WA

The internet is America's last place the corporations don't silence us.
—Thomas McKenna, Fountain Hills, AZ

keep all three of a big corporation
—Juan Pritchett, Ozark, AL

Unfortunately if this is not corrected, many small businesses will have to go out of business due to inability to compete in the world wide web. Net Neutrality is not only a fundamental concern for people in general, but for businesses that rely on their ability to give each other a fair deal in bringing them to the world, providing a path for the better mousetrap and the ability to grow without hindrance of special interest.
—Randall Munsters, Valrico, FL

Net neutrality = Strong working democracy. It is critical people have the possibility to be heard!
—Theodore J Johnson, Seattle, WA

we need the interwebs children have to learn about these things some day
—Kaylie Carpenter, Little River, SC

This needs to be stopped. It's very ridiculous.
—Cassidy Henson, Chester, AR

The internet can be a service in favor of democracy, sharing information, an inspiration for creativity and innovation. Or it can simply serve the greed of the super-wealthy. Please do all you can to restore the Net Neutrality rules. Thank you!
—Zann Jacobbrown, Indianola, WA

The internet is the new phone, change the internet's definition to a common carrier and regulate it so we can have freedom of speech.
—Sherry Dufka, Glen Ellen, CA

Internet is for all and the content is not to be controlled as we are free to choose what we read.
—Arthur Moritz, Corvallis, OR

To remove net neutrality is to allow the major isp's to play favorite. It will harm small businesses as well as start ups and essentially destroy American entrepreneurship. It is allowing the isp's to double dip and just do whatever to raise their margins while harming the start ups that keep America ahead of the rest of the world in terms of technological innovation. It is also going to harm the consumers to a great extent where they will be forced to either pay ridiculous costs or to settle for the second rate services provided by isp's. In essence the removal of Net Neutrality means that it will only benefit the isp's while harming the consumers, the competitors for the services isp's offer, the small businesses and the start ups.

—Z, Bergenfield, NJ

Please take this seriously. Thanks You.

—Troy Mikulka, Corona del Mar, CA

I vote to reinstate net neutrality.

—Cesar Otero, ,

The internet is the fundamental means of communication of this day and age, and it is the FCC's responsibility to maintain it as a platform that serves the people. We cannot allow it to be carved up by a few companies that were lucky enough to find a foothold in an architecture created by no one single individual.

—Ricardo Perez-Gonzalez, Astoria, NY

Please prevent this merger. It violates the spirit and the letter of our country's historic protections against monopolies.

—Anne Hopkins, Durham, NC

Let's stop biased sexism. Women need equality.

—Jasmin Moreno, Arcata, CA

Stand up for freedom of the airways and free speech

—Christopher Collord, Sacramento, CA

I rely completely on the internet to make my living and am barely scraping by each year. The loss of a free internet would mean the loss of my livelihood and home.

—Miss Aubrey Motoyama, California City, CA

Hey Big business keep your hands outta my pockets and your hands off my internet !!!

—Patrick Marrone, Babylon, NY

Also this Comcast / Time Warner buy-out must NOT go through! Please, it would be a disaster!

—Raymond O'Toole, East Elmhurst, NY

I would rather have no internet then have a non neutral service.

—Kristin Perantoni, Bowie, MD

Don't ruin the American economy by allowing corporations to shut out small businesses.

—Effie Motoyama, California City, CA

ISPs giving us what we pay for. is that so much to ask?

—Sam Alpert, Cranford, NJ

I already pay for internet services. Why should I then also have to pay for specific and regulated websites?

—Savannah Clapp, Fallon, NV

Why is the FCC allowing media companies to merge? When is too big? Break them up! These companies have too much power to charge more for internet use, exclude program providers who don't pay their toll charges, to charge different prices for internet use etc. I want competition and an open internet. Enforce net neutrality. Did Aaron Swartz die in vain? Remember what the public said about SOPA.

—Edward Imbier, Belmont, MA

Start treating broadband like a communications service, and to restore its Net Neutrality rules.

—David Blaxton, Blountsville, AL

The internet is a free place for everyone to use. Not to be censored, not to be discriminated against. We can be free here when we aren't in real life thanks to the laws that exist in our government. We find salvation here that we can't find in others or in other places. Let us keep this, let us keep the internet neutral.

—Lauren Lyles, Lexington, SC

Help keep the internet open!

—Lynn Lloyd, Lakebay, WA

Stop the control of fairness and freedom, i

—George Mc Grath, Las Vegas, NV

Please save our internet! Already, companies like Comcast and AT&T no doubt have plans to throttle various internet services in order to maintain their stranglehold on old, outdated technology. Please fight for us and for Net Neutrality!

—Mr. Robby Zar, Chicago, IL

Net Neutrality is as American as apple pie.

—, Redding, CT

Enough is enough. Tired of being stomped on. Leave well enough alone!!!!

—Cecelia DeGasero Sawyer, Boca Raton, FL

I am against irresponsible restrictions of freedom anywhere and I am signing in.

—Ralph Anthony Espos, ,

The consumer is the one who needs protection from being taken advantage of by organizations that can control access to information.

Allowing organizations to limit information as they see fit is exactly the opposite of what is needed for the internet to be a freely accessible resource.

—Kaushik Rajan, Grand Rapids, MI

FREEDOM TO US ALL ! FUCK THE CONTROL SYSTEM AND MOST OF ALL FUCK THE ELITE !

—Ivan Christensen, ,

Net Neutrality keeps us honest and perpetuates freedom of press.

—Mariposa Los Angeles, Sausalito, CA

Carriers need to be labeled as such. I don't need my information limited from my internet provider.

—Tyler West, Indian Trail, NC

This would be a step back to banning books from the country.

—Kenzie Moore, New Lebanon, OH

The idea that companies that are looking to make more money are now in a great deal of control (or potential to be so) over the Internet is something that scares me. Especially when I read the different scenarios that have now opened up, such as ISP's now being able to charge companies such as netflix or Google more because they attract higher traffic. I believe this squelches a lot of innovation in terms of the next big text start up. And I find it hard to imagine that these companies will not use this control to also limit or offer "packages" on what we can obtain via the Internet. So unless I have completely misread the situation, I believe that taking away net neutrality is a misguided idea that major ISP's are pushing forward, of which the general public will face serious drawbacks from. Thank you for your consideration

—Erik Silvis, Madison, WI

Please, just do the right thing. Give us all equal access to the internet.

—Kathy Gray, Prague, OK

Same speed limit for all. No discrimination.

—Joseph A. Mungai, Elgin, IL

Comcast is EVIL. I had phone, internet and cable w/them. My bill kept going up w/out additional services and could never get a straight answer from customer support. They bill before use of service. They thumb their nose at the law and customers. They should never be trusted with so much power.

—Rachel Wuenschel, Gloucester, MA

Despite all the silliness, the "open" Internet is also educating & nurturing the world into a better place! Please do whatever you have to do to keep it as is! Thank you in advance!!! :-)

—Emmaline Bowers, Clearwater, FL

Please don't let our society turn into the fantasies that were written about in Fahrenheit 451.

—Joseph Hencoski, Saint Petersburg, FL

This affects every American everywhere. Do the right thing and give us back a free internet.

—Nupur Maheshwari, Fairfield, IA

To Tom Wheeler, Chairman of the Federal Communications Commission. Dear Sir This is the same situation we all faced with At&T in the 80s Its time to say no to corporatism and Yes to Net Neutrality, These Corporations that are controlling' our communications, and the Internet, are going to far, We the People have the right to fair pricing' and freedom of speech at a fair cost, for all people' from all walks of life, New Regulations must be put in place to protect people not the wealthy corporations.

—George Arthur Veghte, Manchester Township, NJ

—Ray, Aurora, OH

THE INTERNET DOES NOT BELONG TO THE GOVERNMENT!

—Stephen Davis, Houston, TX

Net neutrality is a wonderful thing.

—Connor Lowe, Phoenix, AZ

We need standards for Net Neutrality. I pay for a communication service from Verizon and now they're limiting what I do with my service. For instance the drop packets for Netflix viewing. Why as a consumer do i have to suffer because Verizon wants to increase their yearly profits?

—Daneiel Beard, Lewisville, TX

You don't want to take away a free internet, oh well anonymous will step in and fuck the greedy companies over

—German Candia, Cordova, TN

Discrimination is wrong.

—Alex Chresnov, Palmer, AK

I needed access to a CPR video during an emergency and was throttled by Verizon. A person subsequently died because of it. The FCC is responsible for that dead women and her 3 children who will never see her again.

—James Morrison, Prospect, CT

The internet is a vital form of communication-they need to see this Please work as hard as possible at conserving net neutrality. I'm a diligent and hardworking medical student, and I promise when election season comes around this year and in 2016, I will be checking voting records and progress related to this issue!!

—Harry Reed, New York, NY

Save internet neutrality. It wasn't designed to be a money-gaining tool for corporate giants.

—Hayden Crowley, Ringgold, GA

Please take the pleas of concerned citizens seriously!

—David Shuford, Townsend, MA

Save the internet

—Sherrie McNearney, Yonkers, NY

Please take back your authority on broadband. Don't let the broadband providers take more money from us than they already are, through indirect costs. Small businesses shouldn't have to suffer either. And of course the biggest thing is privacy. It's bad enough with companies selling our personal information as it is. Don't make it worse; PLEASE!!! Take back your authority. Thanks! Amy Ingrassia

—Amy Ingrassia, Budd Lake, NJ

Please restore open internet as it should be. I do not need a babysitter or any roadblocks hindering my use of the internet or communicating on the internet. Thank you.

—Andrea Holmes, Little Rock, AR

The internet must stay open for all. It is very important to me that the monopolist cable companies do not control what the internet is. This will hurt all of us if it is allowed to happen.

—Scott Fisher, Hudson, OH

This is so wrong and please don't let them have too much power than customers. Thank you.

—Alan Bridgeford, Saint Louis, MO

internet is important now its not just for media or information its used for people and children who is not able to go to schools or colleges or any educational institutes. their only hope is doing the courses and studies available to them through online education. you take them away then your stepping on their rights to gain knowledge. If you CLAIM YOUR SELVES TO BE LAWFUL AND FAIR do not do this

We MUST stop this problem!

—Gage Burrow, Breaux Bridge, LA

Blocking the internet will not improve our economy bur worsen it.

—Maria Cooper, Peachtree City, GA

Millions of people use the internet in the United States for everything from job searching to banking. It should be more accessible, affordable and reliable for everyone.

—Adam, Rock Island, IL

I urge you to reclassify broadband Internet access as a telecommunications service.

—Roger Lees, Toms River, NJ

Freedom of speech, freedom of information. That's what this is about.

—Kyra D, Roselle, IL

Please do your duty to protect the rabble, we, the people. We have no one else to help us. We are officially a corporatocracy.

—Patsy Lowe, Simi Valley, CA

I don't support giving companies this kind of power over the consumer. We already falling behind the rest of the world in Internet advancement - causing undue amounts of competition or control that will bog down services and potential abridge freedom of speech doesn't seem wise.

—Veronica, Pittsburgh, PA

The airwaves, including broadband are public. Don't let the telecommunications companies dictate the content I can read. Free the airwaves now!

HELP We the People!!!!!!

—Billy Daniels, c.b., IA

Democracy needs free access to information crucial to its citizenry's well-being and voice, irregardless of income level. If this deal goes through, there must be a fund set up large enough to pay for uncontrolled internet access for lower income households. This information must be easily available and the process transparent.

—Agnes C. Uhls, Rolla, MO

Thank you for using the power of the FCC to preserve the neutrality of the internet; the FCC is the only one who can do it for all of us.

—Melody Starr, Redlands, CA

Please do not allow vested interests to usurp the internet. Net Neutrality falls squarely within the framework of free flowing idea, something upon which the very tenets of Democracy rest. Access to an open internet should not be subjected to the vagaries of an imperfect legalese. It would be imprudent and unjust to allow content to be censored, the hallmark of intellect is an unflinching exchange of thoughts and concepts. In fact, the progress of a culture can be directly measured by the quality of the dreams to which its people aspire, the very weft and warp of both the art and science which have informed the society we know and love. None of this would have been possible without an unbiased examination of reality. How can we ever hope to effect needed change without access to vital information? Regardless of ideology, corporate interests should never be allowed to determine the content to which the citizenry will be exposed. These are the wages of men who wish manipulate and coerce an uninformed body, much like the current politic of egoism which pervades the halls of Congress. Please do not allow the internet to fall into the hands of faceless entities which seek to hold sway over the masses. This would enable a very select group of elitists to control the backbone of modernity, far too many people rely upon the world wide web for their livelihood. We cannot merely spectate while the flow of idea we currently enjoy is throttled down to a sympathetic pap.

—Neal Little, clearwater, FL protect the Internets Freedom

—Sherrie McNearney, Yonkers, NY

FTC and Justice Dept should block Comcast takeover of Time Warner Cable. Further concentration lessens competition and irreparably harms the public.

—david Kerrigan, Irvine, CA

Restriction of the free flow of ideas is a form of censorship, restricting free speech and, as such, violating the first amendment.

—Silas Creaux, Jericho, NY

How many years left to vote until we can get start reporting OUR America ?

—Joyce Lydick, Camby, IN

Please do not let this powerful information medium be squelched by greed and money grabbing. The free internet serves to do to much good when left unrestricted. Much more good then it would by lining the pockets of those few who already have more than their fair share.

—Barbara Folan, Hatfield, MA

The ability to access different networks should not be impeded by our ISPs. Slow downs and limits to access different networks and broadcasts should not be possible by ISP's.

—Gioia Kuss, Middlebury, VT

We deserve net neutrality. Stop attempting to control us.

—Katie, Roseville, CA

Thank you for doing this we all really appreciate it you people don't get enough love.

—Will Graham, Houston, TX

Save open and free speech!

—Melvin Mackey, Vashon, WA

The US needs net neutrality for the monopolistic cable, satellite and phone companies that are charging users exorbitant rates and throttling services that they have contracted with the users to provide.

—Charles T. Chappell, Chesapeake, VA

What happened to our "Freedoms"? What happened to our right to privacy? What happens to my Netflix streaming? Or my right to read international news... or, or, or....

—Carol Baker, Watseka, IL

This is seriously one of the most important things for education and entrepreneurship, that I cannot believe that we are arguing this as an issue. Simply put, the internet should be a basic right this day in age, but at a minimum, there should be no minimizing what content can be viewed or accessed. It is Freedom of Speech. Be smart. Restore Net Neutrality.

—Jonathan Ross, Denver, CO

Some day america will fall, and we will finally be free

—Ruben G, Elkhorn, WI

The inception of the internet brought equality to all who ventured into the new world of web-based communications and data retrieval. But unfortunately, the relentless quest for control has threatened that freedom. Tracking of everything we do is scary to my generation. The web should be an island of safety, without corporate or governmental control. The vendors who profited greatly from providing access to the internet, first through dial up, then high speed access, need to look elsewhere to maintain their revenues. Constricting internet flow should NOT be an option. Please vigorously support net neutrality.

—Kyle Rheubottom, Spokane, WA

Do not let big money be the controller. Our gov is here to protect consumers there is no advantage to the consumer for eliminating NN . We already pay that should be enough.

—Jody Price, Forest City, NC

I believe this can be done. I realize this will not be easy. Keep trying is the best thing you can do for this country. Its not to late to turn things around before it starts to get worse. Thank you for taking the time to read this.

—Jess Smith, Dresden, TN

Let's not suddenly become North Korea, shall we?

—Emily K Krebs, San Antonio, TX

net neutrality is freedom of speech

—David Lemoyne, ,

Either bring back net neutrality or force ISPs to list services and websites they throttle open to the public.

—Jordan Collado, Rockville, MD

The ISPs should not be allowed to tell people what they can or can't download. You're paying them for a service and then their trying to fu over their customers by double dipping and denying service completely.

—Kyle Klissaroff, North Olmsted, OH

Keep the freedom of speech and knowledge open....

—Roman Coia, Aston, PA

Please restore "strong" net neutrality rules. The internet needs to be free to allow innovation. We pay our bill and expect to receive the download speeds advertised they shouldn't be allowed to throttle. Please do something!

Net neutrality is the linchpin of internet base innovation. If we allow neutrality to be crushed by wealthy corporations we will all be less well off.

—Ken Rogers, Phoenix, AZ

Keep net neutrality alive, use title II!
—Brendan Caulfield, Greensboro, NC

Please, keep free and equal access to an open internet and restore net neutrality. Don't allow big companies to control internet content, as well as, the right to free speech, the right for small businesses to operate online without undue interference and unfair business practices. There is inherent protection of these and many more human and personal rights that exists through the wealth of free flowing and open information that the internet provides. It would be a moral travesty if you allow a few very large profit-driven corporations to control what should be a free and fully open form of communication and learning. Your help will be greatly appreciated. Thank you!! Robert Dean
—Bob Dean, San Jose, CA

Damn ATT, Comcast, Verizon, etc. They want to double dip and it ain't right!
—Alex Haj, Niagara Falls, NY

This is absolutely insane that ISPs can control the flow of traffic on the internet. When I plug in to an electrical outlet it doesn't ask me if I'm using a Panasonic TV or a Sony TV; it just serves electricity. The internet needs to work the same way - simply serve data.
—Sebastian Smades, Bradford, PA

This is rude.
—Carrie Reid, Dryden, MI

Open and unrestricted the internet forever !!

The Government is pushing it's luck if it thinks it can get away with this.
—Kyle Legros, Brasher Falls, NY

Leave my internet alone!
—Rob Ludwig, Centerville, IN

How can a small business person operate and survive under this new version of the internet. It can't. The internet was developed with tax payers money for the government and ultimately a law was passed in congress to open up the internet to all americans for commerce and learning. Because we paid for it's development it should be run as it has be under the rul of Net Neutrality. Please restore the internet to it's rightful owners and usage. Thank you.

—Coy Sills, Baytown, TX

The experiences with the current system have been positive. This is just going to hurt small businesses, and put them in a competing situation when they don't have the resources. Dominance is negative for the good of all.

—Audrey Dwane, Agawam, MA

With all due respect I'd prefer living in a free country.

—S, Kalamazoo, MI

yoooo we got to stop this

—Elli, Wenatchee, WA

For my family, Comcast is literally the only internet provider that covers our area. My mother works through the internet, my father VPNs in for work some of the time since he has a 2 hour commute, and my sister does virtual school online. Internet is not a luxury for us - it is a utility. Allowing the internet providers to limit services and discriminate against certain websites and such effects our quality of living and our ability to make a living and be educated. If you do not reinstate Net Neutrality, we will be unprotected from the monopolization of internet services.

—Tatiana Anthony, Maple Valley, WA

Restore net neutrality!!

—Adrienne B, Wolcott, CT

I've grown up with the internet and it has always been a valuable resource for knowledge and learning. Many educators and schools are now requiring students have lessons integrated with computer science and internet research. The library of the future is under attack by people who seek to consort to treasonous acts in order to progress their vile agendas. I implore you to treat broadband as a communications service and protect the freedoms which the internet embodies.

—Susanna Luciano, Austin, TX

This isn't something that should even be disputed, it would make sense in a utopian society but we live in a capitalist world and this decision has made it even easier for the big dogs to shut down anyone they like. Stop making it easy for corporations to destroy the common man. Try taking the side of small businesses and people without a million dollars in the bank for a change.
—Rachel Davoren, Novato, CA

Why would you want to fuck up the internet, the one cool thing we have in this fucked up world?
—Hayley Corbett, Everett, WA

I can't believe we're going through this again. YOU HAVE ENOUGH MONEY. Just give us the internet and leave us alone.
—Sierra Lindsay, Bangs, TX

The internet, in these days, is a utility. It doesn't matter who you are or what you do, you need internet access to be able to run your life, apply for a job, HAVE a job, and participate in much of the economy. People today need the internet, much like they need water, heat, and electricity. Not having net neutrality denies a basic right to anyone who is unable to pay and it isn't right.
—Alyssa Mitchell, Littleton, CO

They are internet service providers. Why should they get my money to let me use the internet and then charge the services I go to more money? The cost will eventually come back to me from the services I go to charging more. I do not like the idea of having to pay twice for the same thing.
—Christopher lee West, flagstaff, AZ

—Janee, ,

I and the internet (web) have grown up together. During that time I discovered people who "shared" information, knowledge, jokes, thoughts, beliefs, their lives, and creative work. I watched as access to this "place" of freedom, was capitalized by companies, entrepreneurs, and savvy techies. All these were good things. The only problem was access. During this evolution I saw congress pass a law 1996 Telecommunications Act that "free'd" the access and allowed more competition to provide access. This was good. I wasn't safer because of this law, I was free to be infected, trojaned, malware, exploited, scammed, spammed, bored, wiped out, etc... I loved it. I was free to discover, protect myself, not protect myself, whatever. Today as I look at what has "grown" out of this place of freedom, I see the companies who gained from the 1996 Telecom Act no claiming that "others" are taking up too much of the bandwidth to access links to their customers. They want to "offer" customers "more services" and provide more content. In other words they want to restrict access to the internet and provide the "curated" content that they provide, via fees and tiered billing. If I pay this , I can access this at this speed. If I pay more I can get that and this at higher speeds. I feel their has been a bait and switch. The access providers are now acting as content providers. They say pay more for higher speeds, and simultaneously erect tolls and access fees to content providers to access me. If companies don't pay, thier content will be restricted. The FCC is responsible for protecting the consumer. In this instance I, the consumer, am stuck between multibillion dollar predators who want to isolate me and suck as much money from me as they can. Just remember as a consumer I am a content provider. If Network access providers are allowed to mutate and become "toll" keepers, we will all be subject to filtering and throttling. Internet Access used to mean freedom, now access means choosing who has the best "channels". That isn't the internet, that is cable tv. I understand the need to have network based differentiated services, for real time data, and streaming services. But this is a standards issue. Network Access companies should work on this issue to "improve" the quality of their networks and capitalize on the improvements to get more customers. They should not be allowed to erect tolls on the network to for content, or content providers, or consumers. Please standup for "freedom". Stop the mutation of Network Providers, and enforce their role to providing access and network innovations, not tolls and filters.

Restore Net Neutrality - every day any hope of democracy is being shut out in the favor of outdated laws and bowing to corporate power.

—Juan Madrid, Catskill, NY

I understand that the Internet needs to be regulated to a point. It's honestly just as dangerous as the non-virtual world. But this type of regulation is the wrong type. You obviously don't know how to make a profit. People won't pay more for companies to unblock it, they'll find illegal ways, or just stop altogether. We shouldn't have to turn to the Dark Net just to go onto a blog or watch a video. We really shouldn't.

Broadband is a communications service which everyone deserves the right to. Verizon and any other ISP which would institute sweeping pay-to-play schemes would be abusing their power, and need to be kept in check.

—Andrea Orenstein, Philadelphia, PA

Please don't let big magnet corporations such as Verizon and AT&T infringe our rights as internet users. The internet should be a free and uncontrolled way for individuals to search and acquire information on a daily basis.

Now my Netflix is streaming slow. What next? I am so angry with how politicians and regulators have let it get to this point. I am going to be forced to unplug entirely and look for other ways to get my information or just be plain stupid and maybe that is the ultimate goal to have a big controllable stupid populace. The internet will be one big propaganda venue for corporations and well I can see where this sort of idea will spread like wild fire in the Middle East and elsewhere where they only tolerate one set of ideas. I just bought a new computer and well maybe I need to return it along with all the other stuff I bought with it. How is that helping the economy? No wonder we are hated around the world since we let big corporations run the country. It isn't that much better than dictators. Corporations just put a prettier spin on it.

A neutral Internet is a community good in the same way that pulic roads are a community good. There should be no discrimination regarding the content of a data packet or stream; in other words, we should not have a "fast lane", a "slow lane" and a "no lane" based on whose data it is, or what the content of that data packet or stream is. The "Internet Service Providers" have become essential to the economic life of our country. They should not be allowed to pick and chose what we, as citizens, are permitted to see or do, based on their "bottom lines". If South Korea can provide significantly faster (and fairer) Internet service than we have, our ISPs should have to explain to you what they have done with all of the money they have been given to "upgrade" their networks and provide reasonable quality service to everyone. If they can't do it, then our local and regional governments should do it, because the Internet is no longer an "optional" service used only for entertainment.

The internet is a tool that is very important to modern society. Now some of you may whine and say that it's horrible that this generation would rather google their question instead of pick up a book and read through it to find the answer. We google it because the internet has the most updated information. Why would you want to get an answer from an outdated book whereas you can get a more accurate answer from a site? And if your gonna argue that children don't read as much now that they have the internet that's not true at all. Read book reviews, go to amazon, or find a fanfic (that also includes children writing thank you very much). "Internet is poisoning the younger minds" please I'm sure your child heard you say fuck a dozen times in the car when somebody does some stupid maneuver with their car. Also it's important for a child to know what is out there in the world. There are prostitutes, rapists, hookers, and many more terrible things. They say ignorance is bliss but what happens when your daughter gets pregnant but she didn't know what was going on, or when your son gets a girl pregnant what's gonna happen then? There will be no more ignorance nor bliss. And once they realize that then everything they see will be dark.

The idea that networks and corporations want to take over and control something just for the sake of power over someone else or turning a profit disgusts me. We already have to buy or pay a bill for water, which should be a free resource, and corporations are trying to capitalize on solar power. Energy from the sun, water, an immense community of artists, musicians, schools, craftsmen, and so on is something that shouldn't be regulated in the first place. The latter especially. I speak with friends and family all across the globe, I have friends in Australia who I only know thanks to the internet, I happily watch streaming video from netflix and hulu, and post my artwork for friends on my tumblr. The idea that something like that is going to be taken from me all for the sake of someone else's profit and/or paranoia or control isn't something I want to be a part of. And as a U.S. citizen, it's not even something that should be an issue. There are more important things to be worried about than controlling the internet. Just let it be.

Moving this to net neutrality will hopefully have a strong effect on the rest of the world. In a society where communications such as the internet permeates everyday life so much, I don't see how it could not be a communications service, nor how net neutrality wouldn't have a positive impact on the end user, especially considering some of the news around non-neutral communications I've seen recently (such as issues with Netflix etc).

Nilay Patel is right: the internet IS a utility. It is a vast wealth of information and a source of communication that has become nearly ubiquitous. —Ana, Wichita, KS

This is another nail in the coffin of freedom by officials in D.C. This time aimed at the most functional anarchy of information gathering and distribution, the internet. Not just that, but also an anarchy that has gathered thousand of communities of like minded individuals that will be affected by this negatively, not to mention the websites themselves and the reputation of their providers or financial supporters. This is nothing more than an attempt to monopolize on the websites created by others, like making a toll booth in front of another person's store just because they so happen to advertise your product. This is forcing people into contracts to access other people's works, and utterly contradicting the value of privacy and choice that defines the US. Net neutrality stops this, along with many other things. In general, favoritism and protection of certain institutions have already lead to the economic problem of the US. Don't let it lead to a crisis of the net.

—June P Joyce, Hanover, MA

Ridiculously unfair . No rational justification . Unconstitutional .

—Jeff, Jupiter, FL

We already pay for Internet service. Setting up a tiered system essentially allows ISPs to double-charge for the service they're supposed to provide to the consumers.

—Benjamin Jones, Kalamazoo, MI

Please do not give ISPs more power. They already charge much more than they should as it is. This will kill the Internet for many people as well as allow other people to hide things they don't want people to see, we are America not china, Internet for all.

—Jason Werthman, Macomb, MI

Please, do not allow corporations to control the Internet.

—Michael Corcoran, Lake Stevens, WA

Dear FCC, I am an Electrical Engineering student at the University of Texas at Austin with a focus on software. Many of my friends participate in various startups around Austin. A world without net neutrality would mean that those with deeper pockets will have a much greater advantage over these grass roots startups . Not to say that they don't already have an advantage, but a system that promotes this actively is really twisted. I hope you have a chance to read this because as a younger american, this is the first time I've exercised my voice for legislation and this will not be the last. If your goal was to stir the beehive of young voters with this decision, then you have achieved well beyond that. We can only hope that you hear our buzzing. Obama promised us in 2007, at a public forum at Coe College, that he would support net neutrality. He specifically said, "I am a strong supporter of net neutrality." Don't make the internet into Cable TV.

—Thomas Browne, Boothbay, ME

Leave net neutrality the way it is! There is no need to have tiered net like cable. Please shelve that idea forever.

—Ronald Pusey, NY, NY

The death of Net Neutrality is the death of information in the US. If companies like Verizon can charge what they like, people of lower incomes will lose access to internet and therefore information. Colleges and libraries would no longer be able to afford to provide internet access for those who could not afford it at home. The internet is the world's greatest invention and source of education. This must be accessible to as many people as possible. Also, the backlash will be unprecedented if people lose access to internet.

—Meagan Starr, Fremont, CA

I'm so tired of all the greed whether it be companies, individuals, or the government. We all know that is all this is about. The Internet should stay as is. If this is put into effect, it could ruin a lot of businesses - small businesses that are so important to the business owners as well as consumers. Please think about the little people. The Internet is all the entertainment many of us have or can afford.

—Tammy Davenport, Haysville, KS

By letting ISPs gain more and more control over the market, the FCC reminds me of the financial crisis of 2008 due to the continuous deregulation of the big banks. Give an inch, and they'll take a mile. Net neutrality is crucial to our democracy - because it allows everyone to have an equal voice. By establishing fast lanes for the rich and the slow lanes for the rest of us, the FCC is continuing to allow our country to fall apart from the economic inequality that has been preventing economic growth for years. Enough of this. The Internet should be a freedom that allows everyone to be equal. Giving ISPs more power will take that freedom away.

I condemn such actions! I can't believe that I never had the opportunity to fight this! I never knew! This is a crippling blow to the internet as we know it! I won't buy from an ISP that will indulge in this. I pay for my speed and privacy from the ISP and they should provide just that. nothing more, nothing less.

If you pass this or pass the merger between time warner and comcast, you are not doing your job. way to do nothing for what you cared about when you started holding public office. and take money. People are getting upset and neither of these things have actually happened. Try to be the people you wanted to be...those who help people. those who care about ALL people, especially those who they know and see. And everyone who you can help is someone you can know and see. If only a few companies are capable of controlling access to the internet, would not they be considered a monopoly and broken up via the Sherman Anti-Trust Act? Are not the air waves currently defined as public property and can we not have the internet defined the same way. I don't believe its legal for CBS to jam the transmission of competitors TV and radio signals. Why are these behemoths given the right to do the same thing to internet traffic?

—Scott James Hawley, Winter Park, FL

Don't destroy our only form of democracy left. Instead of looking out for the phone companies and cable companies why don't you for once look out for the consumer. You are here to serve the people. And no corporations aren't people.

—Gabriela Najera, Morro Bay, CA

This is basically turning our free speech into controlled speech - so we will be like China, not allowing outside voices to be heard.

—Colleen Choi, Grand Terrace, CA

As a customer paying for premium internet access from my ISP I should be allowed to have all content accessible at the access rate I pay for; therefore, the content provider shouldn't have to also pay an extra premium to send that content to me. Seems like the ISPs are trying to double charge for more profit. If I want to be able to stream videos from Hulu or Netflix, I pay for it by paying the ISP for a higher speed connection. Collecting money from Hulu and Netflix on top of that is just being greedy.

Fuck off with the dictatorship and payoffs!

—Richard, Tacoma, WA

Seriously, this might not sound like a problem. But wait until your netflix/spotify/amazon streaming/etc prices go up because they have to pay off the big ISPs like verizon & comcast. Wait until all the action in Silicon Valley slows down & moves out because there's an additional cost to get your product to market. We as country have some of the worst levels of internet access and speed in the developed world, especially among lower-income households. Watch the people with limited resources have to access a walled garden version of the internet, seeing only the corporate-approved content. That might not matter to career government officials, but it matters that a large segment of the population will be left even further behind.

—Georgia Andrews, San Francisco, CA

From here it kind of looks like they run you.

—Mr. Ed Jones, La Vergne, TN

Net Neutrality isn't just good for charities and dissidents. It's important to startups and upstarts like the reddit of 5 years ago, the google of 10 years ago... Letting ISPs assert an oligopoly here is letting American innovation die on the vine and letting us slip further behind countries who treat neutral data traffic as a right and/or a utility.

I beg of you, please do not allow this free and open place known as the internet to fall. You and I both know that the internet is not meant to be something to be controlled, but a place of public expression. Failing to restore net neutrality laws and take the right for Internet Service Providers to limit, restrict, and censor our access and usage of the internet would be similar to using a wrecking ball on the main public forum during Rome's Golden Age, thereby destroying it and the ideas shared there.

The ISPs cannot be allowed to hinder access to particular sites because they do not pay a premium fee to the ISP. This can lead to ISPs blocking access to any site that effectively does not offer them ransom money in the future. This is not freedom of access, freedom of information, or freedom of speech if a private company like the ISP can decide how subscribers can access sites and services online based on commercial reasoning and their own vested interests. This needs to be rectified soon if the US is not to fall behind the rest of the first world in terms of freedom of information and free exchange of ideas.
—Nathan B, Irvine, CA

The internet must stay completely neutral. It is used as a utility, not as a luxury like cable. The only thing we should be paying for is our bandwidth, with the ISP having no say in what we use it for, or imposing limits on our traffic.

This is VERY important. Access to ALL information for all people regardless of income, gender, race, location, etc. is necessary as a platform to make informed decisions. All other sources of information (newspapers, radio, tv) have been monopolized and limit information based on bias.

This is outrageous. This just continues to show how government looks out for the best interest of its corporations, rather than the people.

—Ariel Rivas, Lawrence, MA

This is bullshit. Gamers worldwide are about to get screwed.

—Patrick Fowler, Old Bridge, NJ

The corruption in our system of government, and the slow destruction of a small company's ability to compete in our economy, is blatantly evident with this ruling. I'm appalled that our lawmakers have caved to the demands of large corporate entities that have only money in mind (rather than the good of our country or their own customers).

—Quinton Lawman, Cleveland, OH

Obviously, ISPs are communications services, or 'common carriers,' no matter what you say. Or are we to become another China and restrict our citizens' freedoms? Please protect our internet neutrality.

—Andrew Lewis, Fort Collins, CO

A critical issue

—Susan Nabors, Brevard, NC

Come on Mr. Wheeler, show some backbone. Uphold the principles of net neutrality by whatever means is needed INCLUDING declaring the internet to be a UTILITY, which it clearly is. The "net" uses public rights of way that belong to all of us. The "net" crosses state lines 9i.e. it is interstate commerce). The "net" providers are either a monopoly or an oligopoly of 2 giant companies (anti-trust issues). If net neutrality disappears, then so does freedom of speech (1st amendment rights). If it walks like a duck, quacks like a duck and looks like a duck, then it is a duck. It's a utility. Do your duty as FCC chairman. Treat the internet as a utility and uphold "net neutrality".

Net Neutrality is vital to innovation. I don't for a moment believe that the bandwidth providers will add bandwidth for "fast lane" companies, they will just throttle the bandwidth for everybody else. This will have the net effect of reducing start-up innovation, allowing existing companies and media providers to retain their existing business models and profits.

—Richard Lang, Burlington, VT

I cannot believe we have to have this discussion, but the web is the greatest tool for information and communication in history. It has helped democratic revolutions like the Arab Spring. It is a repository for almost all human knowledge. It allows instant communication with anyone anywhere. It is IMPOSSIBLE to fully participate in the human experience without interacting online. The web is as optional to 21st century life as electricity or indoor plumbing. Broadband must be treated as a communications service. Cable providers are upset about the "cord cutter" movement and rather than _offering customers something better or something they want_, which is how the free market is supposed to work, they have taken a different direction and tried to arbitrarily dictate which parts of the web can be accessed by customers and at which speeds. But online traffic isn't someone illegally watching a movie instead of paying for cable television. Online traffic is first and foremost _communication_. Isn't this what China does? How can we allow this in the United States? We have free speech, we have a free press, we have freedom of religion, and we have the right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. That doesn't include the right of corporations to restrict and censor access to information or to impede communication in any way.

This issue is complicated, and the term Net Neutrality gets in the way of everyday people understanding the urgency of the moment. In the 20th Century, libraries provided free access to information, and leveled the playing field for all; but in the 21st Century, we depend on the Internet for free and open access to information. Some people are dragging us away from the principles of a free society. When the general public understands the implications of the Circuit court's actions, they will understand that the next step could be having to pay for every click on the Internet. What a shame that we've allowed corporations so much power in our free nation. Fix it.

—Marilynn Jerry Wadden, Des Moines, IA

Fuck FCC, do you want the democracy to be dead?

—Hong Xianfu, ,

Traffic prioritization is becoming a problem. I am seeing it all over the place from video services to people using VoIP and it's only going to get worse. Further allowing the monopolistic ISPs with a vested interest in television and phone service to prioritize traffic is not in the interest of technological innovation or the public at large. Honestly I think it may be time to consider separating the ISPs from the cable and phone companies. But at any rate the least the FCC can do is ensure and maintain true Net Neutrality.

—Ron Thompson, Wexford, PA

Net Neutrality should be maintained, to hold back the US is preposterous. The rest of the planet has true net neutrality. The government is at the service of the people and the people do not agree with these decisions.

The whole idea of the Internet during and post ARPANET was neutrality. Don't make the Internet data transport a commodity. Consumers and businesses already pay for Internet traffic, why should the large companies have a higher priority just because they can pay for it. Consumers are making the Internet providers very rich, data transport is a very profitable business already. Don't compromise what is already working.

The internet is the best communication service there is. It lets me keep in touch with my husband, lets my kids keep in touch with their father, as well as an important part of teaching for our classrooms. Many students complete assignments over the internet, and teachers communicate with them and us via that medium. Treat it as the communication service that it is!

—Alicia Cram, Brownfield, ME

Regulate carriers, their monopoly allows them to limit connections based on any profit or whim.

—Brian Sheehan, West Roxbury, MA

Don't you dare hand over the freedom of the Internet to those corporations. They will destroy it.

—Samantha Swartz, Phoenix, AZ

Net neutrality is critical to the success of small business like mine. Stand up to internet service providers who are threatening World War III if they don't get their way, and do what needs to be done to protect individual consumers and small businesses from yet another example of corporate greed and stupidity.

—Sarah Withee, Manitou Springs, CO

Keep the net neutral.

—Diane howieson, Portland, OR you putzes! give it back.

—Cleve Lamison, New York, NY

Reclassify ISPs as common carriers. The corporate suits in charge of quasi-monopolistic companies like Comcast must not get their way, as it would be a 'foot in the door' toward a heavily regulated internet—something that will create barriers to entry for competition in internet business and undermine the basic principals of open information and free speech online.

—Chris Dackow, Summit, NJ

Please don't let net neutrality die...the impacts to the public especially our economy will be catastrophic.

—Michelle Parham, New York, NY

Net Neutrality must be restored! The internet must remain open and accessible for everyone.

—Megan Campesi, Kenilworth, NJ

Is the reason the FCC is giving corporations priority with faster internet speeds to some and not to others to cover up the nefarious business of the NSA collecting every piece of metadata from everyone? The only way that our gov't can show me they are acting in my best interests and good faith is the keep the playing field equal. American citizens have already been robbed by the huge income redistribution through Citizen's United. I also want to comment that I'd like the Fairness Doctrine back. Fox News is not fair and balanced and they are actually repeating lie after lie after lie. Thank you SCOTUS, your corruption is now total and complete. You made a horrendous ruling that's killing democracy.

—Kd Flock, Santa Cruz, CA

We the people demand an "Honest" Net Neutrality. Not another phoney stand about what is good for the American people. In South Korea they pay $35 a month for TV, Voice and Internet (which happens to be 100mbps service). Why do we pay 3 times as much? Why do we need to pay for different levels of service as Mr. Wheeler proposes? Net Neutrality has worked so far. Don't give Mr. Wheelers proposal in the sake of Net Neutrality when it is not.

If net neutrality is not restored I recommend that Commissioner Wheeler be removed from the FCC for conflict of interest because he was a lobbyist for the cable and wireless industry, which the FCC is supposed to regulate.

—Ms. Jeanne-Marie Cabe, Lynn, MA

Restoring the Net Neutrality rules are imperative to the longevity of the internet. Broadband networks should be treated as a communications service and shouldn't be reclassified.

—Aaron Gallego, Milpitas, CA

Internet infrastructure needs to be treated as a utility in this day and age. It is now an essential service and more over is used for COMMUNICATIONS. Don't just disregard it like it was entertainment only.

NET NEUTRALITY IS A RIGHT

—Andrea De Leon, Corpus Christi, TX

The internet is a network, much of it built with either public money or public subsidy, that acts as a medium for all manner of communication. Those who operate it are, obviously, common carriers, and that the FCC refuses to classify them as such is pretty ridiculous. What would the US look like if we allowed localities to set up tolls on highways running through them, or businesses on stretches that run beside them? Your current course paves the way for literal Robber-Baron behavior, so please reconsider it.

—Julian Mc Beth, Bryan, TX

Well that explains why my bill kept going up.

—Jerylynne Andrasko, Oxford, OH

Enough already. Leave the internet be. The rich are rich enough and the rest of us creatives and truth seekers deserve Raquel and unfiltered access to what's out there as we slave away each day just to get by.

—Galyn Clarkson-Farrell, Woodhaven, NY

While Putin draws an Iron Curtain around speech in Russia, this is not time to start slipping backwards in protecting speech on the Internet. Without net neutrality, the Internet will become as devoid of independent thought as television, and we'll watch as internet becomes less a forum of ideas as a marketed spin of products and businesses trying to manipulate us. Don't let the monopolists at the Comcast Trust prevent you from listening to your real employers, the American people.

—Firewhiskey, ,

The FCC is crazy if they don't keep Net Neutrality. The internet isn't just for information, but for communication. Some people's livelihoods and businesses are EXCLUSIVELY done through the internet. They would be robbing EVERYONE of the right to live, work, and enjoy life by doing this.

—, Dallas, GA

We need to protect what free and open internet access we have and expand access to more people, not give corporations control over the public's access to information.

—Michael Chadbourne, Amherst, MA

The new rule proposed by FCC Chairman, Tom Wheeler, the former chief telecom industry lobbyist, will end Net Neutrality, allowing cable companies to slow service for providers and consumers who can't afford big premiums. This, I believe, will kill the single greatest engine of democracy and economic growth the US has seen since WWII.

—Adam Talenfeld, Katonah, NY

Don't hurt my small business by giving preferential treatment to big businesses!

—Justin Cifello, Buzzards Bay, MA

To: President of the Federal Communications Commission Tom Wheeler Subj: The net should be regulated like a COMMON CARRIER. You should know that I am furious about your proposed changes to internet rules, rules that will eventually wreck the relatively free internet we now enjoy. There are millions of other Americans who are just as furious about these proposed rule changes as I am. We see what is going on, and we see you for what you are. We know about the revolving door between corporations and regulators. It is a deplorable practice and is an indicator of the corruption of our government by the unscrupulous and greedy who buy crooked regulators in order to rape the commons. It is a story as old as old as government itself but you and your ilk of Washington Beltway creeps are passing all bounds of reason. You personally exemplify the type of greedy, corrupt person I am describing. I know all about your background as a lobbyist for the National Cable & Telecommunications Association and for the Cellular Telecommunications & Internet Association. I bet you are planning for a nice job like that traitor to American values Julius Genachowski got with the The Carlyle Group: All you have to do is betray the public interest and a cozy position of wealth and power is yours for the rest of your life. Your greed and Genachowski's know no bounds. I know you will not pay attention to me, because I am only a citizen, not a wealthy one-percenter. The recent book Affluence and Influence, by Martin Gilens (you should read it) shows what your kind think of mere citizens and how much weight you give to our opinions. If you destroy the open internet, you will be one of the men most responsible for wrecking democracy in America. Can you live with yourself if you do that? How will you be able to sleep at night? I, and millions of Americans will blame you personally for wrecking net neutrality and we will find a way to ostracize you and make you feel morally miserable. The net should be regulated like a COMMON CARRIER, like a utility such as electricity and water. Get that into your head, Mr. President of the Federal Communications Commission, Mr. Regulator. You'd better listen. You'd better start being a regulator for the People, not for Corporations. Corporations don't deserve another handout like the one the government gave to railroads back in the day. Look at the disaster that ensued in that case, and realize that what you are proposing (I don't care how you pretty it up with your spin and lawyerly wording—and yes, I read your letters to the public) will destroy the freedom of America. The free and unimpeded flow of information must not be tampered with, especially not to help a bunch of greedy goddamn monopolists. I hope I make myself clear. Eric A. Whitney, a veteran and a voter.

—Eric Whitney, Austin, TX

Once it's gone, it's gone forever. Please protect a true free market.

Stop the madness! Restore Net Neutrality! This is America, Land of the Free! Please STOP this take over of the internet before its too late. Don't mess with it if its not broken! Don't mess with a good thing! PLEASE.

—L Martinez-Lavin, Bronx, NY

The Internet has to stay open and accessible to all content creators. Giving preference is a slippery slope to very corrupt business models and back door deals. The internet's open and free nature is what allowed it to thrive and do the amazing things that it does. Don't turn the internet into television

—Timothy Barrett, North Easton, MA

Net neutrality is vital to innovation. I could hardly imagine how large ISPs would have openly embraced innovative technologies like Netflix or Hulu, rather without net neutrality these types of innovation would have had to fight an even steeper uphill battle. The ISPs don't need protection. The end users and consumers deserve a free internet, free of restrictions and discrimination. I hope the FCC uses its authority and power to help establish a legal guarantee of the internet's neutrality.

—Karl Kastan, Brisbane, CA

Keep the Net neutral, please. No anti-trust, monopolistic shenanigans from the big tele-comm companies. Thank you very much.

—John Coggins, Grass Valley, CA

Dear Federal Communications Commission: The D.C. Circuit's decision in the Verizon case dealt a huge blow to the open Internet. Right now there is no one protecting Internet users from ISPs that block or discriminate against websites, applications or services. Companies like Verizon will now be able to block or slow down any website, application or service they like. And they'll be able to create tiered pricing structures with fast lanes for those who can afford the tolls and slow lanes for everyone else. It's time for the new FCC leadership to correct the agency's past mistakes and to reassert the agency's clear authority over our nation's communications infrastructure. To preserve the open Internet, the FCC must reclassify broadband Internet access as a telecommunications service. Use your authority to establish a solid legal footing for the vital policies and protections this court decision threatens.

Oh, I mean lobby your votes. Make the internet free again, as it was designed to be! You, Verizon, or Comcast did not invent it therefore you should not all be allowed to get rich off of it. Free the internet!!!!
—Michelle Becan, Richboro, PA

I believe the internet should be a level playing field - for better or worse.
—Amanda Baker, Edwardsville, IL

Make the internet a common carrier. Do not allow corporations(big phone,big cable,big internet corporations) to censor and reduce the free speech of all of us on the internet.

If this is not fixed, it is only a matter of time before the people of the world forget what freedom really is. The moment big money companies can tell us what we can and cannot do is the moment we throw away what little freedoms we still have. For a nation that has fought against tyranny and censorship in the past, it would be a tragedy to let something like this go unopposed.
—Michael Romano, Mesa, AZ

—Laurie, ,

The innovation economy, as we so love to call it, is what has driven us to where we are and is what will drive us into the future. I feel that you, the FCC, and all the politicians have forgotten what it takes to have a truly successful and innovative tech community, openness. This openness does not extend solely to the feeling of freedom of expression and privacy, see the NSA, but also to the openness of the network to new ideas. Not allowing a level playing field for new players stifles innovation. Also in a country that has little to no competition in cable markets not treating cable providers like a utility is absurd. If Comcast et al are allowed to own most of the cable market unchallenged, run a broadcast network, run multiple cable networks and control the pipeline to all their competition then it should come as no surprise when prices and profits sky rocket while service declines and we as a nation fall further back in average broadband speed and information delivery systems. The system is already broken, and the blood is on your hands, furthering this broken system will only leave a legacy of mismanagement and cronyism on your record.

—Evan Griffith, Boston, MA

The internet is a source of free information to all who use it. The ability to restrict that information is too much power to entrust into a corporate hand. Please leave the internet alone, and all its information.

—Karen Sharp, Pittsburgh, PA

We need net neutrality to allow a competitive atmosphere for new media providers. America has promoted a competitive business environment for all kinds of businesses. Anti-trust laws keep companies from controlling all the means of production. We need the same for protection for small media companies to create a competitive environment. We also need net neutrality to protect consumer choice.

Having lived in two other countries for the past four years It's very clear to me that America is no longer the great "land of the free" we'd like to think it is. In Japan, a country that prides itself on old fashioned tradition, has fast internet that is not only reliable but fast and affordable. What do we say? Not today

—David Hunziker, Mineola, TX

Consumers are already paying providers for an established speed of service. Establishing a fast lane for the majority monopoly will squelch the ability of competition, innovation and hurt smaller players. This looks like one more attempt to help the 1% and the large players.

—E Hoople, Walnut Creek, CA

I am very disturbed by the trend of ISPs believing that they know best how to classify different types of data. All traffic should be treated equally and the ISPs should be "dumb pipes" nothing more. It's already bad enough that they have a monopoly it's imperative that the FCC take a stand against their anti-consumer, anti-innovation practices. If we don't keep the internet open it will be much more difficult for entrepreneurs to come up with new and vital networked services. I truly believe that it is in the interests of every American to reclassify broadband. Please consider the future of this country and the world. We are a leader when it comes to technology and the rest of the world will take note.

—Thomas Barron, Detroit, MI

CLASSIFY AS TELECOM, PLEASE!

—Rob Heaney, Auburn, CA

To the FCC, I know that the general populous dislikes the future of Internet devoid of Net Neutrality, but other than short term money and short term control do most cable provider expect to get. Most of the internet founding code and ideals as been created in colleges and schools. This simple idea to cause idea to fly to post to exist on a friends computer and then it grew in a work horse that could care the everyday person regardless of religion, aspirations, creed cause of creation (birth and worth) and sexual orientation(yes orientation and presentation). Surely we are thinking that men can put a price tag on something they really did not create. If a tax is necessary for up-keep then I am sure the people will or have already paid. The objective of making a higher class system and lower class system can easily turn into extortion. No one really has the right to make work and the art of the ancestors and the average man. Plagiarism is easier and easier to keep up with artists rights to their works are high and the corporation that pay for the work,, both get their return. The only person that has much to gain is owners of men that put cables in the ground and power only a few back bone servers. What is more important to worry about the education and encouragement of the average man or the profit margins of men already rich. Before rich man take about rip off of artists, let me remind that Van Gogh made paintings for the average man. No rich man came to pay for his works now in museums. The net is made of organic men the metal. Why put price on tomorrow. Thomas J Bowman Graphbjb.

—Graphbjb, Allen, TX

I am for net neutrality. Internet traffic must remain free from commercial manipulation

—David Fulton, Augusta, GA

Today's internet is and should be by the people and for the people, and not by the cable company and sometime to the people.

—Benjamin Northrup, Bay Saint Louis, MS

Please act on this now.

—Kathy Otto, Naples, FL

I favor equal access to internet services rather than an unregulated system open to the greed of corporations. Internet access is first and foremost a means of communication. Internet Service Providers must be classified as Common Carriers.

—Mr. Rob Prout, Yakima, WA

Please continue an internet open to all. No special interests given more accessibility than the access of the public at large.

I am sad that I even have to sign this petition. It is your duty to serve the people, not the cable companies. Tom Wheeler should be fired for he clearly is in the pocket of big cable. I don't even need to make an argument here for why this is important for preserving our economy and democracy. Just fire Mr. Wheeler.

—Todd Oakley, Shaker Heights, OH

The internet should serve everyone and not just the monopoly wishes of cable companies. Net Neutrality should be preserved.

—Glenn Banegura, Lilburn, GA

Net neutrality is a must and it's horrible that you would allow a company to regulate speeds and block websites as they chose. It's a tool for business manipulation and hurts consumers. How does something like this even get put out there as a good idea. Disgraceful

—Brandi Cropper, San Diego, CA

This is not something the people will support or tolerate so please undo your mistake

—Joseph, Rochester, NY

By setting itself against Net Neutrality, the FCC is declaring to the public that it cares very little about human interests (democracy, education, equality of opportunity). Evidently the FCC will instead cater to corporate interests, regardless of the dire consequences to the multitudes of people it claims to serve in the best interests of. I hope you enjoy hostility and suspicion, FCC, because unless you take steps to restore and protect Net Neutrality, that's all you're going to be met with, every move you make, for a very long time.

—Gabby, ,

Do not allow Cable companies to charge differential rates for speed. This will discourage innovation.

—Thomas Meader, Benton Harbor, MI

—Barış Sevinç, ,

Net neutrality is good for job creation. The competitive advantages of net neutrality far outweigh the meager benefits of a several tiered system where ISPs become merged into a few player who can then practice monopoly capitalism to the detriment of global communication systems. There is little public interest in having service limited and information excluded in this scenario.

—Wayne Richard Genthner, Sarasota, FL

Please work to keep the internet as open and fair as humanly possible. Thank you in advance.

—Dwayne Watson, Houston, TX

I believe that if the ISP's get what they want (the two tier system) they will be out of control and bully everyone into paying the higher price structure by bottlenecking the slow lanes drastically. Even now, we pay a certain amount for a guaranteed amount of bandwidth....I believe EVERYONE knows that this is not the case. When you call the ISP to complain, they basically make a comment saying that there is a lot of internet traffic as of now and there is nothing they can do about it...this of course is false. Unfortunately they know that for most people they have no choice or option to switch to another ISP. They should bill the consumer as a utility service if they complain about users that consume too much bandwidth. They always talk about raising the bill but never about lowering the bill. For users that use the internet simply to browse the net, their bill should NOT be in excess of 60-80 dollars for just the internet.

—Pamela Lee, Flushing, NY

Keep the internet open!!!!

—Erik Berman, Santa Rosa, CA

Hello, this is Senator Barack Obama and today is Thursday, June 8th, 2006. The topic today is net neutrality. The internet today is an open platform where the demand for websites and services dictates success. You've got barriers to entry that are low and equal for all comers. And it's because the internet is a neutral platform that I can put on this podcast and transmit it over the internet without having to go through some corporate media middleman. I can say what I want without censorship. I don't have to pay a special charge. But the big telephone and cable companies want to change the internet as we know it. They say they want to create high-speed lanes on the internet and strike exclusive contractual arrangements with internet content-providers for access to those high-speed lanes. Those of us who can't pony up the cash for these high-speed connections will be relegated to the slow lanes. Allowing the Bells and cable companies to act as gatekeepers with control over internet access would make the internet like cable. A producer-driven market with barriers to entry for website creators and preferential treatment for specific sites based not on merit, the number of hits, but on relationships with the corporate gatekeeper. If there were four or more competitive providers of broadband service to every home, then cable and telephone companies would not be able to create a bidding war for access to the high-speed lanes. But here's the problem. More than 99 percent of households get their broadband services from either cable or a telephone company. So here's my view. We can't have a situation in which the corporate duopoly dictates the future of the internet and that's why I'm supporting what is called net neutrality.

—Dr. Marc Irving Weber, Newhall, CA

FCC fight for our freedom - Reclassify broadband Internet access as a telecommunications service. Don't go down in history as puppets who sold the internet. You must have some kind of idea of the downstream effect this could have on our people, our nation. For the people must mean something to you. Do the right thing in your short lives for people, not money or power.

—Richard Butler, West Milford, NJ

Don't fuck this up.

—Andrew, Panama City, FL

This is unjust!

—Bill Moynihan, Westborough, MA

My government makes me sick. It'd be nice to see Uncle Sam stick up for the little guy every once in a while..

—Chris Bradshaw, Murrieta, CA

Fuck you government you have made this country into a big company and have taken our rights

—Ricky Wing, Piedmont, SC

This decision is a threat to innovation, free press, and free speech. If the government feels that the internet isn't an open and free environment for the equal spread of ideas, and is willing to trade that for quick cash, then perhaps it should re-define the internet as such on record and we will stop using it.

—Neal Barenblat, Memphis, TN

The destruction of Net Neutrality is absolutely catastrophic to the future of the Internet and all digital communication medias as this country knows it. If Net Neutrality is not restored, the eventual, ironic, and absolute destruction of ISPs is inevitable as Americans across the country realize the nature of such predatory actions. This will decimate the very system these corporations have built their empires upon. As a citizen of the USA, I and millions of other Americans militantly and adamantly demand: Restore Net Neutrality. End the war on the Free and Open Internet.

—Lyle L. Bell, Bloomington, CA

I'm a New Jersey resident who in the last few years has been self-employed and found many of my clients online. I strongly urge you not to implement any tiered Internet access system in which companies that pay more receive faster service, and I urge you to reclassify broadband as a public utility. I strongly believe that a multiple-tiered system would further stifle entrepreneurship and harm small-to-medium businesses. This would intensify one of our worst recent economic trends: a growing divide between the wealthy and the middle and working classes. A multi-tiered web would undermine the hope of economic recovery for a lot of people who really need it. I am sure that the FCC is under a lot of pressure from larger companies to create a fast lane/slow lane system, and that those companies are making their own arguments to you based on what their economic growth would do. But in a country where so few things remain "of the people, by the people," the Internet is one of the last remaining democratic spaces we have. This is why I believe it needs to remain a level playing field, and why - since it's now as essential to the way we do business as the telephone - it needs to be acknowledged as a public utility. I'm guessing that this petition will probably never be read by an actual human being, but in the event that it is, please know that this is very much a human appeal. I'm not old - 33 - and I'll be living and working in this country for half a century or more, I hope. I imagine that you know at least a few people - family members, friends' families, or other connections - who are also facing a long life in the 21st century on uncertain economic footing. Please do the right thing. Please let those of us who aren't part of wealthy companies keep the Internet a level playing field that gives our businesses a chance to succeed and innovate. Sincerely, Stephanie Manuzak

—Stephanie M Manuzak, Haddonfield, NJ

As a librarian, I see first hand the importance of access to information. It is the job of government to help all citizens have a equal chance for success. Net neutrality is essential to equal access to information. The Internet should operate as a telecommunications tool, and should not be divided between rich and poor lanes. Please do not rely on big business to police themselves. Please make sure to protect individual access. Thank you.

—Caitlin Dixon Jacobson, Ketchikan, AK

Stop screwing over small businesses and consumers. We're already paying for access, and now we're paying for COMMERCIAL TELEVISION because digital signals are so weak we have no choice. —, Edmond, OK

The Internet is absolutely a necessary service. It is impossible in today's economic environment to create a successful business without it. A neutral internet makes the business world a playing field where the best ideas win, not an exclusive club where the ideas with the most money behind them get the most exposure. Crushing net neutrality means destroying the natural vitality of homespun ideas. It will handicap the Internet, the greatest engine of social mobility ever devised. It will make it much harder for the "little guy" with a big idea to be successful. Studies have shown that even a slight slowing of a website's performance relative to another's has a massive impact on the consumer's perception of the product, and their likelihood to buy it. The internet is just as necessary as the telephone, and should be classified as a telecommunications service. Please, don't let big money crush innovation.

Think of the future! Think of the children!
—Alyssa Eatman, Provo, UT

I had hoped it wouldn't come to this. This decision has the capacity to undermine thousands of small businesses, or at least significantly reduce their profit. The internet should be a platform that people from all standings can use to communicate and trade goods and services, but the way things are going, only large businesses will get anything out of it. Stop this now.

—Sarah Cotton, provo, UT

Why is this not considered a utility yet? We as a country use internet more heavily than phone lines now, and rely on it more heavily. Why is it being treated like anything but the essential service it has become?

I am a Petty Officer 3rd class in the USN, and it makes me sick to think that while I am risking my life for the freedom of every American living on our blessed soil, you are locking away that freedom out of greed. How can the government claim that it works for the people, and that Freedom and Democracy are of the highest concern, when this is obviously not true. How can you claim to be about the business of making America a better place, when rules such as this are instated? Not for the betterment of the population, but for the betterment of the wallets of the already wealthy upper class. I urge you to restore Net Neutrality, and part of our freedom, rather than take another step closer to being a modern version of the Nazi's and every other fascist government that plague our history books.

—Paul Chazotte, Jupiter, FL

In most municipalities throughout the US we have pretty terrible internet options. Monopolies like Comcast and Time Warner have wielded their lobbying power and precluded the competition from even materializing, often times by preemptively suing the municipalities they serve to prevent them from laying the kind of infrastructure that would result in much faster internet. Now, the same business interests are colluding and trying to make things even worse by circumventing the free and open principles upon which the internet has always operated. This cannot be allowed to happen. Preserve net neutrality. Reclassify the internet as a common carrier. The telecoms that we've entrusted with bolstering our internet's infrastructure and taking us into the future have failed. Meanwhile other countries surge ahead. I know this first hand because I used to live in Korea where I paid significantly less and got much better and faster service six years than I do today in my own country. Do the right thing. Don't let the lobbies win again.
